Cumberland Blast Wrecks 3 Stores, 29 Injured

Explosion Traps Fifty Shoppers; Flying Debris Hits Many in Street

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 2.—A mysterious blast wrecked three buildings in Cumberland's business section late this afternoon, and at least 29 persons were injured by the explosion and ensuing fire.

Firemen, police and volunteer rescue crews dug into the debris for hours, freeing victims trapped by the collapse of two buildings and the partial destruction of a third.

At about 9 p. m. the search was ordered suspended until daylight, because officials believed that all persons had been removed from the wreckage and feared the imminent collapse of the third building.

50 Are Trapped

Approximately 50 customers and clerks in three stores and residents living in apartments upstairs were trapped by the blast, which shattered windows of nearby stores and showered the shopper-crowded streets with glass and debris.

The injured:

At Memorial Hospital—

W. Lester Heinrich, 40, facial and hand burns.

William Fazenbaker, 22, Westernport, Md., burns on hands and face.

Thomas M. Baries, 41, face and arm lacerations.

Robert O. Collins, 38, face abrasions and contusions.

Walter F. Kiffner, 45, punctured thigh and second-degree burns on face and body, condition serious.

Theodore Hershberger, Cresaptown, fractured leg and head and body burns, serious.

At Allegheny Hospital—

Dr. John A. Crist, chiropractor, critically hurt. His daughter also was injured.

Mrs. C. V. Wolfe, Keyser, W. Va., injured by flying bricks.

Luther Baer, face burned.

John Dean, burns and cuts.

G. R. Liptson, cuts and burns.

Dr. Burtha Johnson, chiropractor.

John Dean, 54, Springfield, W. Va., cuts and burns.

Mathila Kenney, severe burns.

G. R. Lipscomb, St. George, W. Va., burns.

Miss Clara Critchfield, Ellerslie, Md., burns.

Justice Brandeis, 84, Is Reported Gravely Ill

Retired Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis is gravely ill at his home, 2205 California Street Northwest, it was learned last night.

The 84-year-old jurist, famed for his liberalism, was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday at his home and is under care of the family physician, Dr. Lewis C. Ecker.

Mrs. Brandeis is with her husband, and other members of the family have been summoned.

Justice Brandeis, who will be 85 November 13, retired from the Supreme Court bench February 13, 1939, after nearly 23 years of service. He was dean of the nine-man tribunal at the time.

Tables Turned

Brooklyn Evens World Series As Wyatt Tames Yanks, 3 to 2

Wirephotos, stories by Shirley Povich and others, play by play report in sports section.

By the Associated Press

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 2.—Brooklyn's battling, always courageous Dodgers fought their way from behind today to a 3-to-2 triumph over the New York Yankees and levelled the World Series before another tremendous turnout of 66,248 fans.

John Whitlow Wyatt, tall and bald, this year's standout among all the National League's pitchers, turned the trick for the Dodgers.

The 32-year-old Georgia righthander was pelted for nine hits by the Yankees, seven of them in the first four innings, but he seemed to get better as he went along and he never let the Yanks get wound up.

He was marvelous with men on bases and even though the Yanks managed to get at least two runners on the bags in six different innings, Wyatt never lost his poise.

Dickey Stops Herman's Scoring Attempt

A double by Tom Henrich was the only extra-base blow he permitted and after the fourth inning he kept the bombers virtually smothered. Altogether he caused the American League champs to leave ten runners stranded.

The Yanks got to him for single runs in the second and third innings and made the spectators start thinking the duel was to be a second showing of yesterday's opener which New York won by the same score, 3 to 2.

But it was another Georgia boy, Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, who cracked first.

He allowed two runs in the fifth and the winning run in the sixth.

D. C. Chiefs To Investigate Traffic Dept.

Improved Methods Sought to Cope With Problem Here

Reorganization of the police department completed, the District Commissioners revealed yesterday they would focus their attention on the Department of Vehicles and Traffic in a concentrated attack upon the Capital's critical traffic problem.

The Commissioners indicated that the traffic department was not due for a sweeping investigation and shake-up such as recently swept through the police department.

Instead, they said, a study would be made with the view of improving the department's methods and increasing its activities in order to cope with the city's fast-growing population and consequent increase in daily traffic.

Thorough Study Planned

There was no indication that William A. VanDuzer, director of the vehicles and traffic department, was under fire or that his job was in peril. Commissioner John Russell Young, however, did say yesterday:

"We propose to attack these traffic-control problems just as earnestly as we did in our efforts to strengthen the police department.

"We intend to review the situation from top to bottom, and if we find any personnel changes necessary, we intend the make them."

Commissioner Guy Mason disclosed that an intensive educational campaign and experiments in traffic lighting and routing were planned to meet the traffic problem. He asserted that Washington had proportionately 94 per cent more downtown traffic than any other city in the country.

New Safety Zones

Meanwhile, the Commissioners yesterday received from Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, final plans for construction of 150 new concrete safety zone platforms to replace the present painted zones on which two persons were struck and killed by motorists last week. It was announced that bids for building the new platforms would be let Monday.

The new-type zones, raised five

Leaders Push Effort to Avert Hotel Strike

Steelman Reports 'Some Progress' Is Made on Problem

Efforts to avert a city-wide hotel strike here, involving more than 3000 workers, continued last night as Federal mediators and representatives of the hotels and employes conferred most of the day and into the night.

Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the Labor Department Conciliation Service, said 'some progress' had been made toward settling the wage dispute but added:

"While I cannot be too hopeful at this time, there will be no strike tonight."

The strike deadline originally was set for Tuesday midnight but was postponed twice to allow continuation of negotiations.

Henry Kaiser, counsel for the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance, representing Locals 781 and 80 and the Bartenders Union Local 75, said the workers were asking a wage increase in all categories in the hotel industry ranging from three to 25 per cent. The hotels have offered a flat increase of 10 per cent.

The threatened strike involves 16 major Washington hotels, the services of which would be severely crippled if the employes walked out.

A city-wide strike here in 1939 lasted 20 days.

Inspector Harvey Callahan instructed police commanders in all precincts to stand by in readiness in the event a strike is called. Special orders were broadcast to all scout cars and cruisers to be on the alert in all sections of the city from Union Station to the Shoreham Hotel, where the 16 major hotels involved are located. The hotel employes have already had posters printed that will be used by strikers picketing hotels.

150 Schools Lack Proper Fire Guard

Only 30 of the District's public school buildings are satisfactorily protected against the dangers of fire, a report from the fire marshal on the 10-odd buildings in the school system showed yesterday.

After 5 Days of Freedom

Convict Captured in Running Gun Battle After Two Holdups

A running gun battle between police and a North Carolina convict last night ended with the capture of the fugitive, who had just held up two stores in quick succession.

The robber had completed a term for larceny only last Saturday, arrived in Washington at 8 p. m. yesterday and staged the first holdup at 10:25 p. m.

In this foray he obtained $15 from Ellis Johnson in Johnson's restaurant, at 725 Fourth Street Northwest. A few minutes later, seven blocks away, he robbed Paul Doobly, proprietor, of $17, in a grocery at First and L Streets Northwest.

Police Lieut. Nelson Holmes and Acting Sergt. A. R. Embrey, searching the neighborhood in a scout car after responding to the first holdup call, saw the bandit running from the scene of second.

The fugitive ducked into an alley. The policemen followed, later abandoning the car to continue the chase on foot through alleys and over fences to a field in the 300 block of L Street Northeast.

The pursuers fired several shots into the air, calling on the man to halt. He responded once with a shot from his own gun.

The chase ended when the fugitive found himself headed off by police in another scout car, who had picked up the grocery proprietor and were scouring the neighborhood for the gunman.

With these policemen, A. B. Hill and M. R. Lubkert, in front of him, and Holmes and Embrey behind him, the fugitive gave himself up.

Found on him was $27 in cash. A search of the field resulted in recovery of the .25-caliber revolver which he used in the holdups. One shot had been fired from it.

3 Powers Sign Accord On Red Needs

Plans Are Ready To Speed British And American Supplies to Russia

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, Oct. 2.—An inclusive memorandum incorporating the results of the three-power supply conference and based on reports of the six special committees which studied Soviet military needs and Anglo-American potentialities for fulfilling them was signed late this afternoon by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Lord Beaverbrook and W. Averell Harriman, heads, respectively, of the British and United States military missions to Russia.

Arrangements already have been made to speed up and amplify Anglo-American deliveries of war materials to Russia, and a staff of American experts will remain here to supervise maintenance of American equipment and give instruction in its use. These specialists will be attached to the staff of the United States Embassy and will constitute a counterpart to the permanent British military and economic missions. New technicians also are coming from the United States.

Harriman, in a joint press conference with Lord Beaverbrook, told the results of the three-day meeting. This followed an exceedingly cordial Kremlin dinner party for staffs of the American, British and Russian delegations, where Premier Josef Stalin entertained copiously from 6 last evening until 1:30 this morning. Toasts were drunk in honor of the three collaborating nations and their statesmen.

Met Nightly at Kremlin

It was revealed today that personal letters to Stalin from President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill had been delivered by Harriman and Lord Beaverbrook.

Discussing the technique of the deliberations, Lord Beaverbrook said: "Each committee handed in a report and all were coordinated at the Kremlin. We met every night at the Kremlin—Mr. Stalin, the three chairmen and Mr. Litvinov (Maxim Litvinov, former foreign minister, who interpreted —to discuss the detailed reports."

Lord Beaverbrook said every effort was being made to speed up aid and "there is a sense of urgency everywhere. That is why Harriman and I were sent here, because we are urgent men. The speed of the conference indicates the speed of deliveries of materials already arriving, as you know.

"We dealt with things in a realistic fashion. We were not dealing in the future, but in the ever present.

18 More Czechs Executed, 39 Condemned; Germans Driven Back at Leningrad, Reds Say

Donets Basin Lines Holding Against Heavy Assaults, Moscow Reports

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Friday), Oct. 3.—German trenches before Leningrad are being overrun by Red infantry charges and Soviet marines have landed on the Gulf of Finland coast west of the city to dig in and harass the Nazi flanks, military dispatches said today.

Fighting along the entire front was described as bitterly continuing, and the Nazis were said to have lost 2,700 men in an unidentified sector of the southwestern front.

Russian guns, it was added, silenced German long-range batteries which had been shelling one of Leningrad's districts.

South of the city, in the region of Staraya Russa, the official government organ Izvestia announced, four settlements and a hilltop were recaptured by Soviet forces and four German companies routed in a single action.

Nazis Reinforced

The Germans, said front-line reports, are rushing up reinforcements in an effort to stem general Red counterattacks which already have greatly improved the Russian position all about the city.

[The British wireless reported that the Russians had retaken Strelna, 20 miles west of Leningrad, and that 20 miles to the east of the city the Nazis had been thrown back to a depth of nearly 30 miles from Kolpino eastward to Lake Ladoga.]

[The Russian capital had its first air-raid alarm of the week last night, sirens sounding at 8:35 o'clock and the all-clear coming at 1:15 a. m., a Friday morning United Press dispatch reported.

[W. Averell Harriman, head of the American delegation here, and members of his staff passed the time in shelters.]

Italians Reported on Front

On the central front, Russian counterattacks were reported rolling on, and the official Communist newspaper Pravda declared that Red planes set fire to the forests in some areas to drive the Germans out at the conclusion of a 17-day battle.

The Dnieper River in the south, dispatches from the official news agency Tass asserted, was carrying away thousands of German dead.

White House Acts to Clarify Remark on Religion in Russia

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The White House late yesterday said it hoped that "an entering wedge for the practice of complete freedom of religion is definitely on its way" in Russia.

The statement was issued after a rather violent reaction to a remark made by President Roosevelt at a press conference Tuesday, when he said that article 124 of the Soviet constitution granted "essentially" the same freedom to preach for or against religion that exists in the United States. Clergymen, editorial writers and others blasted Mr. Roosevelt's statement, saying, among other things, that it was "preposterous" and "an insult to the intelligence of the American people."

The White House said yesterday that it had been decided to issue a statement because of conflicting "interpretations" of the President's remarks and also because some "misquotations" had appeared.

Then the White House took the extraordinary step of making public a verbatim transcript of the stenographic record in which President Roosevelt made his references to religious freedom in Russia. Ordinarily the President may not be directly quoted at these conferences.

The Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, was apprised of the White House statement last night. He said the time had come for "a definite and constructive move on the part of the President of the United States."

A visitor at the White House yesterday was Msgr. Michael J. Ready, executive secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and thus a representative of the Catholic hierarchy in the United States. He was closeted with President Roosevelt for 45 minutes.

The statement issued at the White House follows:

"Because of the varied and conflicting 'interpretations' of the remarks made by the President in answer to a newspaperman's inquiry at the press conference last Tuesday, the verbatim transcription of the stenographic records of that conference is hereby released and permission given for its direct quota-

Grand Jurors Call Viereck In Nazi Probe

Germans Ask Agents' Bail Be Returned, Admittedly Official Cash

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

The German government reached in vain at a hearing yesterday for $8000 in bail bond money held by the District Court since it was posted on March 18, for two Nazi propagandists indicted here and who were allowed to flee the country on the eve of their trial.

At the same hearing, George Sylvester Viereck, an acknowledged German agent, was ordered to appear today before the grand jury, which is investigating his fellow propagandists who have not registered as the law requires.

After a long investigation of their propaganda, the Nazi news agency, Transocean, its American director, Dr. Manfred Zapp, and its cable manager, Guenther Tonn, were indicted here last spring for failing to register with the State Department. A $5000 cash bond was posted for Zapp and $3000 for Tonn.

News Agency Tried, Fined

Later Zapp and Tonn were allowed to leave the country in a swap for two American newspapermen seized by the Germans. Special Assistant Attorney General George A. McNulty told a jury that the Americans' lives were feared for. Transocean was tried, found guilty and fined $1000 and costs.

Attorneys Emil Morosini, jr., and Daniel F. Cohalen, jr., New York, who defended Transocean, yesterday urged the District Court to release the bond money. Their petition said the $8000 was put up by

Roosevelt Bars Peace Without Nazi Defeat

Says Their Word Is on a Level With An Outlaw's Bond

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt holds that "the only peace possible with Hitler is the peace that comes from complete surrender."

"Do business with Hitler?" he asks in another of his series of articles for Collier's magazine. "Live at peace with Hitler? . . .

"How can one speak of a negotiated peace in this war, when a peace treaty would be as binding upon the Nazis as the bond of gangsters and outlaws?"

U. S. Viewpoint Altered

The new article expresses the view that the vast majority of the American people revised their opinions about neutrality last year when they came to realize what a Hitler victory would mean.

Mr. Roosevelt outlined the swift succession of events starting in April, 1940, with the invasion of Denmark and Norway and said that they "very quickly served to bring home to all of us a clearer realization of the position of the United States in the world of today."

The President reviewed the steps taken by his Administration to inaugurate and implement the defense effort and said:

"By the fall of 1940, the twofold purpose of arming ourselves to the teeth, and at the same time helping Great Britain and other democracies, had become the aim of the vast majority of the American people.

"By that time, it had been made

'Internal Front'

By the Associated Press

Hangman and firing squad held sway in the writhing new Europe last night, as Germany stamped at an acknowledged "internal front" of revolt stretching from Prague to Paris.

In former Czecho-Slovakia, in the angry remnants of Yugoslavia, in Greece, France and even Bulgaria and Hungary, the story was the same.

[German occupation forces have executed nearly 1000 persons in Europe, in some cases shooting them literally by the carload, in reprisal for a mounting tide of violence in the occupied countries, a compilation showed tonight, according to a United Press dispatch from Berlin.

[German dispatches said 18 persons were executed in Prague yesterday and 39 the day before. Six were executed Sunday, 20 Monday and 58 Tuesday, according to earlier German announcements, making the total so far this week 151.]

Admitting use of the "sternest possible measures," German sources asserted:

"With Germany herself deep in a fight for life it is understandable that we cannot tolerate an internal front against us."

But Czech sources in London suggested the blood bath had a far more sinister meaning than mere suppression of revolt. They said it was a deliberate process of extermination of all intellectual Czech ele-

NYA Head Asks Congress to Probe GAO Charges

By the Associated Press

A Congressional investigation of a General Accounting Office report accusing the National Youth Administration of "questionable" transactions was asked yesterday by Aubrey Williams, NYA administrator.

In a letter to Chairman Hare (Democrat), of South Carolina, of the House Subcommittee on Federal Security Appropriations, Williams said:

"In order that this agency may have the opportunity to disprove these smear charges, I am asking that you convene the subcommittee . . . to investigate fully all allegations contained in this document."

The accusations were made in a report by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren. Warren, in a letter accompanying the report, said NYA had requested the Army not to recruit NYA youths, so that NYA could maintain quotas and justify fund allocations to it.

Union Official Slain at Parley In Stevedore Firm's Office

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Emil Camarda, 56-year-old general vice president of the Atlantic coast district of the A. F. L.'s International Longshoremen's Association, was shot to death today in a building in the heart of the financial district.

Police Capt. Edward Mullins said that the shooting was done by Salvatore Sabbatino, of Sabbatino & Co., stevedores.

Camarda was described as "my right-hand man since 1918" by Joseph P. Ryan, I. L. A. president, and was often spoken of as "lord of the waterfront."

Sabbatino, company vice president and a brother of City Court Justice Sylvester Sabbatino, disappeared after the shooting, which occurred in the company's tenth floor offices at 52 Broadway, and police immediately sent out a general alarm for him.

Capt. Mullins said Camarda was shot twice after a brief conference in Sabbatino's office during which Sabbatino reportedly questioned Camarda about the employment of stevedores.

The police captain added that the shooting was done with one of two revolvers belonging to Edward Flery, company paymaster. Police said Sabbatino requested Flery to hand him a gun shortly before the shooting.

Mullins reported the shooting followed a discussion in which Sabbatino finally turned to Camarda and demanded:

"Why do you put all those Irish to work? Why can't you make room for some Italians?"

Tanks Lock in Big Battle in Ukraine

Biggest Yet

24 Billion Lire Put in Italy's War Chest

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Oct. 2.—The huge sum of 24 billion lire has been placed at the disposal of the ministry of war for "expenses consequent upon the state of war," it was learned today when the decree was published in the Official Gazette.

This is the biggest of all the war outlays and, indeed, is the largest single budgetary provision in Italian history. The nearest thing to it was an authorization of 17,436,000,000 lire on October 28, 1939.

Thus, at one stroke, Italy is more than using up whatever fresh cash was taken under the treasury bond issue which closed September 30. The latest figures show the receipts on that loan were running more than two billion above the similar loan made in February, when 15 billion of new money was subscribed.

Latest From Berlin

New York, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—The United Press listening post today heard the Berlin radio make the following comment on the tri-power conference at Moscow:

"According to a joke, circulating among the Hungarians at Budapest, the (Moscow) conference is the last desperate effort of the United States and their Soviet ally to drag Great Britain into the war."

clear that Great Britain had the courage and stamina to resist the Nazi attack, with the assistance of the limited war supplies which we had been able to send her up to then.

"There was, however, a minority of the American people who were opposed to these twin objectives. Although they were a minority, they formed a very powerful group.

"They were powerful because they had large funds at their disposal for propaganda purposes. They were powerful because they had the support of some of the largest newspapers and newspaper chains in the country. They were powerful because they could command the services of a handful of United States Senators who knew that they had the power to filibuster and who were willing to use that power, if necessary, to gain their ends."

The President wrote that the group included defeatists who preached that Hitler was invincible, appeasers and some businessmen who "urged that Americans could do business with Hitler, and could make fat profits after the rest of the world had been vanquished by Hitler's arms."

"It included a small number of conscientious but misguided American citizens who thought that the way to peace was to put their heads in the sand and refuse to look at the storms abroad," the President said. "It includes all Bundists, Fascists and, before the war between Russia and Germany, all the subversive Communists. It also included all the groups in the United States committed to racial and religious intolerance and bigotry."

Mr. Roosevelt added that "The majority of the American people, however, had become thoroughly convinced of the fallacy—to say nothing of the immorality and degradation—of these arguments."

"It has now become apparent that the very physical security of the United States is at stake," the President asserted.

Croat Snipers Kill Two German Fliers

Zagreb, Croatia, Oct. 2 (AP).—Two German fliers were killed Tuesday night by shots fired from ambush near the Zagreb airport, it was disclosed today.

The ten companions of the men killed seized six men armed with pistols. The assailants were described as Communists.

The Croat government decreed at noon today that ten Communists would be executed for every such future act against persons or property if the guilty persons were not caught within ten days.

80,000 Men Grapple In War's Greatest Panzer Duel

By International News Service

Berlin, Oct. 2.—Shattering aerial blows, possibly heralding a new drive, have taken terrific toll of Russian troops in the southern sector of the bloody Eastern Front, D. N. B. reported tonight. A high command communique said "operations were developing according to plan."

The news agency also claimed more than 15,000 Soviet motor vehicles had been captured or destroyed and 8000 horses rounded up in fighting along the Dnieper and Desna Rivers.

[In London a Friday morning International News Service dispatch reported "the most terrible panzer battle of the entire war" is raging on the road to Kharkov in the Ukraine, quoting London Daily Express report from Stockholm.

[Three Soviet and three German tank divisions involving 80,000 men, said the Express, are locked in a battle which began Tuesday.

[During the ensuing three days, the dispatch asserted, the Soviets have beaten back all the efforts by Col. Von Rundstedt's crack divisions to smash the Soviet lines.

[Heavy casualties were reported on both sides.]

Apparently, the huge Luftwaffe offensive mentioned by D. N. B. was in progress along the north shore of the Black Sea.

A military spokesman was quoted as declaring the hard-pressed Reds were trapped with their backs to the sea and slaughtered. They had no chance to escape the rain of explosive bombs, he said.

[The United Press said more than 100 Soviet warships—battleships, heavy and light cruisers, destroyers and submarines—have been encircled and trapped between Kronstadt and Leningrad and are under daily heavy attack by German bombers, according to Nazi military dispatches from the Leningrad front.

[A dispatch of an official propaganda company reporter said the Soviet Baltic fleet had gathered in this small area, unable to escape. The only way open, the dispatch said, was to the west and this was blocked by a German mine barrage and Nazi warships.]

Meanwhile, other squadrons of the Luftwaffe were reported battering Soviet railways, roads and communication centers behind the lines.

Ten railway trains, loaded with supplies for front-line troops, were burned to ashes or blasted by explosive bombs in one sector, D. N. B. claimed. In another a long train of artillery was destroyed and a train loaded with tanks was blasted off the tracks and its cargo destroyed.

Nazi dive-bombers also dispersed Soviet infantry and cavalry waiting to board troop trains, D. N. B. added.

Donets Line Holds

The picture drawn by earlier front-line dispatches was this:

South, where the supreme Soviet task is defense of the industrial Donets Basin: The German battalions falling back to their old positions after an all-day assault which failed to crack the Donets line, leaving dead and captured by the hundreds, and dozens of field guns, mortars, machine guns and smaller weapons on the field.

Central: Two German battalions routed by a counterattacking tank unit and an infantry battalion near the village of "V," with the reported destruction of enough materiel to last the Germans for eight days, including 20 tanks and armored cars.

North: There were intense although localized combats on the approaches to Leningrad. One of them, lasting five days, ended with a Russian counterattack begun 40 minutes before the Germans planned to launch a supreme assault, and resulted in the capture of strategic point "N." Here the Red army was using tanks, infantry and artillery. One computation put the cost to the Germans of three assaults at more than 1200 dead and wounded, and said the Germans made no gain at all.

Tanks, field pieces and even a motor train were reported captured.

Behind these fronts the work of the guerillas—organized bands of men and even women—went on remorselessly.

Red army scouts reported that they had found a guerilla detachment composed exclusively of women operating back of the German lines on the central front.

west bank of the Dnieper, it was added, and in one of their first actions suffered the loss of a platoon.

A supplementary communique late tonight said:

"Our troops inflicted heavy blows on the enemy in the southwestern direction of the front. The battlefield was strewn with enemy corpses, and smashed tanks and guns.

"Within two days the enemy lost over 2,700 officers and men in killed, wounded and prisoners.

"Our troops captured 41 guns of various calibers, 16 antitank guns, 17 minethrowers, 22 machine guns, seven tanks and a large quantity of ammunition."

39 New Death Sentences Levied

Berlin, Oct. 2 (AP).—German execution squads shot more Czechs in both Prague and Brno tonight on conviction by courts martials of high treason, economic sabotage and illegal possession of weapons, and the courts ground out 39 new sentences of death.

The news agency D. N. B. said those executed included Jews (the Prague radio, quoted by C. B. S., said "15 Czechs have been shot, three Jews hanged and 110 Czechs handed over to the Gestapo.") Three accused persons were said to have been acquitted at Prague.

Total death sentences in the protectorate since last Sunday now have reached about 130, according to unofficial compilations.

Some of the Czechs faced firing squads; others were hanged, the Dienst Aus Deutschland commentary said. Whether all the condemned have been executed was not stated.

Premier Alois Elias, Czech general who had headed the protectorate government since April, 1939, apparently was the leader of what authorized Germans called an abortive revolt "now in hand."

Elias Still Alive

Gen. Elias is under death sentence, but German sources said he had not yet been executed because he had appealed for clemency direct to Adolf Hitler, who alone can stay the decision of the People's Court that condemned him at Prague yesterday. Elias is said to have confessed he conspired with the enemies of Germany.

Dienst Aus Deutschland disclosed another 228 arrests in Bohemia and Moravia in the Gestapo investigation of charges that they plotted high treason and sabotage. It was reported 256 were arrested yesterday.

Some have been released or acquitted, German sources said. Two retired generals were executed.

The new Reich protector, Reinhard Heydrich of the Gestapo, meanwhile extended the state of civil emergency to three more districts, making nine in all. Heydrich has been promoted to a general of German police since he took charge.

He also established economic supervision bureaus "to stringently control the just distribution of foodstuffs." This step has removed "existing disturbances," said informed German sources, "by guaranteeing delivery of food to the population."

Previously, looters had partly succeeded in "seriously endangering the meat supplies of the main industrial areas," said Dienst.

It said there had been innumerable complaints that the meat supply did not cover the rationing tickets because of an elaborate sabotage campaign against food stocks.

Burning harvests and crippling transports were said to be principal items in the rebel plans, combined with a whispering campaign against Germany.

Dienst said a companion drive to boycott the press of Bohemia and Moravia had collapsed.

Nevertheless, Germans said "It was not a case of suppressing a rebellion, but of nipping one in the bud."

Transfer of Heavy Industries Seen

London, Oct. 2 (AP).—The German purge in Bohemia and Moravia is in preparation for transfer of heavy industries there from Hamburg, Bremen and the Ruhr, an authorized Czecho-Slovak source in London said today.

"It is our belief," he said, "that the Germans plan to absorb the protectorate and reduce the population to a slave laboring class by killing all leaders capable of carrying on an opposition, then move heavy industries to central Europe, where they would be out of reach of the R. A. F. and at the same time closer to the Russian front."

Eighty per cent of the Czechs being shot are intellectuals, he asserted. Some of those executed had been in jail since February, it was said, and so could not have been engaged in current plots.

The President's Day

By International News Service

RED RELIGION: Quietly, if not secretly, the Right Rev. Michael J. Ready, chairman of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, was ushered into the President's office for a little discussion of the F. D. R. bombshell regarding Russian religious freedom. The monsignor left as quietly as he came, unbeknown to most White House watchers. And, in further effort to clear up the tempest swirling around his statement on the Soviet question, the President late in the afternoon issued a stenographer's verbatim report of his remarks on the subject, gave permission for direct quoting.

CAPITOL CALLS: Senator Joe Guffey, of Pennsylvania, asked for and got ten minutes of the President's time, was followed by House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Doughton who came at the President's request to talk about taxes. Democratic National Committee Chairman Edward J. Flynn popped in and popped out all smiles, no revelations as to what the brief conversation centered around.

PUBLISHERESS: Mrs. Ogden Reed, vice president of the New York Herald Tribune, came to see her friend, the President, on a partly business, partly personal call.

OLD PAL AND BUNKMATE: Putting the padlock on his office door temporarily, the President took time out to dictate a message which will be read at the opening of the A. F. of L. national convention in Seattle, Wash., next Monday. When the red light switched off, the President's old friend and one-time political bunkmate, James M. Cox, came in for lunch, grinned broadly at finding F. D. R. looking superbly fit. For well over an hour the two talked, swapped opinions, jokes. Best news from Cox to his friend was his report that Ohio stood firmly behind the Administration foreign policy despite "the efforts of a few politicians."

MUCH MORE, MUCH QUICKER: Newly returned Lord Halifax, British Ambassador and Minister Extraordinary, got the immediate come-on from the President, was hastily added to the schedule during lunch hour. The President was anxious to hear what Halifax had to say, had several things to say himself. For one, both Halifax and the President had something to say of their impression of the Russian and Middle East situation. The Ambassador also told the U. S. Chief Executive that both Great Britain and America were going to have to step up production and delivery to Russia immediately. The Russians need a lot and need it in a hurry, Halifax told him.

PREVIEW: Both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt greeted the full Senate Foreign Relations Committee when they arrived at 5 o'clock in the afternoon bringing with them a portrait of the late Key Pittman, chairman of the committee. Everyone looked, admired, and congratulated the painter, Hans Meyer-Kassell, an old friend of the White House family.

Blast Hurts 29 In Cumberland, Wrecks Stores

Mrs. Burtha Wolfe, cuts.

William P. Spitznes, Romney, W. Va., condition serious.

Henry C. Wagner, 74, serious.

Every piece of the city's fire apparatus was called to the wreckage-littered scene, and although the fire was quickly extinguished at least a dozen of the trapped shoppers and workers suffered severe burns.

Doctors and Red Cross workers hurriedly set up first-aid stations in the block and treated victims on the scene.

For some minutes after the explosion the heart of the city was paralyzed by confusion, by the cries of the shocked pedestrians and the injured and trapped, by the screams of fire and police sirens.

The explosion, which occurred at about 3:20 p. m., levelled the Wagner Meat Market and the Heinrich & Jenkins Men's Furnishings Store. The Medical Arts Pharmacy, next door to the meat market, was wrecked, with the walls dangerously near collapse. Ivan Lichenstein, the pharmacist, was injured, but not seriously.

Two Autos Crushed

Two automobiles parked on Center Street in front of the stores were crushed by the falling masonry. The explosion blew out the glass fronts of the Bernstein, Ankenry & Co. store, the Post Card Shop, and the Flurshutz Furniture Stores across the street. The shower of glass covered half a block, and light bulbs were reported broken by the concussion in the corridors of the Liberty Trust Co. building, a block away.

Witnesses told police that a young girl, passing in front of the Flurshutz Building, was blown into the store through the broken window, but apparently escaped unhurt.

Cause of the blast could not immediately be determined. Officials speculated that the explosion might have come from the ammonia of the meat market's refrigerating plant, but said that a thorough investigation would be necessary to uncover the blast's origin.

Students, Police Clash in Paraguay

Buenos Aires, Oct. 2 (AP).—Three students and one policeman were injured last Friday in Paraguay when police used tear gas to dislodge students holding an anti-government mass meeting in a law school building, travelers said today on their arrival here.

One student leader was arrested.

The demonstration caused a tense situation in the country because it further aggravated the opposition of two leading political parties to the regime of President Higinio Morinigo.

Nazis Crack Down On Christian Science

Berlin, Oct. 2 (AP).—All property belonging to the Christian Science Church in the Magdeburg district has been confiscated, the official Gazette announced today, on grounds that it was property "hostile to the people and state."

The seizure of the church's property in Berlin had been announced previously.

Let Neutrality Act Slide, Pepper Urges

Senators Claim:

Japanese Forming Spy Ring in U. S.

Congressional investigation of charges that Japanese diplomats are organizing their nationals in this coutry for espionage and other subversive activities was proposed yesterday by Senators Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, and Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado.

Gillette told the Senate he understood some Japanese consular officials had been "ceaseless in their activities" in organizing among Japanese in this country groups "hostile or potentially hostile" to the United States.

The inquiry proposed in the resolution offered by the two Senators, according to Gillette, has the backing of the FBI and the intelligence branches of the Army and Navy.

"If the allegations are supported by the facts," Gillette declared, "it would seem to be high time that these Japaneses consular officials be accorded the same treatment that has been accorded by our State Department to German and Italian officials under similar conditions."

He said he had been informed that members of the Japanese Military Servicemen's League, with branches in several West Coast cities, took an oath "to die for Japan" and had recently raised 630,000 yen as a contribution to the Japanese war against China.

Tadaaiki Iizuka, assistant chief of the Japanese Foreign Office Information Bureau, was reported to have taken an active part in organizing the league, Gillette stated. He did not disclosed the source of his information.

Hot Defense Secrets Spice Espionage Trial

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Defense secrets, some of them too hot for the eyes and ears of a Federal court jury and all of them allegedly snatched from German spies, were introduced in evidence today at the trial of 16 men charged with espionage conspiracy.

They included:

A comprehensive survey of scores of shipyards on the East, West and Gulf Coasts and a list of hundreds of naval craft under construction —from 35,000-ton battleships and an aircraft carrier to fast torpedo motorboats and surf landing craft;

An unexplained diagram, presumably of the wiring of a Norden or Sperry bombsight; and

Off the Record

Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers directed that none of the contents of the confidential FBI book be introduced into the record.

William B. Sebold, who turned his assignment in German espionage over to the FBI, testified that the book was given him for transmission to Germany by Leo Waalen, a defendant.

Sebold also identified as Waalen's contribution to Germany the survey of American shipyards, which included, besides craft planned or under construction, the names of vessels being reconditioned, names of shipyard corporation officers, civilian craft available for possible Government conversion, and the performance of certain types of new vessels—particularly fast, new torpedo boats which were described as "highly satisfactory."

More Censored

Also censored from the court record was a lengthy account of what Sebold said were observations of Richard H. Kleiss, another defendant, on a tour of Newport News, Va., shipbuilding facilities.

The report, dated September 17, 1940, contained a minute description of a new 35,000-ton battleship, mentioned new aircraft carriers and reported that a fleet of 6000-ton "ghost" ships had been reconditioned and were about to sail for England.

Construction Awards Drop 32% in Week

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Heavy engineering construction awards this week totaled $111,706,000, a drop of 32 per cent from the previous week but 19 per cent greater than the same week a year ago, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Private construction was 26 per cent smaller than the previous week and 45 per cent less than a year ago. Public work was 33 per cent under the week before but 49 per cent greater than the same week of 1940.

Federal Jurist Named New Jersey Bell Counsel

Newark, N. J., Oct. 2.—The New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. announced today the appointment of Federal District Court Judge Thomas Glynn Walker as its general counsel, succeeding Frankland Briggs.

The 41-year-old jurist said his resignation would become effective January 1, 1942.

Briggs, the telephone company said, would continue as vice president in charge of the legal department pending his retirement under company rules next year.

Ban to Remain

London, Oct. 2 (AP).—An authoritative British source said today that "in the view of the government the Communist Party is not loyal to this country" and indicated the government still would not permit the Daily Worker to resume publication.

He declined to reply when a critic asked whether that meant that he believed "the friends of Hitler are loyal to this country" and whether there was "any legal reason" why the suppression of the Daily Worker, a Communist newspaper, should continue.

Says President Has Power to Revoke Limits on U. S. Ships

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday was urged to revoke by direct action "arbitrary and illogical" Neutrality Act restrictions on United States shipping, in a Senate speech by Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida.

Pepper, first to herald arms embargo repeal, naval patrols and "shoot first" action, said the President has power under the Neutrality Act to recall his proclamations banning war-zone trade.

The Senator called on Mr. Roosevelt to act directly, averting a prolonged fight in Congress for repeal or modification, as Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was invited to the White House this morning.

Connally Reaffirms Stand

Connally yesterday, in a speech before the American Bankers Association in Chicago, again declared for removal of Neutrality Act prohibitions on arming of merchant ships, their entry into combat zones and "lawful missions to the ports of nations at war."

There were indications that the President, who has been conferring daily with Secretary of State Hull, has reached no decision on whether to ask repeal or modification of the law, though determined that lend-lease suplies must reach their destination.

No general conference with leaders was called for today, though one set for earlier in the week was potsponed. Connally was expected to go to the White House alone on a personal appointment not directly concerned with neutrality. Presumably a general legislative conference will be held Monday.

Limited Changes Urged

If revision of the law is to be the choice over outright repeal, some advisers prefer that it be advanced in a limited form that can be moved quickly to enactment. Any waivers of existing bans were expected to apply strictly to shipment of lease-lend materials. Time is being stressed as the chief factor in aid, and legislation may be shaped accordingly.

Advocates of full repeal, however, insisted limited modification would be as vulnerable to attack and would take almost as long as a clean sweep of the 1939 statute and predicted broadening amendments on the floor for an "all out" repealer.

In suggesting a Presidential shortcut through rising controversy in Congress, Senator Pepper told the Senate the President's proclamations of 1939 invoking Neutrality Act restrictions "have lost all of their purpose and meaning."

Pepper, who later told reporters his plan was advanced independently and had no Administration implications, said the President had discretionary authority to issue the neutrality proclamation in the first place and has the same power to revoke it.

Room for Discretion

The President, he said, was not required to proclaim shipping restrictions unless he found in addition to an existing state of war that the action was needed "to promote the security or preserve the peace of the United States, or to protect the lives of citizens."

"If the proclamations heretofore issued under the Neutrality Act do not protect the peace and security of the United States, why should not those proclamations be revoked?" he asked.

He pointed out that Congress has concurrent power independent of the President to force imposition of Neutrality Act restrictions. If the President revokes his proclamation, and Congress disagrees, he said Congress "may always, by the device of a simple majority, make an independent finding of its own, and thus compel the President to issue a new proclamation."

He said no one can defend the present "absurd" position of the United States under the Neutrality Act, observing that after the outbreak of war between Russia and Germany, the Administration had "deliberately refrained" from setting up new combat zones because of altered conditions.

"Our boats can go to Vladivostok but not to Cobb or Liverpool," he said "Our ships can go through the dangerous waters of the Red Sea to Suez but cannot stop for military supplies at relatively safe ports in the Union of South Africa Our ships can brave the threats of piracy as far as Iceland and Greenland but dare not accept consignments for Halifax in Canada."

Bank Clearing Gains Continue in 23 Cities

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Bank clearings in major cities in the week ended Wednesday kept ahead of both the preceding week and last year but the large gains of recent weeks were narrowed considerably in both instances.

The total for 23 leading centers, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, was $6,963,335,000, compared with $6,115,447,000 last year, a gain of 13.9 per cent. The total was $466,383,000, or 7.2 per cent above clearings in the week preceding.

Better than average increases over last year at outside centers included Portland, Ore., 48.9 per cent; New Orleans, 46.9; Cleveland, 40.7; Seattle, 39.7; Louisville, 36.9; Kansas City, 36.0; Atlanta, 35.7 and Dallas, 35.0.

Nazi Bombers Rake Britain; Losses Heavy

By William R. Downs
United Press Staff Writer

London (Friday), Oct. 3.—German bombers last night and early today made their heaviest and most widespread attack on Britain in more than three months, and it was feared that casualties would be high in at least two towns.

Sweeping across the east coast singly and in small groups, the raiders bombed scattered coastal areas from Scotland to the Straits of Dover in bright moonlight.

A southeast coast town was bombed severely three times at equal intervals, possibly an indication that the same squadron which launched the initial raid was returning to its base in northern France, taking on a new cargo of bombs and returning to the attack. It was the town's worst raid of the war.

Heavy Casualties Feared

Several of the raiders crossed the coast some miles from the town and then came in from the north. Apartment houses and dwellings were hit and immense orange flashes from bursting bombs could be seen for miles.

Heavy casualties also were feared in a northeast England coast town.

Streets of the northeast coastal town were littered with broken glass and other debris. One raider dipped low and raked the main street with cannon fire. The bombs appeared to be falling indiscriminately, hitting residential and business premises. Rescue squads were searching for victims.

Elsewhere damage and casualties were reported light. Only a few raiders appeared over each area.

Up to 11 p. m., authoritative sources said, three German bombers had been shot down as British night fighters and antiaircraft gunners went into action.

Pilot Captured

Two of the bombers crashed near the northeast England coast town which probably was a principal objective. The raid there lasted several hours.

Roof watchers saw one of the raiders crash in flames. The pilot parachuted from the burning plane and was captured.

In the southeast coast town which also was attacked severely, a block of working-class flats was hit. While rescuers tunneled through the wreckage and homeless salvaged their possessions, a second sharp attack developed. Several raiders swooped low over the town to drop their cargoes of bombs.

Up to early today, however, none of the raids had developed an intensity even approaching those of last autumn and winter.

Men's Wear Sales Increase

Based on reports from chain men's wear store organizations operating 540 outlets, sales during August were 10 per cent above July, in contrast with a normal decline from July to August, and were about 30 per cent higher than in August, 1940.

Passage Home

Peace Zone For Prisoner Exchange Set

By the Associated Press

A British Port, Oct. 2.—This port on the southeast coast of England and its counterpart somewhere on the French coast of the English Channel will get a glimpse of peace this weekend when Britain and Germany call off their war temporarily in a restricted zone and exchange 1500 prisoners each.

It will be the first British-German exchange of the war.

The 3000 prisoners who had not expected to see their homelands until the end of hostilities, will cross the Channel in two British hospital ships under a safe-passage agreement providing for withdrawal of warplanes and warships from the zone.

Via Switzerland

The British prisoners are coming into France from Germany by way of Switzerland, which agreed to act as a transport intermediary. The Germans probably will go home the same way.

The two-way Channel crossing, it is hoped, will be compieted within daylight, but if tides or other circumstances should force a delay the lights of one harbor or both will be turned on for the first time since the wartime blackout settled on Europe and the British Isles. The ships themselves may carry their running lights in such event.

The returning British soldiers include 500 former members of medical services and chaplains.

Relatives Barred

Relatives of the returning men have been asked not to come to the port of entry but to leave the welfare of the soldiers in the hands of government and relief agencies.

Among the preparations for welcome is a cache of 96 dozen bottles of beer on the reasonable theory that many of the returning men would like a drink.

Mine Network At Kiev Snaps German Nerves

Berlin, Oct. 2 (AP).—The captured Ukraine capital of Kiev is being shaken by "mighty" explosions of delayed action mines which have destroyed whole buildings, it was reported today.

German war reporter Eberhard Moeller sent word of the nerve-snapping blasts in the city which fell into German hands September 19.

The Russians, he said, mined certain special buildings before withdrawing. At intervals now the mines are being exploded, he reported.

"Yesterday it was the Kiev citadel, once the city's main landmark," Moeller said. "Today it was a hotel on the main business street."

He did not enumerate other "special" structures but indicated they were mined because of their strategic importance.

French Apologize

Chungking, Oct. 2 (AP).—The foreign office announced tonight the French had apologized for a Japanese raid on the Chinese consulate general in Hanoi in which property was seized and consular servants and other Chinese nationals were arrested.

The counselor of the French Embassy, acting on instruction from Vichy, the announcement said, offered his government's "deep regrets" over the "recent outrages of Japanese soldiers" in the French Indo-China capital.

Eagles Wreck German Flight, Bag 4 Planes

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 2.—Peeling off in sections of four from a patrol high over France, an American Eagle fighter squadron dived on a flight of 25 Messerschmitts today and sent four of them down in flames.

The official account of the fight gave to Pilot Officer C. W. McColpin, 27, of Buffalo, N. Y., the credit for downing two of the German fighters. British Squadron Leader Mears was credited with one and Pilot Officers N. Anderson, 31, of Chicago and R. O. Scarbrough, 19, of Arizona shared the fourth.

An Eagle pilot's official report on the afternoon skirmish said:

"We were flying high when we saw 25 (Messerschmitt) 109 E's and 109 F's climbing up below us. As the Eagles were in the most favorable position to attack the leader gave the order.

"We were flying in sections of four and we peeled off as he told us to and dived into those Huns. As we attacked, there was not a plane of ours out of formation.

"There was nothing to it. We just beat up those ME's according to plan."

Another pilot came out of the dogfight very low and saw a group of French workmen standing on a railway platform.

"They had a grandstand view of the whole scrap," he said. "They waved so excitedly I thought they would fall off the platform. I wouldn't have risked it."

The Eagle commanding officer reported: "Nothing could have gone more perfectly."

Clothing Ration Cut

Berlin (Friday), Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Newspapers announced today Germany's third lot of clothing ration cards to be issued soon will provide 120 "points" for 15 months as compared with the previous 150 "points" for 12 months—a reduction of more than 35 per cent.

The press said that the textile situation continues "tense" and, in order to provide troops at the front with sufficient clothing, the home front must make proportionate sacrifices.

Canadian Hints Output Short Of War Needs

The possibility that the combined resources of the United States and Great Britain may not be sufficient for the strictly military needs of the Axis foes was hinted yesterday by George C. Bateman, Canadian metals controller.

Here for business in connection wiht the United States-Canadian Metals Coordinating Board, Bateman admitted that English and American metal-producing capacity was inadequate for both war requirements and the rate of civilian consumption now permitted.

Asked if the supplies were enough for war purposes alone, Bateman declined to give an answer, pending completion of a mammoth survey of the material supplies and military demands of the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Russia and China for six-month periods from now until 1944.

Requested by Knudsen

This survey, it was learned at the OPM, was requested by Director General William S. Knudsen, and will be a counterpart to the huge study of American resources, capacity, and civilian and defense needs recently ordered by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board.

At a press conference, Bateman declared that Canadian mines are now being worked beyond their safe limits under forced draft to an extent which he believed might be prejudicial to their future.

He explained that although Canada had ample mineral resources for its war needs, but also for all its conceivable commercial uses, it was nevertheless rationing metals drastically in order to export supplies to England and the United States.

Aluminum Cut

As an example, he said that only 2 per cent of the amount of aluminum once used in Canadian civilian industry is now flowing to these channels, and that the Aluminum Co. of Canada, has a monthly limit of only about 25 tons to allocate among commercial consumers.

Bateman said steps were now under way to increase the flow of critical metals to the United States from Canada, which is now exporting to this country asbestos, cobalt, mica, lead, nickel, aluminum, abrasives and small quantities of zinc and copper. These materials, he said, have been sent to the United States in "substantially increased quantity" since the war began.

Arabs Discuss Unity, Vision Federation in Middle East

Copyright by New York Times

Jerusalem, Oct. 2.—Responsible Arab circles these days are increasingly discussing the possible form of Arab unity in what is broadly termed the Middle East, but which includes the Arabian Peninsula reaching south to Aden and east as far as the Persian Gulf.

Emir Abdullah, ruler of Trans-Jordan, is taking a leading part unofficially in the tentative deliberations. In an interview he declared:

"The first step toward the relaization of Arab unity must come first from Syria. Syria itself should be unified, and by Syria I mean also Lebanon, Palestine and Trans-Jordan. There is a kingdom in Egypt, another in Iraq, a third in Arabia and a fourth in Yemen. We must have a kingdom in Syria as well.

"These kingdoms may remain autonomous within a future federation, or alternatively may merge into a unified Arab empire.

"Customs barriers among Arab countries should disappear and free trade prevail as well as freedom of movement. We must have unity in culture among all Arab countries and, of course, Arab history must be charted to suit the spirit of modern times. Every man and woman must have equal rights and an elementary education that must become compulsory."

Arab unity on the basis outlined by the Emir is obviously far from easy to attain. Numerous political, economic and religious sectarian factors that now divide the Arab peoples are involved. The gulf between modern-minded Arabs and the reactionary elements who cling to the traditional concepts of Islam has not been bridged.

Viereck Summoned In Nazi Inquiry

the German consul general in New York—the first time this has been admitted.

Like Transocean and kindred agencies, the German consul general has been expelled from this country by order of President Roosevelt, so Morosini and Cohalen asked Justice Jesse C. Adkins to order the clerk of court "to pay over directly to the German Embassy" the $8000 still held by the court.

Special Assistant Attorneys General William Power Maloney and Edward J. Hickey agreed to the release of the money, but balked at giving it to the German Embassy, pointing out that the President has frozen the assets of the Axis in this country.

Justice Adkins suggested that an order be drawn providing for consultation with the Treasury and the State Department, and added that he would not sign any order that failed to protect this Government's right to seize the money. Finally it was agreed that the executive departments would be consulted, and Justice Adkins announced that, until this was done, he would withhold his signature from an order releasing the $8000.

Cohalen and Morosini also appeared for Viereck. Known as a poet, novelist and magazine writer, Viereck is the first acknowledged German agent summoned in the current investigation. He has filed with the State Department a series of registrations in which he said he represented a Munich newspaper, Dr. Giselher Wirsing, author of "The 100 Families That Rule the (British) Empire;" the German publishers Verlag, Knorr and Hirth, and the German Library of Information, which has been expelled from this country.

How He Earned $8350

Among the services for which the Germans paid Viereck $8350 for six months work were:

For the Library of Information he edited "Facts in Review," which the grand jury says was sent to a mailing list of 30,000 furnished by Frank B. Burch, Akron, Ohio, anti-interventionist, indicted last week as an unregistered agent of the German government.

He aided Dr. Friedrich Ernst Auhagen, now in jail as an unregistered German agent in editing "Today's Challenge,' which published articles by the late Senator Ernest Lundeen (Farmer Labor), of Minnesota; Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York; former Undersecretary of State William R. Castle and other prominent persons.

He procured publication of "100 Families" by Flanders Hall, Inc., Scotch Plains, N. J., a firm being investigated by the grand jurors, and was supplied with $10,000 to spend on publicity for the book.

Some of the "100 Families" publicity was issued by Columbia Press Service of Washington, whose manager, Prescott Dennett, has been questioned for seven days by the grand jury. Dennett is secretary-treasurer of two anti-interventionist committees, the make Europe pay and the islands for war debts committees, with headquarters at 1430 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest.

Got Rid of Bags

The morning after the grand jury called Dennett, he loaded 20 mailbags full of unaddressed franked reprints from the Congressional Record into a House truck sent to his headquarters by the office of Representative Fish. The truck took 12 of the bags to the America First Committee and the other eight to the House Office Building, where on orders from Representative Fish's secretary they were placed in a storage room on the sixth floor, in front of a bin assigned to Mr. Fish.

Viereck's lawyers asked Justice Adkins to vacate his summons, because, they said, Viereck had read in the newspapers that the investigation was really aimed at him, despite its official title of "U. S. vs. John Doe."

Asks to Be Excused

Maloney replied that if this were a ground for excusing a witness it never would be possible to ask a suspect anything, adding a scathing reference to "this registered German agent who invokes the protection of our Constitution."

Justice Adkins ruled that Viereck would have to appear, and denied him a stay pending an appeal of the order.

House Should Try Reporter, Fish Hints

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, yesterday declared that it may be "the duty of Congress" to call Dillard Stokes, Washington Post reporter, "before the bar of the House and try him for violation of the law."

In a 22-minute House speech heard by about a dozen members, Fish accused Stokes of a "double offense." The legislator described the alleged violations as follows:

"Entering the House Office Building and taking possession temporarily of certain sacks of mail, opening them, and taking photographs of mail in the House Office Building, sent out by members of Congress, in violation of the law."

"This reporter gets hold of evidence in the possession of the grand jury and the grand jury proceedings are supposed to be confidential and sacred and secret."

Reporter Stokes wrote news stories appearing in The Post in which it was reported that a House of Representatives truck, dispatched by Fish's office, took eight bags of franked, unaddressed Congressional mail from the office of Prescott Dennett while Dennett was under subpena to the grand jury investigating Nazi agents. Stokes examined the mail in the House Office Building, and found a tag which said "Con. Fish—Attention Mr. Hill.

In a subsequent article, Stokes reported that a mailbag seized by the grand jury bore a tag indicating that it had been sent "to" Dennett "from" Fish. A still later article linked Dennett with a Nazi agent with $10,000 to spend.

Fish said he was unable to understand how this information should come to Stokes except through grand jury sources. If that is true, Fish said, the reporter "is violating the law, and there is some leak on the part of some of the witnesses, or on the part of the grand jurors, or the officials, and it may be necessary for the House to call this reporter before it and ask him how he got this information from the grand jury."

Then Fish called attention to the article linking Dennett and a Nazi agent, declaring:

"How did he get that information, when Dennett is before the grand jury? Is the grand jury or any official a part of the smear campaign? (In an hour-long attack on The Post Monday, Fish accused the newspaper of attempting to "smear" him.)

Reluctant to Believe

"I don't want to believe that, as I said the last time I spoke in detail on all these charges, but here it is in black and white. It (the article) says that the grand jury presses questions for seven days, that Dennett is linked with a Nazi agent for $10,000."

Fish stated he understood that Representative John Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, is to take the floor later to speak of Stokes' examination of the mail in the House Office Building. Coffee declared, after Fish's speech, that such was not his intention.

Trial Would Be Legal

Authorities on parliamentary procedure told The Post yesterday that it is entirely possible for the House to "try" a citizen. It has occurred several times in the past, though not in recent years.

Fish's initial blast was at a Post editorial. He accused the editorial of repeating "lies."

He pointed out that the editorial said ten mailbags were taken from the House Office Building to Dennett's office last summer and that one of the sacks taken away recently bore a tag indicating it had been dispatched from Fish's office.

"No bag from my office went to Dennett last August or within the last six months," Fish declared. "A bag might have gone to him a year or two years ago, or three years ago, or long before the war. I would not know that, and I doubt that even members of my (office) force would know it."

Denies Impropriety

Moreover, said Fish, there was nothing improper in Congressmen sending franked speeches to Dennett who was "not under suspicion by them, or the public, or anybody else, so far as I know."

Fish repeated assertions, made Monday, that Dennett recently telephoned Fish's office to say that he had 500 of the Congressman's speeches. One of his secretaries, said Fish, casually asked a truckman to pick up the speeches the next time he was in the vicinity of Dennett's headquarters at 1430 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest. The truckman later brought eight mail bags to Fish's office.

"Yet it seems these 500 speeches have not yet shown up," observed Representative Luther Patrick (Democrat), of Alabama.

The Association asked an investigation "of seeming abuse of the franking privilege by a small minority of members of Congress."

British Debate Using Men in Army or Plants

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 2.—The House of Commons will debate—probably in secret—whether Britain can continue to conscript her manpower for an eventual continental offensive and still turn out the armaments which both the British and their allies need, Prime Minister Winston Churchill disclosed today.

There are unconfirmed reports that the government will form no more all-British divisions on home soil; some persons who are well informed contend the limit already has been reached in pulling men from the vital fields of war industry, mining and agriculture to serve in the armed forces.

Four Million in Arms Now

Churchill told the House the problem of distribution of manpower was a "direct and central part of the war effort," and that the debate, therefore, probably would not be public lest the information developed might aid the Germans.

Only this week the prime minister told the House that Britain "never will have an army comparable in numbers to the armies of the continent." (About 4,000,000 men of all categories are actually or technically under arms in the United Kingdom, but less than half this number could be used overseas).

To offset the drain of experienced workers from factory to army, the government has tried to put more work on women, but the recruiting drives of the women's auxiliary forces have yielded insufficient numbers and what conscription of women has been tried has fallen far short of plugging the gaps in industries.

Invasion Clamor Dwindles

Actually, a growing feeling that Britain is near the limit of her manpower resources, except that which she is able to draw from the empire, has been responsible for a measurable dwindling of the public clamor for an attempted invasion of the continent now in order to ease the German pressure on Russia.

There appears to be growing acceptance of the idea that such a land offensive must be deferred one year, possibly two. Thus, instead of invasion talk, there is growing emphasis on the devotion of all efforts to providing arms and munitions for Russia's millions of men.

Wondering about the 1942 cars?

BUICK BUILDS FOR DEFENSE

Our assignment: Building Pratt & Whitney valve-in-head aircraft engines for defense use.

IT WAS no time to duck or dodge the facts. So we didn't try.

Instead we said – these being the materials critical in the defense program, we'll do our planning for 1942 with that foremost in mind.

Not merely for an "acceptable" car – certainly not for any "ersatz" number. We bowed our necks against that.

No, we had to have a real and representative Buick. One we could be proud of. One able enough, active enough, durable enough to serve and delight its owner till that unscheduled time when annual new models are the rule again.

The world being what it is, that may be a long spell away.

Thus for our own good, too, we resolved on a 1942 automobile of such mettle and merit as could carry and cherish the Buick reputation without fault until other new Buicks, however far off, could come along to refresh it.

So went the specifications for however many or few we may build – now we're announcing the cars.

Why waste words telling you how good they are! You can't put language in the gas tank and learn either how many or how enjoyable are the miles you'll get per gallon.

There's a better answer – you drive the cars themselves.

Come on, do that! Please put your own yardstick on their quality.

It would be a shame, for you and for us, to have you miss the dreadnaught Buick we've built to stand up successfully to the toughest job in years.

No other car has ALL THIS FOR YOU IN 'FORTY-TWO

You get FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE, for more power and range.

You get COMPOUND CARBURETION (standard on most models), for top economy.

You get STURDI-LITE CONNECTING RODS, for greater strength.

You get STEPON PARKING BRAKE, for ease and convenience.

You get BROADRIM WHEELS, for improved ride and handling.

You get FULLY ADJUSTABLE STEERING POST, for extra comfort.

You get BODY BY FISHER, featuring back seats up to 52 inches wide.

Darlan, Pucheu Tour Occupied Areas of France

By G. H. Archambault

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Oct. 2.—Admiral Francois Darlan, the vice premier, returned here tonight after a brief visit to the occupied zone. He will be able to compare impressions with Pierre Pucheu, minister of interior, just back from the north of France, where, according to an official announcement, he had "a very cordial interview at Lille with the general commanding the German troops."

The minister also visited Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne, all of which are in the "maritime zone." This allusion reveals there are three zones north of the line of demarcation—the occupied zone, the forbidden zozne and the maritime zone, which last, militarily speaking, is the holy of holies. The communique underlines that this is the first time that a French minister has been permitted to go there.

Does Not Forget

"Thanks to this authorization by the German authority, Pucheu was enabled to show the people of this zone, which is constantly bombarded by British airmen, that the government does not forget them. Thus the minister's trip assumed the aspect of a manifestation of French unity."

This communique will be printed tomorrow on both sides of the line of demarcation, emphasizing both unity and "collaboration" are essential if France is to occupy a fit place in "the new Europe," and that there must be complete "renunciation of the past."

That such renunciation may be very comprehensive is shown by Marcel Deat in L'Oeuvre—he has left the Versailles hospital where he had lain since August 27 when he and former Vice Premier Pierre Laval were shot by Paul Colette, now under sentence of death.

Deat argues that renunciation calls for prompt trial and "pitiless punishment" of "the men indicted at Riom," meaning former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum, Guy Lachambre, former air minister, and Gen. Maurice Gamelin, former commander-in-chief.

Might Renew Strife

Objective observers, however, are apt to consider that the Riom trial might renew that party strife which Marshal Petain is determined to end. This seems sufficiently indicated by the fact that the court at Riom was installed in July last year and has tried no one yet.

Marshal Petain is empowered by a constitutional act to pass judgment and mete out penalties himself. Since the promulgation of that act he has appointed a council of political justice, which is to formulate its advice by the fifteenth of this month.

Meantime the accused are preparing to face a second winter at Bourrassol Manor, near Riom, where they are interned. It lacks comfort and already begins to look dreary and bleak under the falling leaves. And the guard is never relaxed.

Army's Lack Of Recreation Is Criticized

Shortage of recreational facilities at Army and Navy posts was criticized yesterday by Chairman Truman of the Senate Special Defense Investigating Committee who wired post commanders for complete details.

Senator Truman said he and other members of his committee were "astounded" to note during inspection of newly constructed posts "the almost complete lack of any equipment for recreation."

"Men have been in the camps for many months and yet in some instances there has not been available for their use as much as a single tennis or basketball court," he said in a statement.

The Senate Defense Committee chairman said what the men really need "is not speeches from so-called morale officers, but something they can do with their spare time which will engage their interest, build them up physically, and at the same time not be a drain on their very small income."

Truman further complained that members of his committee "have repeatedly asked the officers and men what, if anything, is being done for them by the USO and that as far as the Truman committee can ascertain the answer is very little or nothing at all."

"This is a very serious matter, because 13 million dollars was collected from the American people for recreational purposes by a huge drive in which it was represented that a great deal was going to be done for the soldiers," his statement said.

Truman announced hearings on recreational facilities will commence October 15 or 16.

Interested in keeping up the morale of the men and "that is especially difficult to do where they have been called to service at a time when the country is not actually at war."

In the hearings opening in about two weeks he said the committee "will attempt to ascertain who is responsible for the delays and at the same time expedite the recreational program."

Japan's Determination to Win 'China Incident' Is Reaffirmed

By Otto D. Tolischus

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Oct. 2.—With the Washington conversations between the United States and Japan, centering around the China hostilities, approaching a decisive stage, Col. Hayto Mabuchi, director of the intelligence section of imperial headquarters, today again emphasized the army's determination to finish the "China incident" by armed force and repudiated any peace based on the status quo before the present hostilities began, as "suggested by countries hostile to Japan."

The main purport of Col. Mabuchi's statement issued to the press was to explain the Japanese withdrawal from Changsha, which somewhat surprised the Japanese people, who had been told the capture of Changsha was a spectacular victory foreshadowing the end of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Colonel Mabuchi explained, however, in line with previous statements issued by Japanese army quarters in China, in contradiction to "Chungking's hollow propaganda," that the Japanese forces withdrew from Changsha after accomplishing their objective in that particular campaign, leading to the annihilation of four armies, comprising 20 divisions of 200,000 men, and beginning yesterday, the Japanese spearhead turned in another direction.

The press already plays up the new Japanese campaign along the Yellow River, with Chengchow as the center.

"The Imperial forces," said Colonel Mabuchi, "obtained control of areas of vital strategic importance throughout China, and have thus assured a congenial maternal bed for the nurture of the Chinese national government (at Nanking) and the reinforcement of national defense. Besides they are forging an iron blockade ring around Chungking, with French Indo-China as a link in the encirclement chain."

The army's stand was seconded today in a resolution adopted by 113 Diet members urging the government to proceed with the construction of a new order in East Asia and eliminate interference by hostile third powers.

Senate Probers Contradict Ickes

Icelandic Issue

Wheeler Again Blasts U. S. Policy

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 2.—Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, compared Administration actions concerning Iceland to those of Hitler and Stalin tonight and contradicted President Roosevelt regarding Russian religious freedom.

"There is no longer any doubt among informed persons," said Wheeler in an address at the Olympic Auditorium, "that our foreign policy is in reality a policy of war.

"President Roosevelt ordered the occupation of Iceland. He consulted the Iceland Parliament but not the American Congress. This island is only a few hundred miles from Britain—only a few hundred miles from Germany—but thousands of miles from American shores. Iceland is in the Eastern Hemisphere.

"Now, though the law provides that American soldiers cannot be sent outside American possessions and the Western Hemisphere, American soldiers occupy Iceland.

What a Spectacle

"What a sorry spectacle! What utter defiance of Congress and the people! How much like Hitler who repudiates his pledges and guaranties with an edict. How much like Stalin who violates the constitution of Russia with an edict!"

Wheeler said the Americans in Iceland were under command of a British officer, and that it was not unreasonable to assume that American boys might be expected to serve under a Soviet commissar—under the Red flag. Sarcastically, he continued:

"Believe it or not, Russia is no longer atheistic, no longer the antithesis of Christianity—Communistic. Rather, 1941 Russia is a holy Russia.

"How Ridiculous"

"President Roosevelt—conveniently forgetting that the Red lords have killed—murdered—assassinated—over 1200 priests and bishops—proudly announced that under their constitution the Russian people enjoy freedom of religion. How absurd—how ridiculous—how untrue!"

Turning to the motion picture industry, Wheeler asserted "the modern Benedict Arnold is the silver screen."

"Today a Senate Committee is investigating propaganda in motion pictures. Experts and past masters in the arts of hocus pocus have hampered its work.

"They have performed an unconvincing job. The investigation will not be undermined. It will be continued until the task is completed."

Find No Shortage Of Tank Cars for Oil; Pelley Is Upheld

Senate investigators yesterday renewed their assertion that there is no shortage of oil transportation facilities after receiving testimony that 24,000 idle tank cars are available for hauling oil from Texas to the East Coast.

Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, chairman of the Senate subcommittee investigating the oil situation, made it plain to reporters that he accepted the testimony of John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, in preference to that of Secretary Ickes, Federal petroleum coordinator.

Pelley told the subcommittee yesterday that the railroads had enough tank cars on hand to move 200,000 barrels of petroleum a day to the Atlantic Seaboard.

Ickes, in arguing Wednesday for construction of a pipe line from Texas to the East Coast, had told the subcommittee there would be an oil shortage this winter if no measures were taken to overcome the present excess of consumption over shipments to the Atlantic States, which he put at 175,000 barrels a day. He stated that his own surveys showed a maximum of 5192 tank cars not in use.

Pelley contradicted Ickes' testimony with a report that at 8 a. m. last Saturday there were enough empty cars at various points in the country to take care of all loadings for Saturday and Sunday and a surplus of 24,588 cars over the two-day loading requirements.

He said the railroads were now moving 80,000 barrels of oil a day to the East Coast, while they had been hauling only 15,000 barrels four weeks ago. This increase was made possible by assignment of about 4000 cars to the Atlantic Seaboard oil service, he stated, and a further increase to 200,000 barrels could be handled without difficulty.

Pelley furnished the subcommittee a detailed report on the location of all the tank cars in the country last Saturday morning, comparing the number of cars standing at each loading point with the number required to handle two days of shipments from that point.

At the conclusion of Pelley's testimony, Maloney said he saw no reason to revise the conclusion reached by the subcommittee in its recent report, which held that there is no shortage which cannot be overcome by utilization of existing transportation facilities.

"If there has been any change in the situation since our report was issued," Maloney said, "it has been one for the better. I feel now, as I have heretofore, that the shortage—always barring unforeseen events, can be overcome in the near future."

He added that he saw no necessity for further hearings by the subcommittee.

Pelley, replying to Ickes' sharp attack Wednesday, denied that he or the rail industry had made any effort "to deceive the American people, to trifle with the situation, or to stand in the way of national unity."

OPM Decries Dearth of Pig Iron Contracts

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

OPM officials, who in recent weeks have privately expressed sharp criticism of Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones for what they believe have been unreasonable delays in his financing of aluminum and magnesium expansion plans, yesterday noted their concern at lack of contracts for more than half of a 6,700,000-ton pig iron capacity program, transmitted to Jones for action 2½ months ago.

Pointing to the need for speedy Government financing of the new ten-million-ton steel facility program approved Tuesday by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, officials revealed that the earlier pig iron program, recommended in mid-July, was still only half financed.

Progress Noted

They explained that the OPM had already done the preliminary work of canvassing the iron and steel industry to find the firms available for undertaking the program, and after engineering studies had been completed, had allocated specific parts of the job to various steel companies before transmission to Jones.

Nevertheless, they said, the OPM has no word of contracts providing Federal funds for the construction of more than 3,400,000 tons of pig iron capacity to be built by United States Steel Corporation, Bethlehem Steel Co. and Colorado Fuel & Iron Co.

The program was recommended for financing by the Defense Plant Corporation and other Reconstruction Finance Corporation subsidiaries headed by Jones.

Officials Annoyed

Manifestly angry at the delays, defense officials also disclosed that only in the past ten days had arrangements reached "substantial completion" on the financing of the Government's program for synthetic rubber plants, which were recommended one year ago by the old National Defense Advisory Commission.

Cost of the plants, which was to be born by the R.F.C. and its subsidiaries, was estimated conservatively at about 80 million dollars, and included the provision of raw material facilities and fabricating equipment.

German-Controlled Chemical Patents Face Seizure by U. S.

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States gave evidence yesterday that the time is close at hand when the Government, in the name of national defense, will seize vital chemical patents that are now controlled in this country by German-affiliated interests.

The indication that this drastic new measure of economic warfare will be unleashed soon came when the Treasury announced that it has denied permission to General Dyestuffs Corporation to purchase control of the General Aniline & Film Corporation from Internationale Gesellschaft fur Chemische Unternehmungen (I. G. Chimie), a company organized under the laws of Switzerland.

The Treasury did not explain its laconic announcement, but persons familiar with the Justice Department's long-time interest in German influence over American industry provided this explanation:

General Aniline & Film is a firm organized under United States laws, but the majority of its stockholders are foreigners, hence the company's assets are in the keeping of the Treasury, under the recent freezing orders.

Further, General Aniline & Film is the American holding company for all the patents of the German dye trust. These include a vast range of patents over strategic processes in defense industries. As the holding company, General Aniline & Film has access to figures on production of chemical items, knows the production methods used—in short, knows many of America's deepest defense secrets by virtue of its patent control.

I. G. Chimie, the Swiss firm that owns General Aniline & Film, is a member of the German dye trust. It was organized by I. G. Farbenindustrie, and is regarded as the Swiss subsidiary of the German dye trust.

The American firm that wanted permission to buy the Swiss-owned firm, General Dyestuffs Corporation, is the selling agent in the United States for the German chemical patents controlled here by General Aniline & Film.

The Government officials said, was particularly anxious not to permit General Aniline & Film to become an American-controlled company. If it won protection of the American flag, the Government could no longer keep control of its assets by the freezing system and, further, it would become more difficult to seize the patents controlled by General Aniline & Film.

By using its powers over frozen funds to deny permission for the transaction, the Treasury kept General Aniline & Film a foreign-controlled corporation, and thus more vulnerable to patent-seizure orders that are scheduled to be issued in the near future.

Officials said that 1,500,000 shares of stock in General Aniline & Film would have been involved in the transaction. No value was given for the shares.

Army School Graduates Clement G. Randle, Jr.

Clement G. Randle, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clement G. Randle, 1305 Thirtieth Street Northwest, was graduated Tuesday from the Armored Force Officer Candidates' School in Fort Knox, Ky., with a commission as second lieutenant in the United States Army. He will immediately begin a year's active duty with the Army's armored force.

Bill for Expansion Of Railway-Mail Facilities Passed

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill which would authorize Washington Terminal Co. officials to go ahead with a planned $500,000 expansion of railway-mail handling facilities at Union Station.

If President Roosevelt signs the measure, the terminal company is expected to proceed at once with construction of additional tracks and platforms on the East side of the station in an area partially bounded by Second and F Streets Northeast.

The city's growth already has boosted mail traffic here to Christmas levels and officials hope to have the new facilities ready to handle this year's holiday rush.

Willkie to Help Roosevelt Open Drive Tonight for Human Needs

Joint addresses by President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie tonight symbolizing the Nation's unity in its concern for human welfare will mark the opening of the country's Community Chest campaigns during October and November.

The program, "Mobilizing for Human Needs," to be broadcast from 10:30 to 11 p. m. over all radio networks, also will serve as a prelude to the Washington drive, which will be from November 13 to 27.

The National Capital campaign seeks two million dollars for the support of 59 Chest agencies. Clifford Folger is general chairman of the volunteer forces now in process of formation.

Tom K. Smith, president of the Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis, the National Community Chest chairman, will give the response for the various Chest units throughout the country on tonight's program.

The six vice chairmen who will help lead the 1941 campaign nationally are Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, wife of the Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; Charles Francis Adams, of Boston; A. H. Giannini, of Los Angeles; Sidney Hollander, of Baltimore; Gerard Swope, of New York, and Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati.

Chest officials yesterday said the need was great for volunteer solicitors, particularly in residential areas. Only in seven areas, which are divided into 48 geographical divisions, have leaders been named.

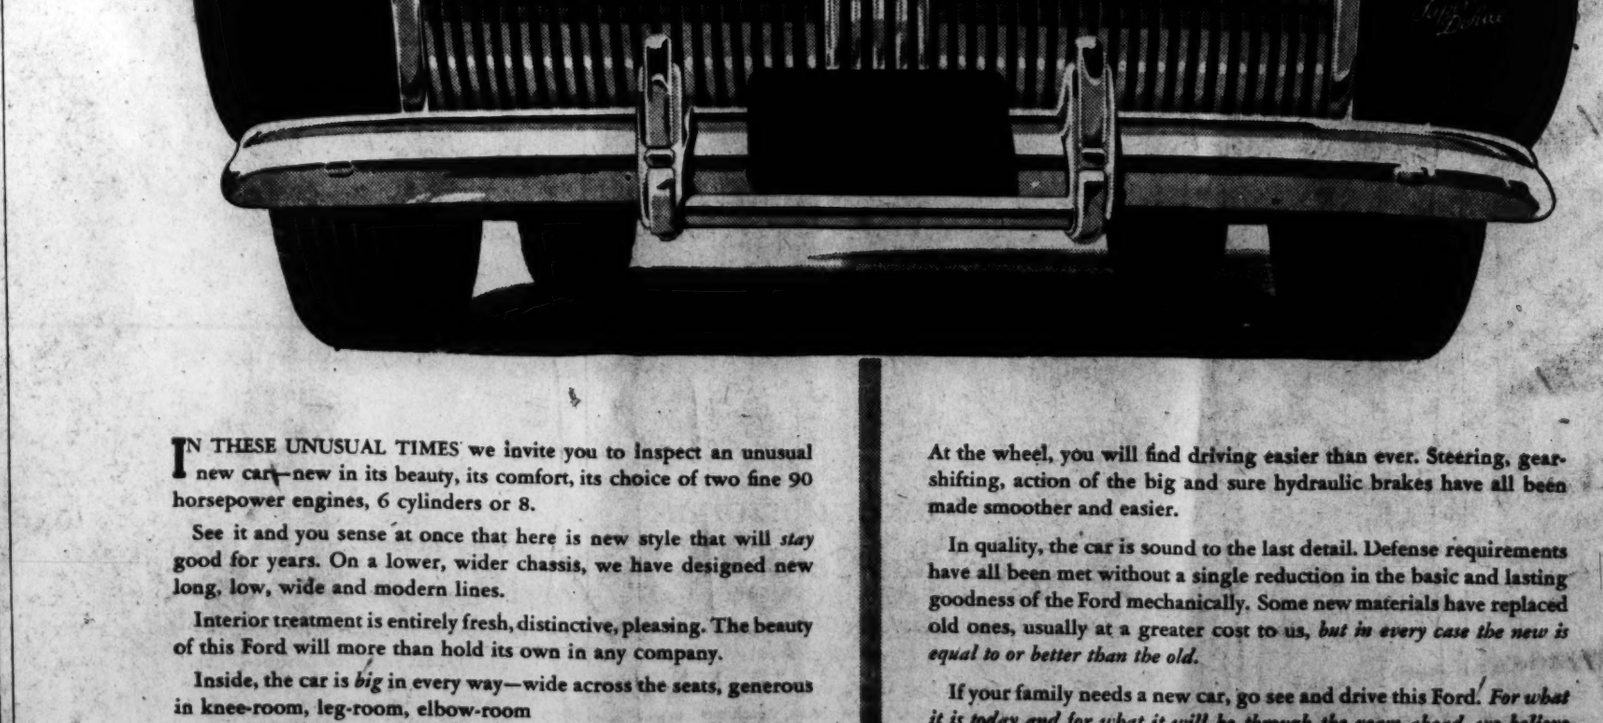
FORD

"6" OR "8"



IN THESE UNUSUAL TIMES we invite you to inspect an unusual new car—new in its beauty, its comfort, its choice of two fine 90 horsepower engines, 6 cylinders or 8.

See it and you sense at once that here is new style that will stay good for years. On a lower, wider chassis, we have designed new long, low, wide and modern lines.

Interior treatment is entirely fresh, distinctive, pleasing. The beauty of this Ford will more than hold its own in any company.

Inside, the car is big in every way—wide across the seats, generous in knee-room, leg-room, elbow-room

On the road this year you find the "new Ford ride" still further advanced in its softness, quietness, steadiness and all-round comfort.

At the wheel, you will find driving easier than ever. Steering, gear-shifting, action of the big and sure hydraulic brakes have all been made smoother and easier.

In quality, the car is sound to the last detail. Defense requirements have all been met without a single reduction in the basic and lasting goodness of the Ford mechanically. Some new materials have replaced old ones, usually at a greater cost to us, but in every case the new is equal to or better than the old.

If your family needs a new car, go see and drive this Ford. For what it is today and for what it will be through the years ahead, we believe that you will find in it more and better transportation for your money than you have ever found before.

Jackson Tells Bar Force Perils World

Justice Says Violence Threatens 20 Decades of Progress in Civilization

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—Twenty centuries of civilization won't be "worth a tinker's dam" unless "the sort of thing the world now witnesses" can be stopped, Justice Robert H. Jackson declared in a speech prepared for the American Bar Association's dinner tonight.

"The conquest of lawlessness and violence among the nations is a challenge to modern legal and political organizing genius," he said.

"At the end of this war we must either throw the full weight of American influence to the support of an international order based on law, or we must outstrip the world in naval and air, and perhaps in military, force. No reservation to a treaty can let us have our cake and eat it, too."

Resolutions Rejected

Earlier the association's convention had rejected by a voice vote two anti-Roosevelt resolutions offered by Joseph T. Harrington, Chicago. One would have called for a committee to examine the President's statements and acts for use in possible impeachment proceedings and the other would have authorized a referendum of the association's membership on the question of whether they approved war without a formal declaration by Congress.

Harrington said he believed President Roosevelt was leading the Nation into war and that he had usurped power. Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, said the committee felt that Harrington's proposals were outside the scope of the association's constitution. That was all the debate.

Points to League

The convention referred to its international and comparative law section a resolution by James W. Ryan, New York, urging that Congress free the President "from the restrictions of the so-called Neutrality Act and that he exercise all of our rights under treaties and international law."

In his speech Justice Jackson said the League of Nations failed because it "was merely a collective annex of foreign offices" and its structure "loaded the dice in favor of the perpetuation of the status quo which was also the policy of the dominant powers and the governing classes within them . . . .

"We now see that such an instrumentality (as the league), if it is to compose the world's discord, must have flexibility. Neither maps nor economic advantages nor political systems can be frozen in a treaty. Peace cannot be static in a moving world . . ."

No formula for order among nations will work, Jackson declared, unless given "a more real support than in the past."

"There's no dependence," he continued, "on a peace that is everybody's prayer but nobody's business."

White House Scouts Reported Kutz Replacement

The White House last night scouted reports that Brig. Gen. Charles W. Kutz, District Engineer Commissioner, would soon be replaced by Lieut. Col. William E. R. Covell, now detailed to the quartermaster corps, War Department.

Stephen Early, Secretary to the President, said he had never heard of such plans and considered the move "unlikely" in view of current demands for Army engineers in defense activities.

Col. Covell, reached late yesterday at his War Department office, said he "didn't know anything about" the report.

Gen. Kutz, who last spring took the Engineer Commissioner's post when Col. David McCoach, jr., was called to active military duty, also said he "hadn't heard anything about" the reported change.

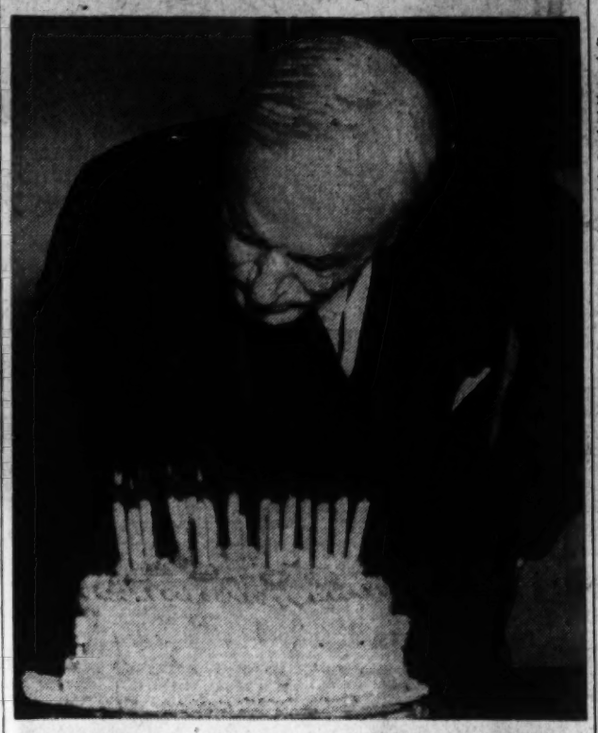
Rain Due Today, But Not Enough To Ease Drought

Occasional showers and moderate temperatures are predicted for this afternoon. The highest temperature recorded yesterday was 77 degrees at 2 p. m. The lowest recording was 66 degrees.

Yesterday's rainfall did not do much to alleviate the drought situation in the District and surrounding Maryland and Virginia. The rainfall here is below normal and today's predicted showers are not expected to be enough to help the situation.

The highest predicted temperature for today is 80 degrees, the low 66 degrees. Occasional rain also is forecast for tomorrow.

Seventieth Birthday Cake . . .



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

21 CANDLES—Secretary of State Cordell Hull blows out the candles on his birthday cake, presented by newsmen on his seventieth birthday anniversary yesterday. Twenty-one candles were on the cake—one for each of the American Republics

Secretary of State Hull celebrated his seventieth birthday yesterday with a verbal toast to liberty and the sacrifices necessary to defend it.

For a few moments, however, the international troubles with which he copes were forgotten when reporters covering the State Department presented the Tennessee-born Cabinet member with a pink and white frosted birthday cake.

Hull found the cake waiting for him, gaily lit with 21 candles, when he entered the room for his usual daily press conference.

The reporters—a polyglot group, numbering Americans, Englishmen, Canadians, Chinese, Japanese and a German—applauded vigorously.

In reply, the gray-haired statesman slowly spoke of his philosophy of human liberty, the candlelight from the birthday cake glowing all the while as he talked.

The candles stood for the 21 American republics, to whom Hull has preached his "good neighbor" doctrine.

Against a background of 49 years of Government service, Federal and State, Hull said:

"One of the most important lessons that has occurred to me out of this long contact and experience has been that statesmen and peoples everywhere must recognize the strong responsibility which liberty imposes on those who enjoy it.

"They must stand for stable government, for the intelligent and unselfish application of those ideas and practices which make for peace, stability and social advancement. They must have an equally strong determination to avoid the pursuit of one-sided, artificial, self-defeating ideas and practices in national and international affairs.

"This requires sacrifice.

"This terrific responsibility is not realized today, either here or anywhere, as it should and must be recognized."

With quiet emphasis, the Secretary continued:

"Today we are living through a dark period. It is in times like this that each of us needs desperately to hold fast to the faith that is in us, a faith in the destiny of free men and the supreme worth of Christian morality. With that faith, we shall gladly meet the sacrifices demaned of us by the harshness of these days. With that faith, we cannot lose hope that the lesson which so many of us have learned as I have learned it will be learned by all."

Hull has served nine years as Secretary of State, the longest term in that high office ever served by any American.

Naval Reserve School To Graduate Welles' Son

New York, Oct. 2.—Seventy-five commissioned Naval Reserve officers, among them Ensign Arnold N. Welles, son of Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, will be graduated at 10 a. m. tomorrow from the Naval Reserve Officers' School of Indoctrination, Fort Schuyler, the Bronx. The two-month course included instruction in naval regulations, customs and traditions; history of the development of sea power naval law, communications, correspondence and other subjects.

Strikes Slow Armor, Ships, Ordnance Work

Work on airplane armor, ships and a new Army ordnance plant was delayed yesterday by strikes.

Protesting that negotiations on a new contract had been unduly prolonged, members of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers walked out at the Waverly Terminal plant of Breeze Corporations, Inc., Elizabeth, N. J. The firm has contracts for 18 million dollars' worth of airplane armor.

After 600 men of the night shift quit, a union spokesman said they were asking a minimum of 75 cents an hour with increases of 10 to 15 cents in higher classifications, but did not disclose current wage scales.

The Defense Mediation Board announced in Washington that it would hold no hearings on the case until the strikers went back to work. The board took jurisdiction over the union's dispute with the management after a two-day strike in September.

Shipyard Disputes

Three Gulf Coast shipyards were affected by labor disputes. Members of the C. I. O. Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers walked out at two yards of the Alabama Drydock & Shipbuilding Co., Mobile, Ala., contending that the management had violated its contract with the union, but gave no details. While union spokesmen said 2500 of 4500 employes had walked out, a management representatives said the number away from work was far less. The A. F. L. said it would not respect any picket line established.

At Pascagoula, Miss., several hundred A. F. L. welders, for the second day, remained away from their jobs at the Ingalls Shipbuilding plant. The dispute involved wage scales, but neither the union nor the management would disclose details.

Construction work on the Government's 32-million-dollar Plum Brook, Ohio, ordnance plant was slowed when welders, steamfitters and iron workers declined to pass through a picket line of striking A. F. L. clerks. The clerks—material checkers, time checkers and tool checkers—struck Wednesday protesting a ruling by the Quartermaster General's office that they were not entitled to overtime for work in excess of 40 hours a week. Their salaries range from $35 to $69 a week.

In Pittsburgh, operations of eight principal hotels came almost to a standstill because of a walkout by 2400 service employes, members of an A. F. L. union. Executives of the hotels operated elevators and, in some instances, cooked meals. The strikers ask increases of 15 to 20 per cent in wage scales which range from $20 a month for bellhops to $175 for chief cooks.

During the day, the Defense Mediation Board issued a statement which said 12 cases, involving 122,991 workers, were certified to it during September, and that by the end of the month workers were busy at their jobs in each instance.

Guffey Denounces Chain Newspapers And Roy Howard

By the Associated Press

Declaring that "chain newspaper publishing has become a menace to democratic institutions," Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, told the Senate yesterday that "the time has come when legislation should be introduced and considered looking to the curtailment of the chain newspaper industry."

Guffey said Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, had refused President Roosevelt's request that he seek to improve United States relations with South America.

"That's the kind of patriot this particular chain newspaper publisher reveals himself to be," Guffey continued in a prepared address.

Guffey said the Pittsburgh Press, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, had denounced him as a tax evader during his last campaign because he owed the Treasury about $4000 in taxes.

He said that Howard and Robert P. Scripps had formed personal holding corporations and thus had "evaded and avoided payment of income taxes."

RARE INSTRUMENT TO MAYFAIR. A new electrohorp, the only one in Washington, (there are but six in the country) will be delivered to Mayfair's Bill Gibson on October 15. After wrestling with this rare instrument for a day or two, Bill will introduce its strains into the harmonies of Paul Kain's Five at Mayfair. Electrohorp playing combines the technic of the organ and harp. It is controlled by a series of seven pedals, six manipulated by the left foot and one by the right. There are only eight strings but they are capable of amazing modulations. Production difficulties being what they are, it is unlikely that any more electrohorps will be coming to Washington for a long time.

The new Balalaika is now set to open on Thursday, October 16. Its stunning interior is rapidly nearing completion and the new date set for opening should be the right one, positively.

MERMAID DOLLS. Those quaint mermaid dolls on display in the Neptune Room are the brain babies of a Washington girl, Aline Harwood Wharton, and were first created as drawings to illustrate her short story, "Agatha's Mermaids." A busy young lady is Aline. She's assistant to the editor of the Junior Red Cross Magazine, has designed window displays for Brentano's, also has done posters for civic movements. Her ambition is to write children's books and illustrate them. She's finished one called "Measles," about a tyke with the measles, and has almost completed "Gerry, the Giraffe."

CIGGIE ABNEGATION. Carmen Cavallaro, of the Cosmos Room, has just given up cigarettes, is very brave about it, but not happy. If you offer him a giggle he says, "Don't be so cruel" . . . Carmen's next record album will be a "Dream Album," holds a collection of songs about dreaming.

RAMBLING CAMERA. Lounge Riviera. The gay and charming party given by Mrs. MacDonald for her sister, Mrs. Guy Cheatham here from Hawaii. It included several diplomats. Mrs. Cheatham did a pretty hula and Mrs. Edward Dicker capped it with a rumba de luxe. Jack Varela, manager of L'Escargot, with cute Bibi Osterwald, of Harry Anger's revue, "Marching Along" . . . Trotka, Julius A. Krug, of the OPM, with Mrs. Krug, who looked no end sweet in a plaid sports outfit. Paul Young, owner of the Romany Room, with his fiancee, Al Schenck, both delighted to be singled out for Mimi Kellerman's ringside leering . . . Mayflower Lounge. "Mayor" Ciro of Ciro's Famous Village and ever-smiling Mrs. Ciro doing an elegant waltz to Dick Koons' music . . . Rainbow Room. Representative William Schulte with a big party of folks from "Back Home in Indiana" which the Milton Davis Band naturally played with all its might . . . Burt's Trans-Lux. "Laddie" Puryear in on a week's leave from Camp Bragg and looking like 30 million. He says he soon expects to become an acting sergeant.

HELEN STANDISH, "beauteous blond bombshell of song," who scored a flashing hit at the Romany Room last night.

Carlson, pianist at the Plymouth, carries around a lock of Franz Liszt's hair. It was given him by his music teacher, Busoni, who was one of Liszt's star pupils.

A REAL DAZZLER is the current Shoreham revue. Cyrel Rodney is not only incredibly lovely but possesses a wonderful bell-like soprano voice. When she sings "Il Bacio," you'll lose your heart. Easy on the eyes, too, are the Margo Sisters, a pair of pretty sugar plums who dance exquisitely. The cause of novelty is served by the Rocheys who dance on tremendously high stilts and Eddie Rickard who produces shadow playlets.

DECORATIONS. The Hi-Hat is all trimmed up with salmon and lavender and scarlet and emerald cat tails. They grew in the country but those fancy colors were painted on them in New York . . . That impressionistic landscape over the Lotus bandstand has been replaced by a Chinese mural showing a tall pagoda . . . The circus murals in the Harrington Tavern will make you pine for Ringlings seven rings.

SUBURBAN SCENE. Nightingale. Jack Maggio's big 14-man band produces powerhouse rhythm, has proven itself a worthy successor to the Bill Downer and Rodd Raffell Orchestras, is drawing heavy crowds.

OF MUSIC MAKERS. Handsomest fellow in the Barry Brothers' Band in the Metronome Room is flautist Eric Marshall, according to the Wardman publicity office which alleges that he "carries that aura of the college lad" . . . Van Taylor, of Restaurant "823," expects to study voice with Reinald Werrenrath this winter . . . Eileen George, of the Anchor Room is the youngest of a family of 13. They have reunions once a year and what with marriages and babies, Eileen says she thinks they'll have to hire a hall for the next one . . . Hugh Barteman, of Jack Shaffer's Casino Royal Band, lives next to the Indian Springs Golf Club.

Don Carper, of Cafe Caprice, is in constant touch with Hal LeRoy who visited Caprice every night during his recent Washington theater engagement. It looks like something's cooking.

CANAPE MARQUIS, specialty of the Pall Mall Room, is exactly the same as the noted "Ambrosial Canape" served in New York's Cafe Marguery. The answer is that Ercole Marchisio, owner of the Marguery, is the brother of Arthur Marchisio, maitre d'hotel of the Raleigh.

HOT KAVAKOS PIANO. Harvey Shown, who played that sizzling piano at the fall opening party of Kavakos' Grill, is likely to be back there any evening as a regular fixture. Bill Kavakos plans to get a midget piano, let Harvey give it a terrific thumping every evening in the middle of the floor.

Log Tavern. Gerry Blacks Band.

Garfinckel Booth For Defense Bond Sale Opens Today

Manned by Treasury Department representatives, an attractive booth for the sale of defense savings bonds and stamps will open today on the ground floor of Julius Garfinckel's store at Fourteenth and F Streets Northwest.

The Treasury employes are authorized to issue all denominations of savings bonds, tax notes and savings stamps. They are especially trained to inform the public concerning all types of defense bonds, notes and stamps. They also will distribute leaflets.

Cash payments must be made by purchasers for immediate issuance of any of the securities to be sold at the Garfinckel Store booth. Checks drawn to the order of the Treasurer of the United States will be accepted for later delivery of bonds, it was announced.

River Bend. The home of George Stein's lively rhythms, huge chicken dinners and general good times. Right on Mount Vernon Boulevard.

The All States Club will start a series of three dances a week on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, beginning Wednesday, October 8. They'll all be held in the Hall of Nations Ballroom of the Washington Hotel.

Familiar Romance Offers New Charm at the Capitol

'Smilin' Through,' With Technicolor and Music, Is Splendid Vehicle for MacDonald and Aherne; Stage Revue Shares Honors on De Luxe Bill

"SMILIN' THROUGH." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the stage play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin, adapted to the screen by Donald Ogden Stewart and John Balderston, costarring Jeanette MacDonald and Brian Aherne, with Gene Raymond, Ian Hunter, Frances Robinson, Patrick O'Moore, Eric Lonsdale, Jackie Horner, David Clyde, Frances Carson and Ruth Rickaby. Directed by Frank Borzage. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

EMBELLISHED WITH EXQUISITE TECHNICOLOR, splendidly cast and intelligently directed, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picturization of "Smilin' Through" comes to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater this week with all of its limpid romance, warmly human appeal and gentle suspense admirably preserved and effectively utilized. A new element of interest has been added by the interpolation of appropriate songs, over and above the single number that always has been an integral part of the filmings of the Jane Cowl-Jane Murfin stage success of the season of 1919-20—first in 1922, with Norma Talmadge, and again in 1932, with Norma Shearer.

The familiar story of a thwarted love and one that was triumphant is deeply and, at times, almost cloyingly sentimental. It is told twice, as a matter of fact, in periods widely separated by the years, the modern recital having the war-torn years from 1914 to 1918 as its time and a suburban countryside near London as its locale. The action is initiated during the Golden Jubilee celebration of Queen Victoria's reign, and then by the flashback method reveals why Sir John Carteret is a vengeful and bitter old man, averse to such observances, and in what manner his murdered bride penetrated the veil and prevented a repetition of the catastrophe of their own lives.

All of this has been lent a new beauty and a new charm by the matchless use of Technicolor photography, which finds in "Smilin' Through" the perfect subject for its application. Even in the double-exposure and montage sequences the employment of the delicate pastel shades is immensely helpful to the highly imaginative mood of the play.

Cast of Excellent Selection

It is no more in the sugary sweetness of its almost classic love idyll and the visual loveliness of its present treatment, however, that this thrice-told tale excels. Its principal roles are understandingly and feelingly played and its favorite old melodies delightfully sung. Jeanette MacDonald, in her dual assignment of Moonyean and Kathleen, has never appeared more beautiful—although she has appeared before in Technicolor—interpreted a role more sympathetically or sung in better voice. Brian Aherne, as Carteret, spans the years from youth to old age with a skill comparable to Robert Donat's in "Mr. Chips." The same may be said of Ian Hunter, cast as the kindly vicar whose influence on Sir John is only second to that of the wraith of Moonyean, who counsels him in his hours of most acute concern. The most notable performance of all, perhaps, marks the return to the screen from his long exile of Gene Raymond, in the double part of Jeremy Wayne and his son Kenneth. Raymond here proves himself a leading man of the first rank. Frances Robinson is another of the competent cast who takes on stature in the comparatively minor part of Ellen, the maid.

Stage Bill Also a Hit

Gene Ford's new stage revue keeps pace with the excellence of the screen feature with which it divides honors. Jackie Heller continues a second week as singing master of ceremonies and tosses in an extra bit of his versatility as an added fillip to his hit as a songster. As one of the Rhythm Rockets in the closing number, he tears off a little dancing that is something to see—even on the same bill with the Condos Brothers. These Condos boys are the last word in tap dancing. They rattle off pedal staccatos that machineguns and trip-hammers can't match. And if Edgar Bergen is looking for his closest rival—and Charlie McCarthy for his—he will find him in Paul Winchell and his dummy, Jerry. This ventriloquial turn is the only one we have ever liked since we first encountered the coffee-grinders. The Rockets are graceful this week, but not too lively until Master Heller gets in there with them and whips things into a minor riot.

Pplaying on the stage this week, with Sam Jack Kaufman trying to outstep the Condos Brothers and missing by a mile, the orchestra substitutes a trick arrangement of "Ol' Man River" for the usual overture and scores a smash hit. The Fox Movietone News and Art Brown's singing bee are the only other supplementaries of a picture that calls for a pocketful of extra handkerchiefs.

Love Encounters Difficulties

IAN HUNTER AND JEANETTE MACDONALD as the kindly Rev. Owen Harding and Kathleen, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new Technicolor production of "Smilin' Through," now on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. Brian Aherne and Gene Raymond are cast in the two other male roles of prime importance

LEONARD LYONS

Hedy Is Heady Girl

New York, Oct. 2.

Among the 35,000 inventions submitted to the National Inventors Council, one of those which survived the preliminary tests and now is being checked by the United States Navy is a radio device invented by Hedy LaMarr. The screen star conceived the idea and George Anthiel, the composer, developed it. The invention bears both their names . . . When W. Averell Harriman arrived in Moscow, he cabled his wife. The diplomat, however, was not revealing any military information. He referred to the Russian winter, but described it in a restrained, tone: "Cool Here" . . . Thomas Mann will not return to his Princeton post. He's building a home in Santa Monica, near Hollywood, where the climate and low living costs appeal to him.

HEDY LAMARR

Paul Robeson and Count Basie will make a recording of a new song, called "The Joe Louis Blues." Basie wrote the music. The lyric was written by Richard Wright, author of "Native Son." Joe Louis will be in the studio, to watch the recording being made . . . Darryl Zanuck will go to London in January. He was to have left on October 15, but postponed the date of departure because of the current Senatorial subcommittee investigation of Hollywood. Zanuck was reluctant to have any possible accusation of run-out made against him.

When Will Rogers played the leading role in the West Coast production of "Ah Wilderness!" he advised his friend, Harry Carey, to try for the job of playing that role in the M-G-M movie adaptation. "I won't do it, for the movies, because of that Facts-of-Life scene," Rogers confessed. "I'd like to see you do it—you'd be a natural for it" . . . Carey approached Irving Thalberg, and asked for the job. "I had hoped that Rogers would play it," said Thalberg, "but if he says no, then we won't hire any outside actor. We'll give it to one of our contract players." Lionel Barrymore won the assignment . . . Thursday night Harry Carey played that role, in the Theater Guild's presentation of the revival.

At the appropriate time, when the planted question is put to the President at one of his press conferences, Roosevelt will reveal his support of Fiorello LaGuardia . . . Ed Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, spoke to the President about supporting the able Democratic nominee, District Attorney O'Dwyer. The President replied that he'd have to repeat the statement Flynn made during a college speech, months ago—the statement that Fiorello LaGuardia is the best Mayor the City of New York ever had.

Ruth Gordon, who recently completed her role in the new Greta Garbo movie, has had two magazine offers—the Saturday Evening Post and the Atlantic Monthly—to write an article about this experience with Garbo. Miss Gordon will write it . . . Ray Bolger canceled his three-week engagement for $12,000 at the Paramount, because it would conflict with his seeing the World Series. Bolger will play that engagement at a later date . . . Gilbert Miller, whose leg pains had been diagnosed as gout, finally insisted upon X-rays. They disclosed broken bones, and now the producers leg is in a plaster cast . . . David Lee, of Binghamton, is slated for the Federal judgeship now vacant up-State.

"Sun Valley Serenade," Palace, Reveals New Henie Abilities

"SUN VALLEY SERENADE." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Art Arthur and Robert Harri, adapted to the screen by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan, starring Sonja Henie, with John Payne, Milton Berle, Lynn Bari, Joan Davis, William Davidson, Dorothy Dandridge, Almira Sessions, Forbes Murray, Ralph Dunn, Chester Clute, the Nicholas Brothers and Glen Miller and his orchestra. Directed by H. Bruce Humberstone. At Loew's Palace Theater.

Selling Sun Valley, Sonja Heinie, skating, skiing, swimming, sleighing and snowballing! That's "Sun Valley Serenade." After seeing it, nothing but an emaciated bank account will prevent you from starting for this home of stylized snow sports.

Besides the unsurpassable skating and kittenish smiles of Miss Henie, "Sun Valley Serenade" is also distinguished by Glen Miller and his band—which, as any musician will tell you, is the "best commercial outfit in the business"—the amiable clowning of Milton Berle and the dancing of the Nicholas Brothers, a pair of sepias so packed with rhythm that it practically runs out of their ears.

As befits the exigencies of the European situation, Sonja Henie becomes a Norwegian refugee adopted by Glen Miller's band, not so much for purposes of philanthropy as publicity. The boys expect a refugee of kindergarten age, troop down to Ellis Island playing gayly, carrying dolls, balloons and camera men. And there is Sonja, beaming with malicious sweetness. Under the terms of the adoption she is the chee-ild of John Payne, cast as the Miller pianist.

Disarmingly Frank Refugee

Sonja falls in love with John in five minutes, tells him so with engaging but alarming frankness. John is already much occupied with Lynn Bari, singer with the band, but this makes less than no difference to Sonja. There's one minor gem of dialogue in this sequence. John asks Sonja how she got into the night club where he was playing. "I told them I was diving with you," she says with girlish simplicity.

Sun Valley itself becomes the star when the band treks west. You never saw a place with so many transport trimmings. The Sun Valleyers move about by bus, sleighs, dog sleds, skies, skates and electric lifts that go up and down mountain sides. There's also wild life, including deer and lovely ladies, who loll beside the warm-water swimming pool. Alpine life and danger was suggested by a monster St. Bernard that wasn't carrying the traditional little barrel around his neck. Presumably, he was taking time out from patrol work.

A Lake of Black Ice

Skiing is as prominent as skating in the noted Henie sports stunts. A notable skating ballet is done on what looks like black ice that reflects every skater in chiaroscuro. A skiing chase of breakneck speed and daring is staged by Sonja and John Payne. Milton Berle contributes skiing that looks literally breakneck and is plenty comical.

Highly diverting is a John Mosbitt short, dealing with the gadgets and technique used by large firms in placing applicants for employment. These devices which test mechanical skill, intelligence and self-possession were first developed through experiments with animals, which are also illustrated. A trip to Haiti contrasts the wrecked splendor of the palace of Sans Souci and the Haitian market life of today.

MARY HARRIS.

Friendship Due to Mislaid $10 Bill

When Glenn Ford found a ten-dollar bill in a pocket of one of the costumes he wears in "Texas," he started a search for the owner.

He traced the outfit to Western Costumers, where it had been rented. The files were combed and Ford learned that some of the clothes he wears in "Texas" are also worn by Joel McCrea in his western roles. The measurements of the two men are identical.

Ford returned the $10 to McCrea, whom he had never met before, and as a result, a friendship between the two men has developed.

"One Foot in Heaven," costarring Fredric March and Martha Scott, given its world premiere in the Earle Theater last night, will be reviewed on this page tomorrow, together with new stage revue not presented last night.

Helen Hays to Play National 2 Weeks in Anderson Drama

Because of the vast advance sale for Helen Hayes in "Candle in the Wind," the proportions of which, as precisely measured by the National Theater management, are nothing short of spectacular, the Theater Guild and the Playwrights Co., proprietors of the popular play, have extended the Washington engagement from one to two weeks.

Accordingly, Maxwell Anderson's newest drama, starring Miss Hayes, will be at the National from Monday, October 6, through Saturday, October 18. The decision to extend the local stay was made by the New York office of the Theater Guild upon the receipt of a report from Edmund Plohn, local manager of the National Theater, to the effect that it had been necessary for his theater to refund more than $6000 in mail order reservations to disappointed seekers of seats for the original week's engagement of the play.

Mr. Plohn's plea that the engagement be extended by another week in order to accommodate at least a major portion of his clamorous clientele received sympathetic attention at the Theater Guild, where Lawrence Langner, a director, has long advocated the establishment of Washington as a two-week stand for the majority, if not all, of the Treater Guild productions.

Miss Hayes, when queried in Baltimore, where she is appearing this week at Ford's Theater, was quick to indorse the Plohn proposition and joined with Mr. Langner in his advocacy of this city, her own birthplace, as being amply entitled to such booking consideration.

HEDDA HOPPER

A Stirling Resolve

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 2.—All this talk about Stirling Hayden not making another picture is true. Y. Frank Freeman told me he had the most wonderful talk with the lad, even though it was disappointing, and says "There's a man who's living up to Shakespeare's quotation 'To thine own self be true.' The life of Hollywood is not for Hayden." We're all hoping after he gets another taste of the sea he'll change his mind, 'cause we can use boys like that here.

RUSSELL ROSALIND

Now that the Gulf Oil Show goes back on the air, for benefit of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, they're going to inaugurate something new by having Roz Russell play the lead in "Philadelphia Story," instead of Katharine Hepburn, and perhaps Katie will do one of the parts on the air that Roz did on the screen. Good idea, wot?

And speaking of that new home the fund is building in the valley, Mickey Neilan, who was out for the ground breaking, has a wonderful idea which the English are doing today in Hollywood for the benefit of Britain. And that is, every year Hollywood make a fine picture with all top names donated, released throughout the country and returns going to the home, which would keep it going as long as anybody saw a motion picture. How about it, Hollywood? That idea comes from a man you've forgotten.

Bart MacLane acted as temporary nursemaid the other afternoon, when his wife dumped the neighbor's baby in his lap while she answered a phone call. The infant at once began to howl bloody murder and hung one on Bart's eye with its bottle. When Bart presented his watch, Baby promptly demolished it with same bottle, so Bart tried a little judicious mugging, denoting menace. Mrs. MacLane got back just in time to save his other eye. "I'll stick to screen menace after this," sighs Bart: "After all, they're paid to be scared of me!"

It isn't everyone luck enough to have Ann Sothern and Joan Crawford working to get him into their studio, but that's what's happening to Ace Designer John Hambleton, who for 12 years designed clothes for George Kaufman and Moss Hart plays. He not only designs, but what a dancer! Oh, boy!

Yes, Jack Oakie has two pairs of pajamas. He whips out of Bob Taylor's bed in the valley—you know he bought the old Taylor homestead—puts on his bathrobe, drives to the studio, changes his pajamas and climbs into bed for "Arise and Shine."

He's taken an awful lot of kidding about being too old to play football, but nothing like the cracks Dick Barthelmess took 12 years ago when he was a college lad and I played his mother.

Although it juggles emotions and becomes incredible occasionally, "Hold Back the Dawn" is still one of the year's best pictures. Dealing with refugees trying to cross our borders it's intensely dramatic, warmly human and contains some of the most sizzling love scenes since "The Sheik." Charles Boyer, Olivia De Havilland, and Paulette Goddard all turn in excellent performances.

Dick Powell's been doing road work down at Balboa with Billy Soose, the middleweight champ (wonder if hes any relation of Kay Kyser's Swoose).

Even though Norma Shearer wants him to photograph her in "We Were Dancing," Jimmy Wong Howe goes from "Kings Row" to "For Whom the Bell Tolls" with Sam Wood, 'cause they get along like a couple of bugs in a rug . . . Julio Batista, President of Cuba, sent Leo Carrillo a box of cigars, not knowing Leo doesn't smoke. But to be gracious, Leo's puffing the whole box of stogies in "Honolulu Lu" so the president can see for himself what happened.

George Sanders says he's going to trade his car in for a Victorian carriage. Got used to the carriage in "Son of Fury," and found it ideal for sleeping . . . The Brian Ahernes have certainly made themselves lots of friends by those P. A.'s they've made for Bundles for Britain.

Bankers Hear Need for More Taxes in 1942

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The American Bankers Association pledged support of the defense program, indorsed price control and recommended reduction of nonessential Government spending today after Treasury Secretary Morgenthau asserted an "all-out" tax bill would be needed next year.

The convention commended the policy of seeking to meet a large proportion of rearmament costs through taxation, but maintained "the burden should be distributed equitably over the whole population" and the "power of taxation must not be used to destroy enterprise."

Morgenthau said the tax law which went into effect yesterday was only a "good start," and that "the tax bill next year will have to be a genuinely all-out bill, a genuine levy upon all in accordance with their ability to pay, if it is to raise the necessary revenue, check inflation and take the profit out of war."

With the new taxes, "our tax structure will yield about 14 billion dollars in revenue, but it still contains many inequalities and many omissions which will have to be corrected."

The association approved a report which included these points:

"The situation of this country probably is more critical than most people realize, and "our defense is less advanced than headlines of huge spending lead us to think." Support was pledged to "two major tasks"—to speed up the defense effort and "avoid unbalancing our economic machinery.

"A policy of controlling inflation must include direct control not only over prices but also over the cost elements which are the causes of prices. Such controls must be equitable. No pressure groups should be allowed to obtain unfair advantages over other citizens in a less favorable position to exert political pressure."

Approval was voted for a Congressional investigation of Federal expenditures with a recommendation that nonessential spending be reduced during the emergency, and that Government agencies "sacrifice nonessential activities" during the defense program.

Is It A 'Smear'?

The charges brought against the NYA by the General Accounting Office are dismissed by Administrator Aubrey Williams as a "smear story" given out to discredit another administrative agency. Perhaps the GAO has been delving into matters that are "none of their business," as Mr. Williams says, in questioning the motives that induced the NYA to reduce the age limit for youths in receipt of aid. And perhaps the GAO is wrong in asserting that Army recruiting officers have been requested by the NYA not to make contacts with its young men. Mr. Williams' promised replies to these and other charges will be awaited with interest. He will have to make out a very good case, indeed, to convince the public that the GAO is animated only by malice in launching its attack. "For when Government agencies have money to spend, most of them find ways to spend it, regardless of necessity. Officials whose own jobs depend upon creating jobs for others and thus justifying application for more appropriations are certainly not likely to be backward in devising ways and means to keep going. The fact that Federal Security Administrator McNutt has banned recruiting by the NYA and the CCC certainly suggests that both agencies have had some difficulty in locating unemployed upon whom to spend the allowances generously appropriated by Congress.

Social Security

There can be no doubt that with employment and pay-roll totals at record levels, old-age pay-roll taxes could safely be stepped up more rapidly than planned to the top levels fixed by law, as the President seems to suggest. This would conform to good insurance practice. But the object of the suggestion, as it was advanced by the President, is fiscal. Doubtless he sees in the proposal a means of imposing a limited check on spending at a time when the presence in the economy of surplus cash threatens to bring on inflation. Secretary Morgenthau had already anticipated the President. And when he advanced the notion, we pointed out that "it is a very dubious proceeding to tinker with any social insurance system for expedient purposes, no matter how praiseworthy those purposes may be." That remains our opinion.

That may well be the opinion of the Social Security Board itself. At any rate, there are reports that the board is opposed to pronounced increases in pay-roll levies immediately as a device for curbing spending. It fears that any sharp advance in such taxes might be followed by demands for equally sharp reductions during the postwar period. Such practices would have only one result—eventually they would undermine the insurance system. The fears of the board, it seems to us, are justified. If pay-roll taxes are permitted to fluctuate in accordance with the changing revenue needs of emergency periods, instead of being adjusted with reference to the costs of a permanent insurance system, there is certain to be trouble later on.

The correlative Presidential proposal to extend old-age and unemployment insurance to millions of now exempt wage earners also has a fiscal rather than an insurance angle. It would provide current cash for Treasury use. Thus to some extent it would cut consumer purchasing power in the groups affected. There is no question as to the desirability of making the present system more inclusive; the only question is whether it is wise at this time to add to the administrative tasks of already heavily burdened social security officials. Certainly it would be extremely ill-advised to undertake an immediate extension of the social security system to millions of wage earners primarily for the purpose of obtaining more revenue or checking buying in low-wage groups. Those ends can be achieved more directly and more effectively by other means—such as general sales taxes, special levies on wages during the emergency, or some form of compulsory savings. It would be inadvisable to endanger the financial stability of the social security system by converting it into an instrumentality for financing defense.

Manifest Destiny

It might seem a large order that the Secretary of the Navy outlined for the American people in his address on Wednesday at Indianapolis. He pleaded for an Anglo-American condominium of the seas in a concert to which other peace-loving nations would be invited for the purpose of insuring sea law and sea freedom. How ready our people are to swallow such an order is another question. Yet there can be no argument that this is the new order which, as the Secretary put it, is "history-made," for this is the only way in which we shall be able to restore a law of nations and the world government necessary to enforce it.

In the old days the keys of world government were really held by the British. Philip, Louis IV, Napoleon, the Pan Germans—all their "grand schemes of war and diplomacy," as Trevelyan says, "depended on the battleships of England tossing far out at sea." But World War I left Britain no longer capable of holding the balance of power. The hemorrhage of economic strength as a result of her warmaking had been too great to permit her to retain such a Titan role. Britain's logical successor was America. For to this continent had flowed most of the strength which had been shed by the Old World. If the United States had exercised the power which she absorbed, then Hitlerism would not have had a chance to flourish like the green bay tree. But the United States refused. She even refused to share the responsibility of world power which was lodged in the League of Nations as the formal successor to Pax Britannica. Thus the vestigial remains of law for the world community lost themselves in Hitler-made anarchy.

It cannot happen again! This is what Secretary Knox, in effect, is now saying. It is what the American people seem to be coming rapidly to think. They are now seeing that peace can be assured only in common, and that in isolation it merely sinks into an impotence which invites the rise of a world conqueror, and which then produces war. "History-made," in other words, is the conclusion after a century of experience that the United States must inevitably be drawn into war when a world conqueror is allowed to stalk abroad. There is only one way of avoiding this periodical entanglement. This is to make what Woodrow Wilson used to call a "disentangling alliance"—such an alliance as would insure that there shall be no irruption every quarter of a century of a nihilistic force which would jeopardize the civilization of what we are part, and make a sepulcher of our very institutions. The power we enjoy casts us for some such role as Secretary Knox envisaged. It is a manifest destiny we cannot escape.

Not Enough Bombers

The problem of getting more bombers to the British is pointed up by what is now happening in the Near East. Nazi machines are reportedly raiding Suez almost nightly. From advanced bases in Crete and Rhodes they are subjecting Cyprus, British naval units, R. A. F. airdromes, and even Tobruk, to considerable punishment. So far, apparently, the British have been able to cope with these air attacks. But they are beginning to be worried lest the attacks be reinforced by Luftwaffe heavy bombers detached from service on the eastern front. This is quite possible with the advent of winter and of less favorable flying conditions in Russia. It is virtually certain if the Germans find their Russian successes great enough to make practicable their expected bid for the Middle East.

If this proves to be the case, the British will be dangerously handicapped by a lack of heavy bombers. Some, it is true, could be flown from England and others from the United States via the South Atlantic. As of today, however, while American light bombers and fighters are operating from bases in Egypt, the British have stated that none of our heavy bombers are in use in the Middle East. This means that the R. A. F., without sufficient machines, is unable to bomb Axis island bases and Greece with relentless consistency. In other words, the British have enough light planes to fight off present Nazi raids and a few heavy planes with which they can bomb Nazi bases intermittently. But they lack sufficient heavy planes to disrupt permanently the bases upon which Nazi raiders depend.

Such a situation naturally lends added weight to the British argument that no decision will be gained in the Middle East—or in Europe, for that matter—until more heavy bombers become available. Slowly yet with gathering speed American heavy bombers are being produced for Britain. But peak production, 500 heavy bombers a month, will not be possible before the summer of 1943. And the output today is only a fraction of 500. Consequently it is clear that in the months immediately ahead a British air offensive in the Middle East on a decisive scale is out of the question. Indeed, should there be a sizable German air onslaught, as some anticipate, replacements would have to be sent to the Middle East to enable the British to defend themselves.

New Terror

Hitler's new order is fast degenerating into a new terror. The list of victims steadily lengthens. Yet the resistance continues to grow just the same; in fact, seems to thrive on the new terrorism.

Consider just one day's budget of news: In the so-called Protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia the Nazis have found it necessary to execute almost 100 individuals, allegedly for treasonable activities. The erstwhile premier of Dr. Hacha's government has been condemned to death. Hundreds have been rounded up and sent to jail and concentration camps. In the Netherlands four persons have been executed and a fifth sentenced to life imprisonment. The terror is on in full fury in Slovenia, where the Nazis are carrying out a plan to deport 283,000 Slovenes to Serbia and Croatia. Sofia reports an armed uprising of Greeks, Bucharest the execution of 42 Serbs in the Banat, while from Zagreb comes news of the shooting of two German aviators.

This is just one day's reporting. It comes merely in the form of items of the European revolt and of the effort to try to repress it. In Yugoslavia the very apotheosis of horror has been reached. There whole towns and villages are being held as hostages and are being wiped out by artillery fire and dive bombers. Nothing that has ever happened in modern times equals the barbarism displayed by the Nazis. There is more than wishful thinking in the conclusion that the new order seems to be cracking wide open.

Honors Easy

For the first time in their past 11 World Series games—for the first time, to be exact, since Saturday, October 9, 1937, when the great Carl Hubbell of the Giants managed to hold them with his screwballs—the matchless Yankees were beaten yesterday. What the Chicago Cubs and even the Cincinnati Reds, with all their pitching virtuosi, could not do, the Dodgers have accomplished. And, whatever else may happen between now and Sunday, there will remain at least that much balm in Brooklyn. To be sure, it was a pretty near thing yesterday. The Yankees, who got nine hits to Brooklyn's six, led for nearly half the game. And even after that, another eighth inning crise aux nerfs on the part of Mr. Peewee Reese came close to giving the Yankees much the same kind of break that he gave them in Wednesday's game when he attempted his 90-foot sprint against a 45-foot throw.

But since the end result is what counts in this pragmatist world, Mr. Lippy Durocher's judgment in reserving his trump for this second trick stands vindicated. Mr. Durocher chose to play his strength, which is pitching, against Mr. McCarthy's weakness, which is lack of first-rate pitching. Mr. Wyatt may not have pitched as good a game yesterday as Mr. Ruffing's on Wednesday, but there is no doubt that, taking the game as a whole, he outpitched Messrs. Chandler and Murphy. Indeed, the best that the eminent fireman, Mr. Murphy, could do was to hold it down to a three-alarm blaze. So today Mr. Durocher can offer Mr. Koiby Higbe in riposte to whatever run-of-the-pen lefthander Mr. McCarthy may pick from his grab-bag. Thus, were it not for the fact that today the scene shifts abruptly to Ebbets Field, the Dodgers might even be said to have certain slight edge in the series. But with hitters like Henrich and DiMaggio the proximity of the center-field wall—56 feet closer to the batter than at Yankee Stadium—makes a difference; whereas the extra foot to the right and left field walls means little to left-field hitters like Gordon and Medwick or right-field hitters like Camilli and Dickey. But when all is said and done, it is the imponderables that decide, though in baseball they call them the breaks.

THE SPRING

Do you remember the little spring we found
Out in the pasture that bright April morning,
That seemed to have given the world a shake
And roused it, like a sleeper, from deep slumber—
Do you remember?

Down where two green hills
Ran up close together it trickled out
And made a little sound like young girls laughing
At they know not what. And you and I laughed too,
And sat us down beside the gaysome thing
For close acquaintance. We knew it hadn't long
To live; wet weather springs don't last you said,
Summer dries them up. This one knew it, too,
And it was all a-rush to get the most
From life while time was good. You said that, too,
And laughed. Then suddenly you left off laughing
And looked at me, and in your eyes I saw
The fear of some trapped thing. I understood.
Without a word we rose, and hastily
We walked away.

Monopoly And Unity

I am a Belgian-American and an old butcher. I thank the good Lord that I am an American. I'd fight and die for the American Flag. It's too bad that all the people don't think the same. It was in 1921 that trouble came in America. I blame Wall Street and the crooked politicians, crooked millionaires and monopoly for 1921. They started taking the jobs, money, homes and farms away and put the independent businessman on the street.

Two years from now there will be no independent businessmen—no grocerymen, no butchers, no druggists, and no independent businessman can make money. What will be will be because of the monopoly.

Mr. Wickard, I listen to your speeches all the time—just the same as Wallace. In 1933 I sent a letter to Wallace that we never had a pound of butter, a pound of meat, a dozen of eggs too much. All was needed for the people. You see the work of the man who had money—everything has gone up. The food has risen 20 per cent but what will the old people do with $14 pensions? The old grandmother and grandfather have many grandchildren, just the same the old people live on small incomes. This country has plenty for everybody and should have it adjusted right. They say that we need more pork and more beef.

Mr. Roosevelt promised to put the money changers out of the temple, but all the lawmakers and lawbreakers wouldn't hear to it. Is it true that the politicians make from $10,000 to $12,000 a year, spend $25,000 and save $50,000? How can they do it? I believe in President Roosevelt. I know he is honest and loves the country—just the same as the working-man from the world loves him. I had a lot of respect for Mr. Willkie. He is a man for the country and sees it through—just like President Roosevelt. He doesn't hate. Willkie says "Stick together."

Lots of fellows in politics with college education with money will never do good. The Catholic and Protestants should stick together or there won't be any religion left. I never believed in Ku Klux or Black Legions—once a lawbreaker—always a lawbreaker.

Joe Louis

Now that Joe Louis is ending his brilliant campaign as champion of the world by entering Uncle Sam's Army, it is worth while to recall some achievements during his reign as heavyweight king.

There has been no greater factor operating to destroy Hitler's Aryan physical superiority than the feats of courage, strength and skill of Negro athletes. Joe has repeatedly slain the hydraheaded superior-race myth.

He has proven more of a gentleman, far greater sportsman and less of a boaster or a clown than some of his opponents. He has exemplified the virtue of clean living in a world where a good time is associated too frequently with all-out dissipation of vitality and vigor. He has refused many thousands of dollars to pose for alcohol and tobacco "ads" unlike so many athletes of the day. He uses neither drug.

Joe has not been the cowardly defender of a title some other champions have been. He has not run because the contenders were strong, nor has he denied the right of a chance to any man in the world, be he black or white, Jew or Gentile. He has met them all. Nor has there ever been the slightest belief that he has sold out a fight, the gamblers and racketeers notwithstanding.

He goes to the Army, where because of his race he must serve in a separate unit, despite the fact that he has contended with men of all races in the most democratic phase of American life. Let us hope that Uncle Sam will treat Joe as well as he can, even in our color-caste Army.

A Republican Laocoon

I became convinced last year that Wendell Willkie was a "wooden horse" for the New Deal to accomplish the destruction of the Republican Party and am more confirmed in this conviction by each passing month. Walter Lippmann and Dorothy Thompson, who did more than any others to put him over on the Republican Convention, deserted him in the "middle of the stream," as many believe they planned to do all the time, and strangely enough, postulated their desertion of him on his "foreign policies."

Now Mr. Willkie announces his "opposition" to all Republican candidates for Congress who do not indorse the "Roosevelt foreign policies," and this is equivalent to his indorsement of the Roosevelt domestic policies also, because the New Deal's foreign and domestic policies are like a seamless garment; or Mr. Willkie can no more indorse the one without indorsing the other than he could shoot a hole through a plank without the bullet going through. What about Mr. Roosevelt's packing the Supreme Court and the entire Federal judiciary with ultra New Dealers, appointing Harry Hopkins to head the lease-lend program, and retaining Harold Ickes and making him oil dictator, Frances Perkins and a host of other semi-Reds, without one word of protest from Mr. Willkie? Is he man, mouse or monkey? He wanders out of his way to find things in the "Third New Deal" to indorse and support, but stumbles over multitudes of political and economic enormities of the Administration that appear to not even attract his attention, much less a protest!

What about the President's mooted plan to ask for suspension of the Congressional elections in 1942? Does Mr. Willkie stand ready to say "yes-yes-me-too" to that also—or even if he doesn't indorse it, remain silent about it, as he is doing about numerous other Administration enormities? Mr. Willkie may be too (?) patriotic to take note of it, but there are millions of loyal Americans who know that the New Deal Party is converting the defense program and every phase of the war psychology into self-serving propaganda to perpetuate itself in power. Does Mr. Willkie mean to say that in an instance where a Republican candidate for Congress stood head and shoulders over his New Deal opponent in ability and character, but was unable to fully indorse the "Roosevelt foreign policies," he (Willkie) would support the New Dealer regardless? Surely he does not mean to insult the manhood of the Republican Party by going that far? But if he does, then the Republican National Committee should meet and repudiate his leadership.

Vivisection

Your September 30 issue carries a letter against vivisection by Mrs. Biddle. I thoroughly agree with Mrs. Biddle and wish to quote numerous doctors who condemn vivisection. Says the late Dr. Walter R. Hadwen: "You cannot argue from animals to man. The anatomical and physiological distinctions . . . are so diverse." Dr. Bell, greatest specialist in human cancer: "I am convinced that experiments on animals have been the means of barring the way to progress." Sir Frederick Treves, physician to Queen Victoria, and an eminent abdominal surgeon, had to acknowledge that experiments on dogs had done little but unfit him to deal with human intestines. "How can you arrive at any conclusion with a gastric juice that can dissolve a bone?" Prof. James Garretson, M. D., senior professor of surgery, Medico-Chirurgical College, Philadelphia, says: "I am without words to express my horror of vivisection. It serves no purpose that is not better served after other manners." Lawson Tait: "I say without hesitation that I have been led astray again and again by results of experiments on animals, and I have had to discard them entirely." Our own Dr. William Hay, of Buffalo, N. Y., states: "If we have made any real progress in the treatment of disease during the last 50 years it is not due to the findings of the laboratories devoted to vivisection." While the late Prof. Henry J. Bigelow, M. D. LL.D., professor of surgery, Harvard University, states: "The law should interfere—there exists a case of cruelty to animals far transcending in its refinement and in its horror anything that has been known in the history of nations. There will come a time when the world will look back to modern vivisection in the name of science as they do now to burning at the stake in the name of religion."

In England vivisection is regulated and controlled. No medical student has been allowed to practice upon living animals since 1876. They obtain their technique by assisting older surgeons in operations. Vivisectors must register the number of times an animal has been used before, the object and result of the operation and whether he is using anesthetics. No human laws govern laboratories in the United States. Anesthetics are not used half the time. Morphia is used to quiet the animal without dulling pain. Animals are nailed down. Or curare is used, which paralyzes the muscles, leaving the nerves acutely sensitive. The animal cannot moan or move, yet suffers torture.

Russian Religious Liberty

Together with today's Post reporting our President's affirmations of religious liberty in Russia comes the Catholic Digest for October carrying an altogether different account.

So there is religious liberty in Russia! Would Mr. Roosevelt dare to tell his people the blasphemous contents of what was once Moscow's lovely cathedral, and which is now the No. 1 Anti-God Museum? Has the President really swallowed the Stalin "line" or is he merely stooping to the Soviet tactics?

Helping Hitler

Our present neutrality legislation is nothing less than a battlefield well planted with breastworks by prejudicial politicians who have isolated our national security upon this field of self-destruction.

Their further senseless propriety on the issue of neutrality has given greater strength to the already formidable fighting power of one paranoiac Hitler, thinking they were putting this Nation on the side of Providence, as well as by it preserving our state's honor.

Baby Walks

From the shelter of a low attic corner he stalked, not crawling but waddling on his hands and feet, stiff-legged, with his rear in the air. In the middle of the great bare room, where the sunlight shone brilliantly, he paused and rocked back on his haunches. He was remembering. Then he raised his hands from the floor. His feet were wide apart. Suddenly he was swinging his upper half into the air, returning to a vertiginous delight that he had known. His torso swayed perilously above his hips, but his braced legs held firm and his feet shuffled to keep the lower part of him underneath his toppling top. And here he was, in this fantastic new half world where one could see above low tables and the seats of chairs and sofas. Nothing was quite in focus—a whirling orbit of shapes and colors confronted him. He chuckled and dropped to his hands. That was enough for now.

The next long period he spent in the corner, pulling yarn hairs off the head of a doll. But every now and then he looked up at the patch of light and uttered a small sound. Memory was stronger in him than ever before.

At last he sighed—blowing out his breath completely through pursed lips—and set the doll down carefully beside him. First on hands and knees and then on hands and feet, he advanced toward the center of the floor. His top swung up automatically, and this time he held the pose for a moment that lengthened into an eon of experience. Down he went, but he was up again and still looking straight ahead. Something blue and almost spherical was in the field of his vision. He reached out for it, but his hand met only air, and he leaned forward. His feet moved to catch up, and when they did, he over-corrected and stumbled back again. Then forward—stump-stump-stump.

Then he collapsed. But in that instant he had found direction, and he never entirely relinquished it. All through the morning, intermittently, he practiced, rising and stumping two or three steps forward. Sometimes he sat down hard. Once he dove sidewise. He had reverses—as he got more tired, he found it harder to do the things he had learned. He moaned to himself a little about that. But at that point he heard a footstep on the stairs, a familiar and patient footstep. Forgetting all about his new talent, he scooted along the floor to the head of the steps.

While he was being carried, though, he straightened in the encircling arms. He chuckled. His chuckle was answered, but he did not pay any heed. His mind was far away on business of his own. Mam-mam laughed outright, shook him to and fro, and said words of wonder. But even this impressed him only distantly.

The motion was on a level now. He wriggled to be put down. Mam-mam spoke wonderingly again, but he only wriggled, so she put him down. He elevated his bottom and went a little way on all fours, then sat to think it out. Mam-mam was waiting. He took three more strides, on hands and feet. That was not it. Things were different here. He was confused.

Finally he risked all on one effort, raised himself from the floor with a surge, and fell elephantinely. All was done. He had failed and he was hurt in soul and body. Screams rent his throat, sickening his head, dimmed his eyes. Mam-mam snatched him from the black pit, wondering softly aloud, and carried him away.

Now he was in his bath. He rocked and felt the water lap his skin. He submerged his chin and drank. He sat and ladled up handfuls which dripped off in bright jewels. The sun was here too. Slowly the tension soaked out of him, the clean new energy streamed in.

Hands appeared. He took them and swung aloft. The towel was about him but he would not hold still. He twisted and squirmed and laughed aloud. Mam-mam laughed too and he laughed back, but this was not just the aimless laughter between him and Mam-mam. In it there was an insistence, an individuality. Mam-mam still laughed, and this time with a certain respect.

"What's got into you, youngun?" she asked. He laughed again, and louder, rolling over on his stomach and crawling backward out of her grasp. She let him go to the edge of the bed, then lifted him down.

He wasted no time. In a trice he was up off his hands, and with his arms flailing, he set out for the opposite side of the room—stump-stump - stump - stump-stump-stump . . . it seemed he would never stop going, half falling and catching up with himself as he ran. And when at last he was ready to slip to the floor, Mam-mam was there to take him, as breathless as he was and gasping with excitement.

She lifted him high in the air, swung him around, laughing and laughing with him.

"So that's what you wanted to show me!" she shouted. Then:

"Honey! Honey! Baby's walked! He took 15 steps the first time!"

The Oil Shortage

By Ernest Lindley

Facts Show Need To Save

ANY APPRAISAL of the Eastern oil "shortage" is subject to a wide margin of error. The facts on which a conclusion must be based are still disputed by experts. Some, indeed cannot be ascertained at present. One is the weather.

LINDLEY

In the words of a well-informed oil man:

"If the winter is severe there probably will be a shortage of fuel oil for heating, but not of gasoline, since heavy snows always cut down motor traffic. If the winter is mild, there probably will be a shortage of gasoline, but not of fuel oil."

Either way, it should be noted, this man thinks a shortage is probable. An informal canvass reveals that among others with first-hand knowledge, some are less, some more, positive that an oil shortage is creeping up on the Atlantic seaboard.

AMID the confusion of experts, the most that a lay observer can assert with confidence is:

(1) Petroleum Coordinator Ickes badly bungled his approach to the public. This may have been due to an habitual weakness: a yearning for the spotlight, vented through overstatement.

(2) Senator Maloney blundered as badly, if not worse, in informing the public that the shortage was only one in the "surplus." Literally this was true as of the moment, but it left the misleading impression that Ickes' pleas for conservation had been unwarranted.

(3) Ickes has supplied a valuable corrective in his slashing counterattack on his critics, and especially on J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, who said there were enough idle tank cars to handle the situation.

By nature a gladiator, Ickes seemed to be more interested in destroying Pelley than in giving the public a full, rounded explanation of the East Coast petroleum problem. Pelley may be able to produce the 20,000 railroad tank cars he said were idle. But Ickes has not been able to find them. And at least one important railroad man who has made no public criticism thinks Pelley put his neck out foolishly.

AFTER the experiences of Pelley and Budd with railroad rolling stock, the electrical industry with electric power, Stettinius and Knudsen with steel, and Wickard with farm products—not to mention a host of lesser lights—only the toughest, or blindest, of men will stake his reputation on the assertion that, during this war, there is or will be enough of anything. Arithmetically, the man who says there will be enough may be nearer right than the prophet who ever estimates needs by 50 per cent. But in substance he is wrong, and the man who has clamored for expansion or conservation or any other remedy for a shortage is right.

Ickes remained blurry about the mustering of additional transportation. Very likely, Pelley's 20,000 tank cars are not available. There are many alternatives mentioned by Ickes himself. They include: the increased use of barge transportation via coastal canals and the inland waterways system; The reversing of pipelines, trucks and tank cars now used to carry refined petroleum products from East Coast refineries to points further west; Admiral Land's proposal to build ocean-going barges of concrete.

ICKES said Land's barges would require steel, like Ickes' pipeline, which SPAB has vetoed. He did not point out that the barges would require much less steel, or that they could be built and put into use in a few months.

Of more importance to the Nation as a whole is Ickes' assertion that refining capacity, particularly for high-octane gasoline, is inadequate. Foreign demand for September for 100-octane gasoline was equal to our entire production. Not only airplanes, but medium tanks, equipped with airplane engines, need high-octane gasoline. As both planes and tanks come off the assembly lines in larger numbers, this problem will become more acute.

WHEN the whole picture is surveyed, there is no room for complacency. Ickes seldom is satisfied with a fact when he can reach for an epithet. But this is a time when it is safer to string along with the men who warn that there is not enough than with those—almost invariably wrong until now—who aver that there is.

It is hard to escape from Ickes' basic reasoning: Total petroleum stocks on the East Coast have been running substantially under those on hand last year. Consumption has risen by about 10 per cent. Total transportation capacity available for carrying oil to the East Coast has declined: by 20 per cent or more. This adds up to a shortage some time in the near future: unless consumption is cut or more transportation capacity is mustered.

If the case had been presented to the public in this way in the first instance the need for precautionary conservation methods would have been appreciated. What methods to adopt would have remained perplexing. While almost every citizen stands ready, undoubtedly, to bear his share of the restriction necessary, few want to be penalized while their neighbors are not. Between unlimited use and individual rationing—which is difficult in itself—it is not easy to find a fair and effective middle way of curbing consumption.

Dirksen Backs Creation Of Ceiling on D. C. Rents

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The general proposition that Washington rents should be held at a "fair" level by writing a rent ceiling into law last night had the indorsement of Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois, who in District affairs is conceded to be the minority leader.

Dirksen's stand on the subject made it virtually certain that rent-control legislation in some form will be favorably reported by the District Defense subcommittee. The subcommittee is scheduled to start executive sessions at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday on three rent bills on which it held hearings for several months.

Dirksen said he believes a control bill should be put in final form and presented to the House without delay.

"Let's do it now and not wait," he said. "If we are going to do anything about rents it is essential that we meet the emergency now."

Pointing out that he has been conducting a "kind of one-man crusade" against rising living costs in Washington by moving non-defense Federal agencies to other cities, Dirksen conceded that whatever has or may be done in the way of decentralization could only be partially effective because of the continued influx of defense workers.

There are two ways, he said, to attack rising rents. One, he stated, is by putting the law of supply and demand into operation by reducing the size of the Federal payroll. The other, he added, is to fix rents by "legislative fiat."

Decentralization, he said, has little hope of success, so "we will have to submit to the other method."

Dirksen declared that he likes the theory of a bill supported by Washington real estate interests which would freeze rents at the September, 1940, level. He said the bill's terms are simple and clear and for this reason a measure of this sort should obviate much of the litigation that made ineffective the World War I rent commission.

The legislator added, however, that he is not yet convinced that the September "ceiling" would be a fair one. His second criticism of the bill was that the measure does not apply to transients.

"I can see no reason why transients should be gouged," he said.

"A proper rent-control bill," Dirksen continued, "should be fair to tenant, real estate management, and also to the little fellows who have invested in property and who can only be protected if rentals are fair."

His experience on the House committee that investigated real estate reorganizations several years ago, he said, demonstrated that in many instances holders of real estate bonds, frequently elderly persons with small investments, were "entirely wiped out by the distress of 1933 and 1934."

In determining a fair rent ceiling, Dirkson said, consideration should be given only to local factors and not to conditions in other cities. He urged that a ceiling be picked "that fits the District."

Dirkson also gave his support to witnesses before the subcommittee who maintained that a rent-control administrator shoud be appointed by the District Commissioners.

Fair Enough

The Dominant East

I DON'T KNOW what should be done about this, but it is a fact that the weight of editorial opinion and the bulk of our domestic news originate in New York and Washington. News flows from East to West and from the Far West to the East in smaller volume. But the Midwest and Northwest and South are relatively unimportant newsfields. Perhaps these blank areas produce no more news than we publish, but that seems a lame explanation, for they are full of American people and these sections are always sending to Washington, along with their quota of mountebanks and clowns, a fair number of substantial men.

It is a misfortune that the National Capital is irrevocably planted on the Eastern Seaboard, and certainly if we had it to do over again now, starting as a new Nation, we would not select Washington, D. C. As a site, Indianapolis or Peoria would be much more logical and, in the matter of climate, neither would be any worse than Washington.

The cosmic columnists, of whom I happen, somehow, to be one, all live and work in New York or Washington and cannot escape Easternization because the influences around us are such that detachment is impossible. Most of us take little refresher trips, but only as tourists living out of our baggage and restless to sleep in our own beds, and those of us who came from elsewhere originally cannot recapture familiarity with old interests between trains or planes.

In the Middle West some people insist that we of the East Coast, and particularly of New York and Washington, cannot take a correct view of the peril of war because we consider ourselves to be right under the guns and visualize bombardment in Bridgeport and Bayonne. I doubt that this is the feeling of many Easterners, but there is no doubt that the fumes of propaganda from Europe are stronger hereabouts and that our sympathies and antipathies are sharper, whether with good reason or without. Anyway, people hereabouts are more aware of the war and some peril to this country. Possibly our position is advantageous and we are right, while the more calm Americans of other sections are victims of their geographical remoteness.

I don't know, but I do believe there is a field for a good cosmic columnist or editorial writer based on, say, St. Louis or New Orleans or St. Paul. Chicago is pretty well represented by Frank Knox, who can give out editorially from the interventionist side both as Secretary of the Navy, speaking for the Administration, and in the Chicago Daily News, and by R. R. McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, in his weekly lesson on the air and in print. But, how come the editorial opinion of the New York Tribune or Times is deemed to be quotable on some momentous issue and not the opinion of the Idaho Statesman or the—I was going to suggest some paper in Wyoming, but I can't even remember the name of one? It could be that none, or few of the papers out yonder, have anyone who can do a good column or editorial. I read dozens of local papers when I take my hulk on tour and I find that they are pretty dull locally and heavily stocked with Eastern canned goods, such as this.

PACIFIC COAST news, particularly union stuff, bucks the trend from the East to West in pretty good volume nowadays, but there are no daily writers there whose interpretation or opinion breaks through our service. I am ignoring the Hollywood trash, of course, and discussing informative comment on events.

Of course, it could be worse. In fact, until a few years ago it was much worse. When I was a cub on the United Press our wire stopped at Denver, and I had a job of condensing the important parts of the report, eliminating all nonessential stuff, into skeletonized form for transmission to San Francisco by Western Union, collect. We got very little stuff back from San Francisco. In St. Louis and Dallas for days at a time I would offer no local or regional news to the wire, and a man who covered Tom Mooney's trial in San Francisco for Hearst tells me that he used to offer, say, 500 at night, and be told to cut it to 150. Then by the time the story got past Chicago, Eastbound, it would have been cut still more. Thus, he says, the Mooney story was shoved around the world to New York via Russia by the Communists, and I can believe that because his anecdote ties in with something that George Creel told me. Creel said that after the revolution of 1917, Dave Francis, the Ambassador in Petrograd, sent a cable to the State Department asking, "Who is Tom Mooney? They are heaving bricks at the embassy demanding that he be saved."

THE State Department didn't know and Creel, who happened to catch the message at the White House, told them and advised President Wilson to intercede and save Mooney's life, so that the Bolsheviks would get back in there and kill some more Germans, which Wilson did.

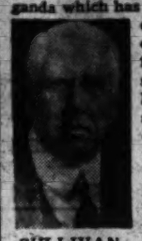
I just don't see why New York or Washington opinion is more important or better than opinion in Sioux Falls, but I can't imagine a New York paper running a daily column under a Sioux Falls date line.

Russian Constitution

By Mark Sullivan

Mr. Roosevelt's Press Statement

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, at a press conference last Tuesday, participated in a bit of propaganda which has been widely discussed. The discussion has focused almost solely on what Mr. Roosevelt said at the press conference. Better understanding may be promoted by reciting the whole of the incident.



SULLIVAN

The circumstances were these: There is in Washington a Polish Ambassador. (That is, Ambassador of the exiled Polish government in London. Poland as a country ceased to exist in 1939, when it was overrun by Hitler and Stalin, at that time in agreement, who divided the country between them.)

The Polish Ambassador wrote a letter to Secretary of State Hull, to be conveyed to President Roosevelt. The letter said that Russia (which previously oppressed the Poles harshly) has now granted certain privileges to Poles. The Poles referred to are mainly those who had been deported into Russia at the time Poland was conquered. These deportees are about the only Poles that Russia now has control of, except perhaps some scattered communities. The part of Poland which Russia got at the time she divided the country between herself and Germany has now been taken by Germany.

TO the Poles in Russia, Stalin has granted—so the Ambassador says—"freedom of worship for both Christians and Jews. . . . A Polish Catholic Church is about to be opened in Moscow, as well as a synagogue for Polish Jews."

The purpose of Stalin is obvious. He wants the Poles in Russia to join the Russian army and otherwise help in the war against Germany. And he wants to encourage the Poles in what was formerly Poland, not held by Germany, to resist Germany, practice sabotage and otherwise be of help to Russia.

That, of course, was the motive of Stalin in granting religious freedom to the Poles. But what was the motive of the Polish Ambassador in telling Secretary Hull and President Roosevelt about it? And what was the motive in making the letter public?

ABOUT this we can only surmise. The letter and the publication of it, we can safely assume, was for effect on American public opinion—especially at this moment when there is in Congress a bill involving whether we shall give lease-lend aid to Russia the same as to Britain. The purpose, we can assume, was to make Poles in America, formerly haters of Russia and Communism, now feel kindly. It was to make Polish Catholics and all other Catholics in America feel that maybe the hatred of Communism for religion has changed. There has already been some effect, by our own Government at Washington, to allay hostility felt by some Catholics toward Russia and Communism. Some of the effort has been public, as the letter of Catholic Supreme Court Justice Murphy advising Catholics to support the Administration's attitude toward Russia. Some of the effort has not been made public.

On the day the letter of the Polish Ambassador was published, President Roosevelt had a press conference. Mr. Roosevelt spoke of the letter. He asked the correspondents to read Article 124 of the Russian Constitution. He said in effect that the status of religion in Russia is the same as in the United States.

Persons who looked up the Russian constitution found that article 124 reads in part: "Freedom of religious worship, and freedom of antireligious propaganda, is recognized for all citizens." That is a long way from the guarantee of religious freedom in the Constitution of the United States.

PERSONS familiar with Russia said that the whole Russian constitution was adopted largely to delude opinion outside Russia, and that Communist practice does not pretend to conform to the pseudo-constitution. The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh S. J., stationed in Russia in 1922 and ever since a student of Russian affairs, recited in detail the harsh persecutions of all religions by the "frankly atheistic government" of Russia. "The Catholic clergy," Father Walsh said, "has been practically annihilated."

In the light of this, Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that freedom of religion in Russia is the same as in the United States was described by Methodist Bishop Raymond J. Wade of Detroit in words perhaps too angry as "utterly misleading" and "obviously untrue."

Subsequent developments included a theory that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to persuade the Communists to be tolerant toward religion. Presumably, Mr. Roosevelt starts with the wish to help Russia against Hitler, and wishes the American people to support that policy. To get this support is no doubt the purpose of whatever it is that is now going on. The American people, seeing things go on that they do not fully understand, will probably preserve a careful distinction between help to Russia against Hitler and, on the other hand, Communism. Dealing with Communism the rule is keep your feet on the ground, and your fingers crossed.

The Gallup Poll

'Shoot at Sight' Policy Approved By Sizeable Vote in Final Poll Returns

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 2.—Final returns in a coast-to-coast check-up of public sentiment on President Roosevelt's "shoot at sight" order indicate that this measure is one of the most widely approved of all Administration steps yet taken to cope with the foreign crisis.

First returns in the survey, as reported last week, showed that, among persons with an opinion on the issue, 56 per cent favored the shoot at sight policy, while 34 per cent disapproved and 10 per cent expressed no opinion. Final returns indicate an even higher vote of approval. The issue was put to voters by the Institute as follows:

"In general, do you approve or disapprove of having the United States Navy shoot at German submarines or warships on sight?"

Final Returns

Approve	62%
Disapprove	28
No opinion	10

If all voters with an opinion on the issue are taken as one group, the division of sentiment is 69 per cent for shoot on sight, to 31 per cent opposed.

The naval shooting policy is one which has the support of a majority of voters even in those sections of the country where isolationist sentiment has heretofore been the strongest—the East Central section (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan) and the West Central States (Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota).

As on all previous issues dealing with the war, the South shows the highest interventionist vote in today's study. The sectional picture of public opinion follows:

	Shoot On sight	Approve Disapprove	Undecided
New England and Mid-Atlantic	61%	29%	10%
East Central	56	35	9
West Central	56	31	13
South	78	15	7
Far West	64	27	9

Wendell Willkie has consistently backed President Roosevelt's foreign policy and has been criticized by many other Republican leaders for doing so. On the shoot at sight policy, however, the poll shows that a majority of the rank and file of Republican voters are in agreement with the President, although their favorable vote is not as large as among the Democratic electorate. The division of sentiment on the shooting policy among persons who voted Republican at the last national election is as follows: approve 56 per cent, disapprove 36 per cent, undecided 8 per cent. Among persons who voted Democratic at the last election, the attitude regarding the shooting policy is 68 per cent approve, 22 per cent disapprove and 10 per cent no opinion.

Press Ownership Of Radio Termed Menace to Liberty

By the Associated Press

A contention that newspaper ownership of radio stations endangers the Bill of Rights was advanced yesterday by Morris L. Ernst, a witness at hearings by the Federal Communications Commission to determine future policy toward newspaper applications for broadcasting licenses.

Ernst is counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, but he said he did not represent the union or any other organization in his appearance before the commission.

As a writer and lecturer on civil liberties, Ernst said he believed "diversity" of ownership of all mediums of expression was necessary to assure their free use. Newspaper ownership of radio, he asserted, constituted a "bottleneck" in the "pipelines to the market place of thought."

Defense And Politics

Mixture Sickens Willkie

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 2.—Wendell L. Willkie today charged the Administration with political manipulation in time of emergency and faltering handling of the defense program.

Writing in the current American magazine, Willkie said he was "sickened by the amount of sheer political finagling going on when the very life of our country is at stake."

At the same time, he declared: "we may find fault with Mr. Roosevelt or disagree with Mr. Churchill, but I insist that no real American can take issue with what they are presently fighting for—the preservation of democracy."

Willkie suggested a housecleaning of the Republican Party which would result in a new political alignment with Independents and Democrats in both the South and the North.

"POLITICAL manipulations in a period of emergency," Willkie wrote, "becloud the Democratic record, to say the least, and this record, together with the faltering manner in which the national defense effort has been conducted, give the Republican Party one of the greatest opportunities of its history—the opportunity to step forward and carry the banner of national defense and world freedom.

"But there is an indispensable 'if' here," he adds. "This leadership can be achieved only if the Republicans, under that or some other name, will clean house of mere political obstructionists and the remnants of an outdated Toryism on domestic issues. Thus common cause can be made in a new political alignment with millions of independents and Democrats in both the South and the North."

Taking cognizance of critics who asserted that he had gone over to the Democratic Party, Willkie declared, "I have no connection with the Administration and am in disagreement with many of its domestic policies and disgusted with its methods of handling the defense effort."

"LIFELONG Republicans can remember with satisfaction that traditionally the Republican Party has been the party of world outlook, not the party of aloofness and isolation," Willkie wrote. "It cannot be the party which has merely criticized and delayed. American history provides ample proof that negation and compromise in periods of national emergency are tantamount to political suicide.

"The moral is obvious: the party that pussyfoots, opposes and obstructs during a national emergency, writes its own death warrant; but the party that cooperates and encourages national unity, survives with colors flying high.

"The choice stands clearly before the Republican Party today. I, for one, do not wish to see the party languish and die through a policy of bigotry, short-sightedness and senseless negation."

Efforts to Sway Eire On War Issue Decried

The United Irish Societies of Washington yesterday made public a resolution condemning efforts by individuals or groups in the United States to "influence" the Irish government in its attitude toward the war.

Just as the United States demands the right to chart its own course of action, the resolution said, so people in this country ought to concede that right to any other sovereign state.

Although no names were mentioned, the resolution was clearly aimed at an organization recently formed here—the American Irish Defense Committee, which, in the words of Rossa Downing, the chairman, seeks to "convince Mr. De Valera that cooperation with the United States to overcome the dictatorial and tyrannical menace which now threatens the entire world is to the advantage of Eire."

James T. McCarthy, chairman of the United Irish Societies, said yesterday that members of the societies were squarely behind the United States Government in any action it took and they were hoping for the defeat of Hitler and Mussolini.

The resolution, adopted at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel, recognizes "the dangerous and most serious position in which Ireland, through no fault of her own, finds herself at this moment."

"For the first time in Irish recorded history," the resolution says, "all differing political parties in Ireland have unitedly and steadfastly supported the government in its determination to maintain strict neutrality . . . They have given the Irish government every help within their power to make such neutrality strong and effective." It continues, in part:

"The United Irish Societies of Washington do most strongly deprecate any action by any individual or party or any body of men or women in this country, having as their motive the advising or instructing or in any way whatsoever trying to influence the Irish government to take any action other than that which they themselves deem most appropriate.

"We demand this elemental right of freedom of action for our own United States Government. We cannot, therefore, in simple justice and decency ask less for the government of another sovereign state."

Can Italy Be Knocked Out?

IN HIS BOOK, "The World Crisis," Winston Churchill tells of a visit he made to the center of the French line in front of Compiegne on the evening of June 8, 1918. A little more than five months later the armistice was to be signed. But few on the Allied side ever anticipated so speedy a denouement of the bloody drama that had been ushered in four years earlier.

NOVER

"The martial might of Germany," writes Churchill, "lay heavy on all. The sense of grappling with a monster of seemingly unfathomable resources and tireless strength, invulnerable—since slaughter even on the greatest scale was no deterrent—could not be excluded from the mind. No one hoped for a swift result."

NO ONE EXPECTS a swift result now. Yet who can tell? The chances are that many months must elapse before the balance of military power definitely begins to swing in favor of the Allies. A rapid collapse of the towering structure of German power cannot wholly be excluded from our calculations.

That structure appears to be enormously impressive. At the most conservative estimate the Nazis have suffered casualties totaling close to two million men in the fighting on the Eastern Front. They have used up vast quantities of materiel. Yet after more than three months of titanic conflict they give no evidence of exhaustion.

This is particularly noticeable in the Eastern Ukraine where they are now hammering at the gates of Kharkov. And Mr. Churchill himself, in a speech which was distinctly on the optimistic side, emphasized that Germany still has sufficient military strength not only for the maintenance of ample forces in Russia but also for ventures in the Mediterranean, West Africa and against Great Britain.

THE FIRST indications of German weakness in 1918 occurred not at the center but along the periphery. Germany was the last of the Central Powers to crack; before she did Turkey, Bulgaria and Austria-Hungary had been knocked out. When these allies of imperial Germany sued for peace the heart went out of the German war effort.

In this particular there is a possibility, if thus far only a faint possibility, that history may repeat itself. For Germany's allies are even weaker than those she had at her side between 1914 and 1918, their hearts are even less in the fight.

In Finland, less ally than associate, voices are being raised that the time has come to explore the possibilities of a separate peace with Russia. Germany may balk such a Finnish effort to get out of the war now that she has recaptured most of the territory she lost in 1940. But an ally that has to be kept in the fight by force is hardly an ally that can be depended on.

In Rumania the losses that have been sustained in the fight against Russia have aroused widespread discontent. In Bulgaria the situation is so explosive that German pressures on that country to enter the struggle have eased somewhat during recent days. But the greatest danger for Hitler is that to be found in Italy, his oldest ally.

ITALY WAS physically and morally unprepared for the war into which Mussolini plunged her. She has suffered an almost unbroken succession of disasters during the year. Her armies have been cut to pieces in Greece, Albania, Libya and Ethiopia. Her fleet is in tatters. And now the Italian people are under notice from their government that during the coming winter their meager rations are to be drastically reduced with the likelihood that they will be cold as well as hungry.

Practically all the fuel that Italy has to import now comes from Germany and the German system of transportation has been so demoralized by the needs arising out of the Russian war and the effect of British bombings that only a third of the coal that Italy requires will be sent to her from the Reich.

Two things keep Italy in the war. One is the grip which Hitler has on the peninsula. His agents are everywhere. They operate the secret police; they are present in every bureau; they give the orders. Then there is the Fascist bureaucracy. It is incompetent and graft-ridden but the Fascists still possess the instrumentalities of power and they are also ruthless.

To the Italian people the alliance with Germany is an unmitigated evil; to the Fascist jobholders, from Mussolini down, it holds out the only hope they have of being able to retain even the shadow of power. Yet they are a thoroughly discredited lot and were the German support relaxed fascism would soon collapse in the peninsula.

There is no likelihood that the Germans will, if they can help it, voluntarily ease their grip on Italy. There is a possibility, however, that pressures from without may set up pressures inside Italy which will ultimately result in knocking that country out as a belligerent. At the very least that would force Germany further to extend her military control and thus spread her army thinner; under favorable circumstances Italy might serve the Allies as a base of operations against the Third Reich.

That is why the intensification of R. A. F. bombings of Italian cities has an importance far beyond any damage they may do to Italian industries. That is why events that may soon unfold in Egypt and Libya, if the plans of a British offensive do not go awry, may have an important bearing on the outcome of the war.

Italy is the weakest link of the Axis chain. To knock her out of the war would enormously accelerate the decline of German power, weaken German morale and hasten the day of victory for the Allies.

Japanese And Vichy Envoys May Be Ousted From Iran

By the Associated Press

Teheran, Iran, Oct. 2.—The Japanese and Vichy French legations soon may be compelled to leave Teheran because of British-Russian displeasure, it was reported today.

The Iran government has suspended the Japanese Legation's diplomatic code privileges and immunity of its mail and diplomatic pouches.

The Japanese Legation, as in Cairo where British and Egyptian authorities have imposed restrictions, must send messages in clear language through Russian censorship.

The big issue with the Japanese Legation was over the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, anti-British refugee from the Holy Land, because it is charged the Japanese Legation here gave him at least temporary asylum. The British have demanded that he be surrendered.

The British have indicated they hope a British-Russian treaty of alliance with Iran will be accepted soon by Moscow. Iran's acceptance is regarded as certain.

The treaty was understood to stipulate that the Allied troops are in this country to defend it. Unofficial reports say the Iran army would be bound by the agreement to fight side by side with the British and Russians.

Pictures showing battle-scarred British warships undergoing repairs in United States Navy yards were released in Washington yesterday. Made by Associated Press staff photographers Tuesday, they were reviewed by the naval attache at the British Embassy, the Washington office of the British Press Service and the Navy Department before release.

Shown here are the cruiser Dido, in the Brooklyn Navy Yard; the submarine Pandora, at Portsmouth, N. H., where the undersea fighter Parthian and the Free French submarine Surcouf, largest in the world, are also laid up; the aircraft carrier Illustrious, veteran of the Mediterranean, being repaired in the Portsmouth (Va.) Navy Yard along with the aircraft carrier Formidable.

British officers of the two plane carriers were pictured in their informal shorts and knee-length stockings enjoying a tete-a-tete at the Norfolk (Va.) Navy Yard.

CONGRESSMEN WATCH ENGINEERS FERRY TANK ACROSS STREAM AT BELVOIR

The Army Shows Congress

How to Stop Blitzkrieg

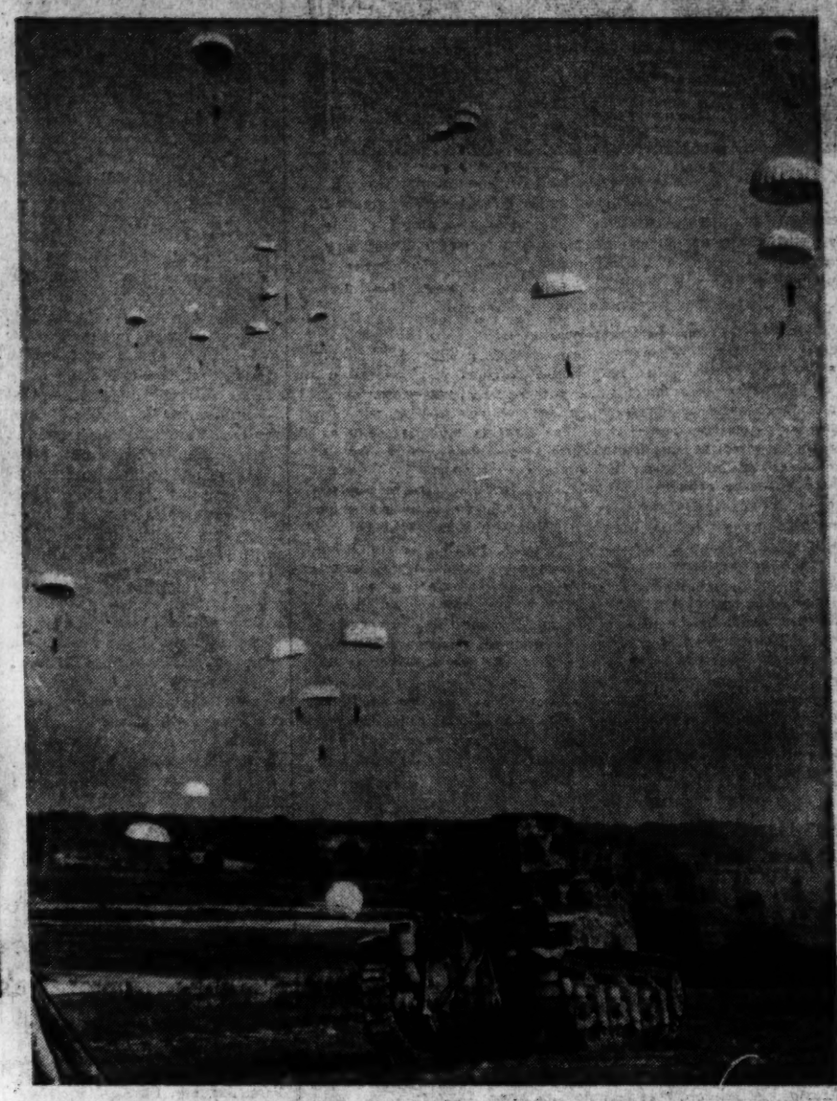
By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Fort Belvoir, Va., Oct. 2. Parachute troops, dive-bombers and panzers cried "uncle" today as the Army showed Vice President Wallace and 200 members of Congress how it would stop a blitzkrieg.

The new weapons with which the Nazis mopped up Europe met their master in two spectacular "battles" here this afternoon. A well-rounded force, employing strong defense aviation, tank-destroyers and plenty of artillery did the job.

It was all staged by the Army, of course, but the officials in charge had a purpose. They believe they have the answer to the blitzkrieg and wanted to show it to the assembled Congressmen, Latin-American military attaches and the press.

The answer, officials in charge declared repeatedly, is the development of perfect teamwork between all arms of the services. Infantry, artillery, armored forces, planes, light mechanized cavalry and strong antitank units combined into one well-trained military machine can do the job, they emphasized.



PARATROOPS SPEARHEAD TANK ATTACK ON BLUE FORCES

Representative Margaret Chase Smith (Republican), of Maine, spins controls of antiaircraft searchlight. Capt. Roy A. Corby showed her how equipment worked

Some 400 guests watched the two-hour show with intense interest. Detachments of every type of modern military unit were employed during the two-hour spectacle, in which bridges were blown up and rebuilt, pill-boxes were destroyed, and artillery and machine-gun fire filled the air for miles with noise and smoke.

Highlight of the "battles," as far as the spectators were concerned, was the mass parachute jump almost over the reviewing hill. Thirty-five "paratroops" descended from three large transports in an attempt to capture a strategic bridge.

They went into action quickly with only one mishap—one man landing in a tree—but failed in their objective. The Army's scenario called for the destruction of the bridge by defending troops and the capture of the 'chutists by scout car units. This was realistically carried out by the defender's engineer demolition squads and mechanized cavalary.

Twelve dive-bombers came over in several waves during the "fighting," dropping down almost perpendicularly from out of the clouds. Each plane seemed to be almost in our laps before the pilot pulled it out and leveled off just short of the ground.

Besides the "battles," the visitors observed the training of selectees at the Engineer Replacement Center here and showed much interest in an exhibit of all of the Army latest weapons and equipment.

Lunch was served to the guests in the open from Army field kitchens.

Afterwards, the first "battle" got underway. Officers explained that it was designed to demonstrate the tactics and technique of antitank units defending against armored forces supported by dive-bombers. First mine-laying engineer trucks of the defenders sowed the battlefield with their deadly cargo, and antitank guns were placed in hidden positions.

As the tanks approached, the battle was on. Additional antitank units came up to support the defenders and the attacking panzers brought up their artillery. The former threw in more artillery, and the attackers called on their dive-bombers. The battle ended when a strong force of tank-destroyers came into action and surrounded the tanks.

The main battle involved an attack by an infantry battalion supported by artillery, mechanized cavalry, tanks, air force and parachute troops. It opened with an artillery barrage and an advance by the infantry, using machine guns and mortars. They were stopped the GHQ tanks were brought into action.

When these latter were stopped by heavy antitank fire, the attacking force called its air force for support. Dive-bombers came into action, and were met by the defending force's pursuit interceptors, which drove them away.

With the antitank units "softened up," the advance continued, taking the form of a pincers movement, until a row of pill-box forts similar to those used in the Maginot Line were encountered. Tanks attacked these—filled with "assumed" defenders—from the front while flame-throwers and demolition squads approached from the rear. Under the cover of the flame-thrower, a demolition charge was set against the pill-box and it exploded with a thunderous roar.

The pill-boxes were blown up one by one, and then the parachutists, protected by fighter planes, dropped from the skies. After they were captured by mechanized cavalry, engineers threw a temporary bridge across the stream and the tanks continued their attack.

They ran into a trap, however, laid by the defending commander. Heavy, point-blank artillery fire from hidden positions stopped them, and tank-destroyers came up to encircle the attackers. The battle ended in a final crescendo of fire, and when the smoke cleared away it was announced that all of the tanks had been destroyed.

Police Seek 3 Men, Woman Seen With Rivers' Assailant

EX-GOVERNOR AND WIFE CLUBBED—Former Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia examines bruise on his wife's head at their Lakeland home yesterday. The two fought off a lone man who entered their home through a ruse, clubbed the couple and later killed himself when cornered. The attacker, identified as Horace W. Bikle, a former teacher, had attempted a kidnap plot, police said

By International News Service

Valdosta, Ga., Oct. 2.—The real motive that led a former Pittsburgh (Pa.) school teacher to attempt to kidnap former Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia was sought by police tonight as they studied the suicide and ransom notes left by Horace W. Bikle, the would-be abductor.

Bikle, who broke into Rivers' home late last night by a ruse and fired three wild shots in a vain attempt to force the former executive to leave with him, turned his gun on himself when cornered by police.

Authorities, ascribing the bizarre incident to Bikle's hatred of politicians in general, pressed a hunt for three men and one woman who were seen at various intervals with Bikle prior to last night. They were still unidentified.

Rivers and his wife, who came to his aid while the former Governor was struggling with his assailant, were both struck over the head with a pistol during the encounter but neither was seriously injured.

The Georgia politician was unable to give any reason for the attack. A supporter of Federal Administration policies, he has been inactive in politics since his retirement from office last January.

The most revealing clue to Bike's actions was found in the suicide note he wrote hurriedly at a trailer camp where officers surrounded him and demanded his surrender.

"I have no designs against the life of the former Governor of the State," the note said. "My motive was not roberry but the futile attempt of a person crazed by the universal dishonesty and corruption of those whom the people have trusted . . ."

Injunction Urged In Boycott Fight

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—John Kirkland Clark, special master, found today that 11 electrical manufacturers were entitled to injunctive relief because of a boycott of their products by Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. L.)

Mothers Must Know Their Vitamins to Help Children

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor

DO YOU want your children to make a good showing at school? Of course you do, for it is the universal desire among parents. But it is the mothers who must know their ABC'c if their children are to have wide-awake minds.

Mother's ABC's stand for vitamins—for it is vitamins, along with minerals, carbohydrates and other foodstuffs that help to build healthy children. Dr. James A. Tobey widely known health authority says, "malnourished children go to school with a handicap. It's the well-nourished child who is usually the best scholar, the best athlete and a leader in his class."

Martha Ellyn

That puts a good share of the responsibility directly on mothers, so let's get down to lunch facts. That Washington mothers are giving consideration to their childrens' lunches is shown by the menus and nourishing dishes they suggest in their entries in this month's Post Recipe Contest, the theme of which is "School Lunches." These menus are brimming with ideas about nutritious school lunches, the kind to be carried to school and the type that mother can serve when the hungry little ones come home at noontime.

Mrs. Jay Lawlor, 1627 Thirty-fifth Street Northwest, winner of the first prize of $10 is the mother of three children of school age—Charles, 12, who goes to Gordon Junior High School, Barbara, 10, a student at Fillmore School and Ann, 5, who goes to kindergarten. These three lusty children require nourishing lunches. While they lunch mainly at home, yet on occasion Mrs. Lawlor packs lunches for Charles and Barbara to carry with them.

The following is the winning menu and two recipes suggested on the menu that wins for Mrs. Lawlor the first award.

Luncheon Menu

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Sandwich of Chopped Liver and Olive On Enriched Bread
Stuffed Tomato
Honey Custard Cup
Lacy Carrot Cookies
Milk

Mrs. Lawlor has made sure that the lunch will have a proper balance of nutrients, as she has included foods from three groups—"protective," "energy" and body-building" foods. Her recipe for liver sandwich and lacy carrot cookies follow:

Liver Sandwich — Brown ¼ pound liver in butter. Remove liver, cook and chop fine. Add ¼ cup chopped olives, blend mixture with mayonnaise and little salt and spread on enriched bread slices.

Lacy Carrot Cookies—Cream 1 cup butter or shortening and blend in 1 cup granulated sugar. Add 3 well beaten eggs. Mix and sift 3 cups sifted flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder and ¾ teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup chopped seedless raisins and1 cup chopped walnuts Add alternately with 1 cup grated uncooked carrots combined with the juice and rind of ½ lemon to creamed mixture. Drop from teaspoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, for 12 minutes. Makes 2 dozen cookies.

Mrs. John P. Hancock, LaPlata, Md., wins the second prize of $5 with the nutritious school lunch she packs for her children to take to school. The following is her menu:

Luncheon Menu

Veal and Raw Carrot Sandwich
Date and Nut Sandwich
Banana Milk Cookies.

The recipes for veal and carrot sandwich and brown rim cookies follow:

Veal and Carrot Sandwich—Put 1½ cups cooked veal, 1 small onion and 1 large carrot through the food chopper, using medium blade. Add ½ teaspoon lemon juice, salt and pepper, and enough mayonnaise to moisten the ingredients. This amount makes 1½ cups filling, enough for 6 large sandwiches. For 2 sandwiches make 1-3 the recipe.

Brown Rim Cookies—Mix 1 cup butter with 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add 2-3 cup sugar and 2 well beaten eggs. Beat thoroughly and add 2½ cups sifted flour and mix well. Drop from teaspoons on greased baking sheet. Bake in moderately hot oven, 350 degrees, for 8 to 10 minutes, until delicately browned. Makes about 4½ dozen cookies.

Mrs. Andrew G. Weaver, 3915 Fifth Street Northwest, the winner of the third prize of $3 believes in feeding her young son some sturdy food when he comes home from school for lunch. Her winning menu and recipes follow:

Luncheon Menu

Baked Macaroni Tomatoes
Cream Cheese—Chopped Olive on Whole Wheat Bread Sandwich
Cabbage and Apple Salad
Raisin Cookies Milk

Baked Macaroni Tomatoes—Prepare 6 medium sized tomatoes by scalding, peeling and hollowing them out. Invert to drain for 10 minutes. Sprinkle them on the inside with salt, then fill in with alternate layers of 1 medium (17-ounce) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese and 1 cup diced cooked ham. Wrap a strip of bacon around each tomato and fasten with a toothpick. Sprinkle rice flake crumbs over top. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, for 15 minutes or until bacon is thoroughly cooked and filling is heated through. Serves six.

Raisin Cookies—Rinse and drain 1½ cups seedless raisins. Cream 1 cup granulated sugar ½ cup butter and ½ cup shortening together. Add 1 cup light molasses and stir to blend. Add 3 beaten eggs and beat. Add 2 cups whole wheat flour and mix. Add the raisins and 1 teaspoon black walnut flavoring or vanilla extract, and stir to blend. Add 2 cups sifted white flour sifted with ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon cloves and 1 teaspoon cinnamon and beat. Drop by small spoonfuls (about 2 inches apart) onto lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in moderate oven, (350 degrees) about 15 minutes. Makes approximately 5 dozen medium-sized cookies.

The following are the ten $1 prize winners:

Mrs. Virginia Jennings,
2025 North Twentieth Road, Arlington, Va.
School Lunch Menu
Broiled Sandwich
Milk Tapioca
Peanut Butter Cookies

Broiled Luncheon Sandwich—Cut white bread in ¼ inch slices and trim off crusts. Spread lightly with butter. Cover bread with thin slices of American cheese. Then put slices of tomato on the cheese and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Lay 2 strips of bacon over the top. Place under the broiler and cook 6 to 8 minutes or until cheese is melted and bacon crisp.

Peanut Butter Cookies—Combine 1 cup shortening, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 cup peanut butter and mix well. Add 1 cup granulated sugar and 1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed, gradually and cream thoroughly. Add 2 well-beaten eggs and 1 tablespoon milk, mixing well. Sift 2 cups sifted flour with 1 teaspoon soda and add to first mixture, blending well. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet. Press cookies with a fork to flatten slightly. Bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes five dozen cookies.

Cream Cheese and Carrot Sandwiches
Fruit in Season
Honky Tonky Cookies Milk

Cream Cheese and Carrot Sandwich—Add grated carrots to cream cheese. Mix enough mayonnaise to moisten and easy to spread. Season with salt and pepper. Spread on whole wheat bread, add lettuce, cover with another piece of bread and cut in half.

Honky Tonky Cookies—Cream ½ cup butter and 1 cup sugar till fluffy. Add 1 egg and beat well. Sift flour before measuring to 2½ cups. Add ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon soda and sift once. Add part of the flour to creamed mixture and 2 tablespoons molasses. Lastly add the remaining flour. Mixture should be soft but not sticky. Drop by teaspoon on greased tin. With fork tines make ridges across the cookies, at the same time flattening them. Bake 8 to 10 minutes in moderate oven until lightly browned. Makes two and one-half dozen cookies.

Lawlor Trio Comes to Lunch

Mrs. Jay Lawlor gives her three children an ideal lunch when they come home from school "starved." Mushroom soup, a sandwich of chopped liver and olive on enriched bread, stuffed tomato, honey custard cup, lacey carrot cookies and milk give the Lawlor children plenty of pep for the playground and mental stimulus for the classroom. Barbara, left, Charles, center, and Ann, right, are thus insured an appealing, nutritious luncheon including the protective, energy and body-building foods. Their mother, standing, serves it to them out in the warm sunshine in their attractive backyard.

Tender Hot Cakes, Flavorsome Honey, For Sturdy Breakfast

No conscientious wife and mother ever forgets that the first meal of the day breaks a very long fast of 13 hours or more. Therefore, this meal should be replete with energy-restoring food, and one of the most valuable breakfast dainties for this purpose is honey. The sugar of honey is a pure, natural sugar which yields quick energy. But in addition, honey is also rich in iron and other valuable minerals. Best of all, however, a serving of honey greatly enhances the families enjoyment of griddle cakes.

National honey week is October 27 to November 2, so give the busy little bees that have made the honey the recognition they deserve by whipping up some cakes on which to eat the honey.

Corn Griddle Cakes—Sift 1 cup flour once, measure, add 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar, and sift again. Pour 1 cup boiling water over ½ cup corn meal and stir until smooth; let stand 15 minutes. Then add 2-3 cup thick, sour milk or buttermilk and 1 well-beaten egg; add to the flour mixture, beating only until smooth. Add 2 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening. Bake on hot, greased griddle. Serve with butter and honey. Makes about 18 cakes.

Orange-y Meringue

A mere smidgen of grated orange rind put into meringue used for topping chocolate flavored cakes, pies, puddings, gives a delightfully novel touch.

Matchless Garnish

To make a matchless garnish for hamburgers, cut Bermuda onions into very thin rings, pull apart and fry in deep fat.

A fine garnish for grilled meat and also a flavorsome filling for an omelette can be made from silver skinned onion, sliced thin, then dropped into rapidly boiling salted water. Acidulate with a very little lemon juice and boil uncovered for 5 minutes. Drain and add melted butter and paprika.

10 Properties Are Added To Tax Rolls

Additional properties, heretofore tax exempt, yesterday were ordered by the Commissioner to be returned to real estate tax rolls of the District.

The city heads acted on recommendations of a special investigation board headed by Budget Officer Walter Fowler, which for several months has been conducting a probe of local properties.

Ordered returned to tax lists were the following holdings:

The Jewish Foster Home, 3213 Q Street Northwest, on the basis that the property of this organization is now rented to the Self Help Exchange, the property being assessed at $32,910.

Land formerly owned by the French Republic, on the north side of Euclid Street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets Northwest, which was transferred, following France's capitulation, to Defense Home Corporation. The land is valued at $140,190.

Six houses owned by the Linthicum Institute of Georgetown, for educational purposes, which are now rented out. The houses have an assessed value of $43,620.

That portion of property owned by the Wilson Memorial Methodist Church at 734-756 Eleventh Street Southeast, which was held to be "excess land."

Three rented rooms of the property of the Christ Child Society, 606-610 Massachusetts Avenue Northeast. The board considered the balance of the property to be used for public charity and therefore tax exempt.

Two rooms of property listed to Opportunity for Service, Inc., 78 I Street Northwest, used by the Settlement House director for living quarters.

A dwelling owned by the Haven Methodist Church, 1627 C Street Southeast, which is rented.

Soldiers Step Out With Two Rockets

Pvt. James Steele and Corpl. Stanley Stapinski, of Fort Belvoir, Va., were given the opportunity last night of selecting any two of the Capital Theater Rhythm Rockets for a "chicken dinner date." The selectees selected Dorothy Sherman and Evelyn Foster, with whom they are shown at right. After introductions backstage, the foursome started out (below) on the dinner date

Boy! Sweet Are the Uses Of Publicity

And what soldier wouldn't like to take in the night spots with a shapely chorus girl?

Two of them did just that last night, with two chorus girls and the blessing of Fort Belvoir (Va.) morale officers.

The soldiers were selected by their unit commanders on a basis of soldiering ability, conduct and general appearance as the first to have the honor of stepping out with two Washington chorines. Subsequently, two more soldiers will be selected from Belvoir each week for a similar adventure until each of the 16 Capitol Theater "Rockets" has done her turn.

The theater provided the chorines and free tickets to the show; an automobile sales concern provided a car, also free; an eating place served a chicken dinner, likewise free, and drinks were on the house at a local bar.

The participants: Corpl. Stanley Stapinski, 22, a draftsman in Company B; Private James Stells, 23, a truck dispatcher in the Headquarters and Supply Company, both of the Thirtieth Engineers, Fort Belvoir; Evie Foster, tall, blonde chorine from Fredericksbuag, Va., and Dottie Sherman, diminutive brunette from New York City.

Stapinski is a former refrigerator sales clerk in a Pittsburgh Sears Roebuck Store. Stells was a Pittsburgh service station man. Stapinski was drafted seven months ago; Stells volunteered for a year about the same time.

The soldiers arrived backstage about 8 p. m. for the 8:30 date. Miss Foster came in at 8:30. It was nearly 9 before Miss Sherman turned up.

"I was walking by the National," she explained, "and got roped by a couple of cowboys from the Jolson show. That's all."

Hank Shields, assistant press agent of the theater, said he would go along on that date, with his camera, to see everything went all right.

"That is," he explained, "unless I'm told to vamoose."

With $40 in his pocket and $30 in the pocket of his fellow soldier (Wednesday was pay day), Private Stells informed reporters:

"You can rest assured. He'll be told."

It also was reported by the Commissioners that bus stops along Sixteenth Street Northwest would be relocated to the far side of intersections controlled by traffic lights or where there is a heavy volume of right turns.

'V-Men' Sought To Take Stump For Defense Drive

A corps of "V-Men," who must have both zeal and speaking talent, is being raised by the Central Volunter Bureau, District Council of Defense, it was announced yesterday at the headquarters, 501 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

The "V-Men" wanted will be the counterparts of the "Three Minute Men" who delivered thousands of patriotic addresses throughout the Nation during the World War.

Searchers Continue Hunt for Missing Girl

Conway, N. H., Oct. 2 (AP).—Doggedly determined to continue their search "at least another week," more than 400 soldiers, foresters and volunteers pushed their needle-in-a-haystack hunt tonight for 5-year-old Pamela Hollingworth, who disappeared in thick woodlands last Sunday.

To spur the efforts of the searchers, $500 was added to the reward for the girl's return—dead or alive—by Gov. Robert O. Blood and his New Hampshire executive council. This raised the reward total to $850.

Traffic Toll 67 As Woman Dies

D. C. traffic deaths this year 67
Deaths this date last year 51

The District's sixty-seventh traffic fatality this year and the second this month was recorded yesterday with the death in Casualty Hospital of Annie Lucas, Negro, 39, 1257 Union Street Southwest.

She was struck and fatally injured at Fourth and M Streets Southwest Wednesday and died at 1:40 a. m. yesterday. Police said Mary Agnes Watson, 16, of Arlington, Va., was the operator of the automobil which struck Mrs. Lucas as she crossed from the north to the south curb of M Street. Miss Watson will appear at a coroner's inquest, the date of which has not been announced.

White House Explains Amid Rising Protest

This action is taken because of some misquotations which have appeared.

Since the Soviet constitution declares that freedom of religion is granted, it is hoped that in the light of the report of the Polish Ambassador an entering wedge for the practice of complete freedom of religion is definitely on its way.

Questions and Answers

Question: Mr. President—The State Department got out a letter from the Polish Ambassador today, showing that the Russians are going to allow the Poles to have their own churches.

The President—I have just got it—the mimeographed State Department letter—but I also got it from another source this morning.

Question—Would care to make any comment on it?

Question (interposing) — Mr. President—

The President (continuing)—As I think I suggested a week or two ago, some of you might find it useful to read Article 124 of the constitution of Russia.

Question: What does that say, Mr. President?

The President: Well, I haven't learned it by heart sufficiently to quote—I might be off a little bit, but anyway: Freedom of conscience—

Question: (interposing.) Would you say—

The President: (Continuing)—Freedom of religion. Freedom equally to use propaganda against religion, which is essentially what is the rule in this country; only, we don't put it quite the same way.

For instance, you might go out tomorrow—to the corner of Pennsylvania Avenue, down below, the Press Club—and stand on a soap-box and preach Christianity, and nobody would stop you. And then, if it got into your head, perhaps the next day preach against religion of all kinds, and nobody will stop you.

Father Walsh's View

Georgetown's Father Walsh, who was sent to Russia by the Vatican in 1922-23, said on Wednesday that President Roosevelt was in a position to make an "historic contribution" by using his influence to win religious freedom for the Russian people.

Commenting last night on the White House statement, Father Walsh said:

"The events of the last 24 hours have convinced me that the hour has come for a definite and constructive move on the part of the President of the United States.

"American assistance and tremendous moral support is being accorded to the Russian government at this time by the Government of the United States. Eventually this will all be at the expense of the American taxpayer.

"It is not too much to expect, therefore, that the Soviet government will react and respond to the realities as they actually exist.

Questions Scope of Action

"The statement of the Polish Ambassador to the effect that a Catholic church has been opened in Moscow for the Polish population of that city must be viewed in the light of the total truth. It must be remembered that during my time in Moscow there were already two Polish churches opened and functioning.

"Does this new development merely mean that one of two closed churches has now been reopened, or that there will be a new one in addition?

"My hope is that the direct influence of the President of the United States will be exerted independently of what may be transpiring from other quarters."

3 Powers Sign Memorandum On Red Needs

I cannot say enough about the fine attitude of the Russians. They showed the most extraordinary aptitude for understanding and sympathy with our problems, and of course they are as pleased as can be. They gave us all the necessary information. You will find them very happy. You will find them delighted with what we have done."

Harriman said several experts would be left here under Col. Philip Faymonville, former American military attache to Moscow, and "others will come in connection with education in and maintenance of the equipment coming.

"Technical work now begins with conclusion of the conference. I personally am strongly in favor of all aid to Russia. I must say that Stalin works with great speed, frankness and ability, and, to boot, he is patient.

Isolationists Act To Hamper RFC Bill

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

House non-interventionists, determined to force a full-dress examination of the Administration's program for aid to Russia, operated yesterday to block swift action on a bill to increase the note-issue power of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by $1,500,000,000.

Before Representative Robert F. Jones (Republican), of Ohio, formally objected to a unanimous consent request to consider the bill, Representative Hamilton Fish, jr. (Republican), of New York, reminded the House that the measure was important enough to warrant ample debate at least "to disclose the nature and extent of aid to be given Communist Russia."

In seeking consideration of the bill despite the existence of a "gentleman's agreement" to forego action on legislation until October 6, Representative Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, told the House that the RFC was now "without funds." When the bill was before the committee two weeks ago the RFC's commitments were estimated at more than $3,900,000,000. Since that date, Mr. Steagall said, loans and commitments have exhausted the 345 million dollars then remaining available under the RFC's authorization.

Bombed Berlin Opera Reopens

Berlin, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Kroll Opera House, after housing the Reichstag for eight years, again presented opera last night.

The Prussian State Opera—which was bombed out of its stately home on Unter Den Linden early this year when incendiaries gutted it—in a festive opening performance, presented "Tannheuser," heralded by the Berlin press as symbolic of Germany's present struggle.

Whether the Kroll Opera House will be the scene for future meetings of the Reichstag was not disclosed. The Reichstag Building burned in 1933.

Wire Firms' Merger Urged

By the Associated Press

Legislation to permit the merger of domestic telegraph companies—which do a 130 million dollars annual gross business and employ 60,000—was recommended to Congress yesterday by a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee.

The committee's report, emphasizing that the merger should not be forced upon the big firms, nevertheless indicated strong economic advantages to be gained by the consolidation.

The report said the domestic firms should form one unit, and a merging of international telegraph carriers should be permitted as a second and "entirely separate and distinct entity."

In the case of the Postal Telegraph Co., the committee said the firm "is in imminent financial danger," and that it has only $750,000 remaining from a five-million-dollar working capital loan obtained from the Government, April 17, 1940.

"Its monthly losses, while materially reduced since last year," said the report, "have continued to average about $180,000 during the first six months of this year. A new wage contract, which became effective in October, 1941, will add approximately $50,000 a month to the company's cost of operation."

In the case of Western Union, the committee report said that while the company now is operating at a profit, it has suffered losses in recent years and "has a substantial debt structure which may prove dangerous to it when the next major business depression occurs."

Cessation of operations by Postal through financial collapse would give Western Union "in fact, if not in name, a monopoly in handling of the ordinary commercial messenger business within the United States," the report said. It added that some 14,000 Postal employes "are in danger of losing their jobs."

Roll Call Lags; Emergency Meeting Is Called

Disturbed over reports showing the 1941 Red Cross roll call to be falling slightly behind last year's, Chairman Edgar Morris issued a call last night for an emergency meeting of the campaign workers.

The meeting will be held at 4:30 p. m. Monday at Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, with all chairmen expected to be present.

Morris indicated the cause for the lag was not a lack of response from Washington residents, but delays in reports from volunteer field workers. He said he would attempt at work out a system at Monday's meeting under which more frequent reports would be received by headquarters.

The roll call accounting office reported on closing last night that 26,832 memberships had been obtained during the first 10 days of the silver anniversary roll call, approximately 5000 less than had been reported on a comparative date last year. This year's quota is 25 per cent above last year's.

David E. McCoy, general chairman of the roll call business committee, reported the following business houses had enrolled 100 per cent: Lerner Shop, Carty Electric and Armature Service, Fields Twenty-two Fifty, Inc., Brewood, Inc., and Harry Kaufmann, Inc.

Revised Vagrancy Bill Sent to Hill

A revised District vagrancy bill—redrafted at order of the Commissioners to meet objections of the President—yesterday was sent to Capitol Hill where it has been promised early consideration.

The new measure was prepared by Richmond B. Keech, corporation counsel, and was transmitted to chairmen of both the House and Senate District Committees.

In vetoing the first measure, President Roosevelt described certain sections as too broad and called for revisions. The Commissioners said the changes would in "no way" weaken the proposed law.

UNVEILING RITE—The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, blesses the statue of Father Schilling, O. F. M., at unveiling rites yesterday at the Franciscan Monastery. Father Schilling was founder of the monastery

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post's Church Editor

Hundreds of friends looked on yesterday as the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, blessed and unveiled a statue of Father Godfrey Schilling, O. F. M., at the Franciscan Monastery he founded 43 years ago in Brookland.

The figure was unveiled in a corner of St. Joseph's Chapel in the Church of Mount Saint Sepulchre that Father Godfrey built—the corner where for many years the kindly Franciscan prayed for men's souls, and for the continued success of the Holy Land missionary work carried on by the Franciscan Order through 40 Commissariats all over the world.

The ceremonies followed Pontifical Mass celebrated by the apostolic delegate, and also marked the Feast of St. Francis of Assisi, after whom the Franciscan Order is named.

In a tribute to Father Godfrey and other Franciscans, the Right Rev. Eugene J. Connelly, rector of St. Peter's Church here, said the work of caring for the Holy Land has been done well, with heroic perseverance, at the cost of great personal sacrifice.

In accepting the statue on behalf of his community, the Very Rev. Leonard Walsh, O. F. M., Superior of the Monastery and Commissary of the Holy Land, said that a carillon tower, in the crypt of which the body of Father Godfrey will repose, will later be built in the outer gardens.

Father Godfrey came here in 1898 as Commissary of the Holy Land and led the movement for the founding of the monastery and erection of the church and chapel. He visited the Holy Land in 1901, built St. Joseph's Church at Cairo, Egypt, in 1904, and later the Church of the Transfiguration on Mount Tabor.

Illusion of Well Being Creates Beauty; Good Figure, Right Coiffure Also Aid

Ways to Improve Personality Are Listed by Expert

By Carolyn Abbott.

IF YOU feel drab, uninteresting and unpretentious, you will transmit that impression to others. But if you possess self-confidence and a sense of well-being, you will create the impression of charm and beauty. So believes George Quaintance, hair stylist, artist, ballet dancer and teacher, who recently arrived in Washington to teach make-up and dancing at a local studio.

"Any woman can create the illusion of beauty and an interesting personality," said Quaintance. "All depends upon her desire and willingness to work for them. Once she has achieved her ideal in appearance, she must continue to improve or she will soon drop into the same old mental and physical rut."

The first step toward creating a new personality is to make yourself as physically fit and attractive as possible. That means dieting and reducing when needed, stirring up circulation through exercise, walking gracefully, adopting flattering coiffures and wearing becoming clothes, according to Quaintance.

Dancing Recommended

Exercises derived from the ballet are the most perfect body builder, for they not only give ideal proportions but develop graceful movements, the instructor pointed out. Exercises or supervised dancing done to music are the most effective means of developing grace and rhythm.

"Next in importance is a becoming coiffure—one that not only flatters your face but gives you glamour and individuality," stressed Quaintance, who designed individual coiffures for stage and screen personalities—most recent of whom are Katherine Cornell, Helen Hayes, Beatrice Lillie and Peggy Conklin.

"The ideal shape of the face is oval," said Quaintance. "However, through careful hair-styling you can create the illusion of an oval where none exists." Here are his suggestions for doing so:

For Different Types

ROUND FACE—An attractive oval effect can be achieved with long vertical lines ending in detail high on the head. Waves, curls or rolls should follow a slightly vertical line. Detail can be built high on head, slightly angular or pointed to give length to the face.

OBLONG FACE—This type of face is usually thin and sharp. Horizontal lines, with a side part, softens the features. Build the hair well out on sides of the face. If the neck is normally proportioned, the areas of hair beside the face can be kept high. But if the neck is long and thin, bring the hair lower down.

TRIANGULAR FACE — The problem here is to narrow a too-prominent forehead and destroy the broad, flat appearance at top of the head. The forehead can be lessened by puffing top hair slightly to raise the center and then pulling large flat waves well forward on either side above the eyebrows.

PYRAMID FACE—Draw attention away from broad, heavy jaw, broaden and fill out small top of the face and head. Sweep hair upward from sides of face on either side of the top of the head to balance weight of lower part of face. A side part, low on part of head tends to widen narrow top part of head.

Other Types

LARGE FACE WITH LARGE FEATURES—Avoid close-fitting hair-do, as it increases apparent size of face. Keep the coiffure generous—with large waves and curls. Keep hair slightly fluffy in back.

SMALL FACE WITH DELICATE FEATURES—Waves and curls must be fairly small and dainty to harmonize with small features and tiny face area. A soft fluff of hair is most flattering. A sculptured arrangement hardens the features.

STRAIGHT PROFILE — All curls and waves should run diagonally. Since the nose is usually small, it is well to point waves toward nose to give it more length. However, the hair should not be brought forward, as this narrows the cheek area and makes the profile even straighter. Sweep the side up and back from face.

POINTED PROFILE—Avoid all lines running parallel to slant of the nose. Diagonal lines running perpendicular to nose tend to reduce prominence of nose. For this type of profile, bring the hair forward on the cheek to shorten distance from ear to tip of nose.

Coiffures for two facial types—the round and the long—are shown here. They were designed and sketched by George Quaintance, dancing instructor, hair stylist and make-up artist. Below—The round face is given length through the manipulation of long vertical lines. The vertical part and built-up effect on each side of the head balance the too round cheeks. Right—The long face is given the illusion of an oval shape (ideal for beauty) by the use of horizontal lines. The hair is built well out on sides of face to counteract angular look

Mary Haworth's Mail

Two Years Ago, Youth Fell Sincerely in Love With Girl Whose Devotion He Had Long Treated Lightly; Now She's Indifferent; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I don't know how to begin a letter like this, but here is my last desperate effort to clarify my problem. About five years ago (I am now 21) I met a girl two years my junior, with whom I started having occasional dates. I was not then in love with her, although I knew she was in love with me; and her brother told me more than once that she was.

Finally, about two years ago, I fell in love with her, deeply and sincerely. But when I changed toward her, she changed toward me, so that we continued to be as far apart in feeling as ever. I don't know why she changed. I have treated her as nicely as I know how; although unfortunately, I am sorry to say, during the time she was in love with me, we behaved indiscreetly on several occasions, which both of us were ashamed of later.

I have given her many beautiful gifts, such as a watch, a bracelet and a ring. Of course, I know a girl's love can't be bought with gifts, but I am telling you everything to give you a better understanding of the situation. I want to marry the girl, but she says she doesn't known whether she loves me. However, I get a present from her occasionally and she gives me more dates than anyone else, although she goes out with several fellows.

Should I stop showing her how much I love her? I would gladly die for her and have told her so. She is very sweet to me, but no different than she is to any other man. Would it be more advisable for me to keep on telling her I love her? Tell me, if you can, whether she loves me. Sometimes I think she does and sometimes I think she doesn't. Please give me your opinions. B. C. D.

Undaunted Courtship Seems Advisable

DEAR B. C. D.: It is my impression that the girl was in process of gradually outgrowing her adolescent "crush" on you, when you discovered yourself deeply and sincerely in love with her. And it is likely that your change of heart was induced by the dismaying, slow-dawning realization that she no longer "wept with delight when you gave her a smile, and trembled with fear at your frown." In other words, the change of attitude on either side probably was not so mysteriously sudden as you believe.

It is my judgment that, at this present stage of the relationship, you are more realistically in love with the girl than she ever was with you. In the first flush and mounting fervor of her adulation, no doubt she was enthralled more by her own fancifully idealized concept of you, than with your true self. It is probable, indeed, that she resolutely turned her mind away, for a long time, from the actual facts of your character; that she refused to see you as you really are,—with all the faults and frailties common to mankind, and particularly to the undeveloped personality.

But (one may imagine) through continued association, in which you trampled her finest feelings, she was finally obliged to admit to herself that you didn't measure up to the Prince Charming of her dreams; and at this point, we may assume, she began to look further (even though more or less unconsciously) for the masculine embodiment of that romantic perfection which every young girl is seeking.

A reaction of disenchantment with you had set in. She knew she wasn't in love with you; although I daresay she didn't (and doesn't) know that she never had been in love with you, but was only infatuated or (as the saying goes) "in love with love." However, having become habituated to an affectional attitude of thought and behavior toward you, the habit was not to be readily abandoned, particularly inasmuch as (1) she was not (and is not) in love with anyone else; and (2) you began desperately and diligently wooing her loving consideration. Such is my explanation of her subsequent "very sweet" but baffingly detached and non-committal treatment of you.

During those years when you were taking her adulation so carelessly for granted—years when you were in no mood to return the compliment—you undoubtedly appraised her with dispassionate eyes, saw her for what she was, as one might take inventory of a familiar acquaintance. Thus, when you found you had grown to love her, it was in full knowledge of her qualities of character and temperament—a state of affairs which, it is logical to think, gives your present devotion the substance of abiding authenticity. Since you do truly love her and since she continues sufficiently fond of you to grant you first place on her list of suitors, I consider that you have justification for going on courting her, with consistent and hopeful ardor.

It has been said that "Love begets love"—and if the girl's adolescent engrossment with you could (as it evidently did) plant the seeds of real love in your heart, isn't it reasonable to hope that your latter-day, much more mature devotion to her may beget a like answer, in time? I think so; and therefore my advice to you is to keep on telling her how greatly you love her, while doing all in your power to prove the truth of your words. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Make Tyrolean Accessories

YOU GO TYROLEAN with a bang wearing a smart little set of matching belt, suspenders and shoulder-strap bag! Make a set for yourself (easy to do!) then start in on your Christmas gift list.

Green felt is the ideal fabric, but velveteen or woolen will do if you interline with linen canvas.

For applique designs use felt in red and other bright colors to contrast gaily with the green, and use red cord or grosgrain ribbon for the lacings.

It's the work of a moment to trace your designs for the hearts and flowers on to heavy paper. You then cut these designs from the paper, pin to felt and cut—as many hearts and flowers as you'll need.

Perhaps you'll want to make the belt first. Cut and sew together two pices of material, long enough to almost meet at center front. Shape so the belt in back is about 2 inches wide and in the front about 3 inches.

Work three eyelets at each side of front with buttonhole stitch, applique designs in place and insert lacings.

In much the same way you make the bag—using four circles, two for the front and two for the back. Suspenders are double, too, with a double thickness crosstrap sewn between the two straps at front. Then, if you like, you can also make a little Tyrolean coin purse!

Making your own accessories this way, you can afford as many and such smart ones! Our 40-page booklet, "Dress Accessories You Can Make," gives applique patterns and directions for Tyrolean set, tells how to make velvet evening hood and bag; gay skating hood and mittens, muffpurse and scarf set and many more!

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Dress Accessories You Can Make," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

It's About Time

IT'S ABOUT TIME to start using the small bits of old brocade which you have been hoarding. Have frames for photographs covered with this material. Antique velvet can also be used for these

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Selection of Glamour Girl No. 1 for the 1941-42 season is one of the most serious problems Truthtown notables now are facing. The calling off of the debut of Valerie (Snooksy) Antelope, already agreed upon as the "It" girl of the season, has thrown the whole harassing question back in the laps of the socialites who already are overworked with their war relief and social activities.

Snooksy's debut was called off and she was bundled off to school as a result of her showing too much interest in a young man named Gurble, who served as a life guard at Barbecue Beach, where the Antelope's have their summer home.

"I hope we can get this thing settled without delay so we can get back to our benefits," said Mrs. Featherton Daubler, chairman of the Committee on Democracy, which is planning a costume ball for early November.

G. Cavanaugh M. T. Capers, man about town, and connoisseur of feminine beauty, is calling a meeting of leading bachelors this week at the Monte Carlo Lounge to select a successor to Snooksy. Count Siatica, noted Continental lover and gourmet, will assist in the decision.

Gadget Trouble

An unfortunate incident marred the cocktail party given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Whitherford Schooner. When Mrs. Maverick Mugwump, dashing divorcee, arrived wearing her large jeweled gadget pin on her right shoulder she was refused admittance by Mrs. Schooner's butler, Sortwell.

"The ladies are wearing their pins on their left shoulders," the butler firmly told Mrs. Mugwump.

"That is just the reason I am wearing mine on my right shoulder," Mrs. Mugwump retorted.

The matter was appealed to Mrs. Sophonia Sniff, Mrs. Mugwump's social secretary, who ruled that Mrs. Mugwump must either change her gadget to her left shoulder, or depart. Mrs. Mugwump departed.

Mrs. Schooner today in a statement to the press, said she deplored the incident, but that there was no other stand for the butler and secretary to take.

"We must uphold law and order," said Mrs. Schooner. "It is things like that which lead to Communism."

Best Dressed Woman

"Did you hear about Leona Piffle?"

"No?"

"She's a best dressed woman!"

"Really?"

"Yes." The Tea Strainers' Institute has named her the best dressed tea pourer of 1941."

"Of all things! Well Adelia Glide's been named one of the 20 best dressed women!"

"Yes, by the Hotel Lobby Loafers Inc."

"I don't think she's so smart looking."

"I don't either. Now Dorothy Twirl has lots more dash—say did you know the Topaz Cab Drivers had named her the best dressed taxi rider of the first half of 1941?"

"No! Well the Dahlia Heights Bus Drivers have named Barbara Taffy their best dressed suburban bus rider."

"I think she's tacky."

"I do too. Now there was some sense in naming Claire Sequin a best dressed woman."

"Oh, is she one, too?"

"Yes, she heads the list of best dressed women in the 33½-year-old division of the International Order of Kangaroos."

"Oh, did you hear about Pamela Jay?"

"No."

"She's perfectly furious because the Faucet Fixers Union named her the best dressed woman over 40."

"Well, the Vacuum Cleaners Salesmen named Grace Chives one of the 50 best dress'd women before 10 in the morning. And on top of that she has one of the 40 best dressed maids chosen by the Butlers' Executive Committee."

"I can't bear it."

"And—her husband works in a bank which has the best dressed charwoman!"

"Some people just have everything."

District Younger Set Now Bent on Careers

Nancy Lawrence Studies Drama in New York; Pat Prochnik Weighs Offers to Sing

By Carolyn Bell

Far from frittering away their days on things social, the younger set is making quite a splash in the career field. If not started on full-fledged jobs they are, at least, preparing themselves for positions in any number of vocations.

With a yen for the stage—and a flair for comedy—Nancy Lawrence, attractive, dark-haired daughter of the David Lawrences, is in New York studying at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. Last year Nancy made quite a hit in a show put on by Princeton University and has played in a number of amateur theatricals. Although a debutante of a few seasons ago Nancy has dispensed with a purely social life in favor of a real career.

With a classmate from Chicago, Miss Lawrence has taken an apartment on Fifth Avenue. Scouring the town they have managed to furnish the place and are quite tickled with their new possession. After "commuting" back and forth for almost a week, Miss Lawrence left two weeks ago to spend the season in New York studying.

Pat Prochnik To Continue Singing

An "old hand" at this career business is the pink-cheeked daughter of the Former Minister of Austria and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik. Having chalked up a successful season as a night club singer last year, she is looking forward to continuing in her chosen profession. "I have received several offers," said Pat yesterday, but to date she has not decided just where and when she will start her second year as a "society warbler."

If Pat decides on New York—and she indicated she might—the pretty post deb will join several Washington girls in the big city. Jane Rust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Rust, jr., is there studying interior decorating. She recently leased an apartment in New York—not far from the one Nancy Lawrence is occupying.

At the moment Muriel Maddox has just about persuaded her family that she too should go to New York to pursue fame—and if she does she will join Miss Rust and Miss Prochnik there. Muriel, who is the daughter of Capt. Charles Hamilton Maddox, U. S. N., and Mrs. Maddox, will study for the opera. Mrs. Maddox will leave shortly to join her husband in Honolulu, where he is with the Pacific fleet.

Made Debut In Newport

In Newport last year Muriel made her debut at a large blue and white ball given at Easterly, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Donald O. McRae on Gibbs Avenue. Her father was then secretary of the Naval War College in Newport and has since been transferred to the West.

Already started on her career is post deb Joan McKenna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal McKenna, who will start work shortly at the Maritime Commission as a secretary. Joan just recently returned from a six weeks' whirl in the Bahamas, where she was the guest of her aunt, Lady Pascoe Rutter at her home in Nassau.

CAPITAL CHAT: Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann will entertain at a luncheon next Friday for Miss Mary Wilson and her fiance, Samuel Neel and members of their wedding party . . . they, incidentally, are still anxiously awaiting word from London that Bill Batt, jr., will be able to return to these shores in time to serve as best man . . . The Minister of Netherlands and Mme. Loudon will entertain informally at dinner tonight at the Carlton . . . Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Gardner Putnam will entertain at a cocktail party Sunday from 5 to 7 o'clock . . . Mrs. Edwin Watson has left for New York . . . She will be joined over the weekend by Gen. Watson and they will visit West Point . . . Mrs. George Garrett will return over the weekend from New York, where she has been for several days . . . Mrs. Ernest G. Draper came back from there last night after a spree of "show shopping."

Notables Attend Film Premiere

Justice Frank J. Murphy was among those attending the first showing of "One Foot in Heaven" last night at the Earle Theater. Pretty Martha Scott, young actress who is cofeatured in the picture with Fredric March, was in town for the premiere as was Irving Rapper, director, and Mrs. William H. Spence who is portrayed on the screen by Miss Scott.

Other distinguished guests attending the showing of the new Warner Brothers film were Claude Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture; Francis Biddle, Attorney General; Robert Patterson, Undersecretary of War; Bishop and Mrs. A. W. Leonard, The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson, Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, Mrs. Jean Bennett, and former Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

U.S., Britain Seen as Top Trade Aids

Coyle Says Two Rich Nations Must Permit Commerce; 20th Century Club Meets

In the absence of a world government, it will behoove "the two rich nations, the United States and Britain, to prevent unbalance" by permitting other nations to trade so the money will flow not merely in their own direction, David Cushman Coyle, engineer, economist and author, told the Twentieth Century Club at its first fall meeting yesterday.

"Since we don't have a world government," and probably won't have one soon, this policy by the two nations is to be hoped for, the speaker said.

"But we've got to be healthy inside, so our own people won't squawk," he added, and pointed out people who have jobs and are well-fed don't squawk.

Mr. Coyle spoke at the meeting at the Y. W. C. A., at which Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist was named chairman of the club's newly created defense committee.

The speaker outlined the two "extreme attitudes" toward the social order and world affairs—the plutocratic and communistic. He said he held a position between the two extremes, "a liberal position, which I naturally believe is a sensible position because I hold it," he added.

"We need to have a mixed system," which he called a "pluralistic system."

"We want not to abolish business and enterprise but to keep it under control . . . We regard government as a balancer," he added.

New Committee Members Named

On the new defense committee with Mrs. Gilchrist were named Mrs. R. F. Ferguson, Mrs. Don Smith, Mrs. Alfred Brooks and Mrs. J. C. Robertson.

Miss Caroline E. Thomson, who directs home nursing for the District Chapter of the Red Cross, outlined this work.

New members elected to the club were Mrs. James W. Quiggle, Mrs. Vernor C. Boggs, Mrs. Waldo G. Leland, Mrs. Charles F. Nesbit, Mrs. Alfred Gary White, Mrs. A. Leckie Cox, Mrs. Donald W. Parker, Mrs. Mitchell A. Marques and Mrs. Irving W. Ketchum.

New Section To Be Formed

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin announced plans for a new section of the club, to be formed for instruction in effective speech. Its first meeting will be held October 14, at the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Lawrence Martin, president of the club, presided at the meeting, which was followed by luncheon.

Mrs. William Walter Husband and Mrs. Elwood Morey, former presidents who have moved away from Washington, were elected honorary members.

Catholic Alumnae Group to Elect Officers Sunday

The annual business meeting of the Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae will be held Sunday at 3:30 p. m. in the auditorium of Notre Dame Academy, North Capitol and K Streets, for the biennial election of officers.

The nominating committee will present the following slate: Miss Kathryn A. Creveling, president; Mrs. Andrew Morris, vice president; Miss Marie Hurley, corresponding secretary; Miss Elizabeth Anderson, recording secretary, and Miss Mary Herlihy, treasurer.

Following the meeting a reception will be held to welcome the new Sister Superior of the Academy and the new Sister Moderator of the Alumnae.

The retiring officers include: Miss Marietta Dawson, president; Miss Clare Dunn, vice president; Miss Eleanor Carr, corresponding secretary; Miss Marjorie Brennan, recording secretary and Miss Mary T. Hanlon, treasurer.

Martha Scott Guest at Tea

Martha Scott, star of "One Foot in Heaven," and Mrs. William H. Spence, widow of the minister on whose biography the movie is based, were honor guests yesterday at a tea given by the District of Columbia Motion Picture Council.

Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, president of the council, and representatives of its affiliated organizations greeted the honor guests at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

Alpha Pi Alumnae To Mark Anniversary

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Phi International fraternity will give a tea Sunday afternoon celebrating the anniversary of its founding, October 10, 1872.

The sorority was formed at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., and the youngest chapter, organized in 1937, is the Beta Xi Chapter at the American University here. The tea will be at the home of Miss Louisa Stuart, 3446 Oakwood Terrace Northwest.

Alpha Phi alumnae pouring tea will be Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. William Hard, Mrs. Gladys Moon Jones and Mrs. J. E. Wells, jr.

In the receiving line will be Mrs. Jack Rhodes, president of the Washington Alumnae chapter; Mrs. G. A. Little, district governor; Mrs. George W. Lindsay, National Panhellenic delegate, and Miss Germaine Coffey, president of Beta Xi Chapter, at American University.

At Twentieth Century Club Meeting

Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, right, was appointed yesterday chairman of the newly-created defense committee of the Twentieth Century Club. She is shown above at the club's meeting with Miss Caroline E. Thomson, who spoke briefly as director of the home nursing work of the District Chapter of the Red Cross. They were scanning "America," the book written by David Cushman Coyle, who was speaker at the meeting.

O.P.A. Officer Urges Savings By Consumers

Double cooperation, as consumers, in the defense program was urged on the Petworth Woman's Club yesterday by Justin Stewart, who is connected with the Office of Price Administration.

Members who can get along without making purchases of durable consumer goods, such as autos, refrigerators and washing machines, can do a double service by putting the money thus saved into Government bonds, Mr. Stewart pointed out at the meeting at Petworth Methodist Church.

He suggested that the club carry on a price-watching program and help to discourage inflation by buying at the most favorable price after comparing prices at various stores.

The club voted to set up a price-watching subcommittee under its defense committee.

Mr. Stewart spoke as assistant chief, field services unit, consumer relations section, consumer division of Office of Price Administration.

The club voted to invest all money given to the building fund for the coming year in defense stamps and bonds.

A home nursing course with the club's cooperation will start soon in the community, with Mrs. Sue Richwine taking registrations, it was announced. It will meet in the Petworth Library.

Mrs. Heller Calls C. A. R. Board Meeting Tonight

Mrs. Frank R. Heller, newly appointed State president of the District of Columbia, Children of the American Revolution, has called the first meeting of the board for 7:30 tonight at the D. A. R. chapter house.

Other new officers are Mrs. Andrew J. Dawson, vice president; Mrs. Douglas Wolf, chaplain; Mrs. Charles O. Daugherty, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward L. Everitt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. H. Dvorachek, treasurer; Mrs. J. McKenney Kerry, jr., registrar. Mrs. Tonnis J. Holzberg, historian.

Meeting with the State officers will be the senior presidents of the 16 C. A. R. societies of the District, the State chairman of the National committees, the State promoters of the Sons of the American Revolution, Sons of the Revolution, and Daughters of the American Revolution.

Writers' League Holds Memorial

The Writers' League of Washington held its first meeting of the season yesterday at the Mount Pleasant Library.

The meeting was opened by a memorial service honoring the late Mrs. Elizabeth Aldrich, a past president. T. A. Simons, newly elected president of the league, gave a short talk. Mrs. Eva Grant Marshall, read her poem entitled, "Quiet Hands."

Officers for the year are Mrs. Agnes D. Wright, first vice president; Mrs. Lelia W. Marshall, second vice president; Miss Margaret Jean Balley, secretary; James D. Foote, treasurer; Mrs. John G. Keller, chairman membership committee.

Hebrew Sisterhood To Hear Dr. Brooks

The Sisterhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation Temple will open its season with a meeting Monday at 12:30 p. m. After a buffet luncheon, there will be a lecture by the Rev. Dr. Seth Brooks, minister of the Unitarian Church, on "Six Things Religion Has to Offer Us Today.' This is the first of the series of four lectures on "Our Changing Horizon.'

STG Council Elects Ruth Swinburne Head

Ruth Swinburne has been elected president of the Council of Sigma Tau Gamma sorority, with Laura Birdsong as secretary and Ann Schiel as treasurer.

Two new chapters, Beta and Gamma, have recently been inducted into the sorority. The organization will hold its twelfth anniversary celebration this month.

Girl Reserve Parleys Slated

The annual fall conference of the cabinets of the Senior High Girl Reserve Clubs of Washington Y. W. C. A., will be held this weekend at Vacation Lodge, Cherrydale, Va. Miss Emma Lou Heine, president, and Miss Jean Darnall, vice president, will preside.

The weekend will open today with dinner and a sing, led by Miss Mary Burnett, music secretary of the Y. W. C. A. Tomorrow Mrs. Leslie Glenn will speak to the conference on "Leadership and Direction."

On Sunday a hike has been planned after the worship service. Mothers and advisers, etc., are free to visit the conference Sunday afternoon. Miss Mabel Cook will talk on her new work as USO director in the Y. W. C. A.

The Sunday evening service and campfire will close the conference. It is expected there will be 40 officers present for the whole conference.

Sorority Head To Be Feted

Miss Emilie Eisenhauer of Portland, Ore., national president of Phi Delta Delta International Legal Sorority, will visit Washington tomorrow and a dinner will be given in her honor at the American Association of University Women's clubhouse by local chapters.

Miss Louisa Wilson, director of the Eleventh Province, is general chairman of the arrangements committee, assisted by the presidents of the four local chapters: Miss Catherine Edmonson, alumnae; Mrs. Sarah Perrin, Alpha Lambda; Miss Eileen O'Connor, Zeta, and Miss Marion Goshorn, Beta. Mrs. Elizabeth Hardy of the Alumnae Chapter is in charge of reservations.

The hospitality committee of the Washington Alumnae Chapter, which is also assisting in the arrangements, is composed of Mrs. Leila Brown Reed, Miss Patricia Collins, Mrs. Florence McLouth, and Mrs. J. K. Stacy.

Teach Parents Social Hygiene, P.-T.A. Urged

A definite program in social hygiene to prepare parents to instruct their children was advocated for local Parent-Teacher Associations yesterday by Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, social hygiene chairman in the department of health, District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Social hygiene instruction is of even greater importance now during the mobilization of soldiers, Mrs. Buckley pointed out in her report to the fourth annual leaders' conference of the District Congress yesterday at the National Education Association Building.

The 153 women who registered for the conference were presidents and committee chairmen from local P.-T. A.'s. The second session of the conference will be held next Thursday.

Mrs. R. M. Graham, summer round-up chairman, reported that 1014 children who received physical examinations before entering school were only about one-third of the 3070 who were newly enrolled in white schools this session. Although the number of examinations represented substantial progress, an approach to 100 per cent must be kept in sight, she stressed.

Mrs. L. S. Brooks, chairman of the student aid committee, urged that schools, where such aid is not necessary, have "bundle days" to collect used clothing for other children.

Mrs. Florence Rogers, supervising principal of the sixth division and chairman of school education for the congress, reported that of 126 retarded children in junior occupational classes, 77 had gone on to enter junior high school this session.

She said that a class in "everyday psychology" for parents of the sixth division will be conducted by Dr. Jessie W. Sproul, of the University of Maryland.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District congress, opened the meeting, which was presided over by Mrs. Alma Hudson, first vice president.

An Ironic Note

The last man on the order number list in Selective Service Board No. 9, the largest Washington selection unit, was mailed his questionnaire yesterday. He is Jarvis Roosevelt Catoe, the confessed sex killer of 10 women. Board officials mailed the questionnaire to the District Jail.

Seeing Is Believing

Into Morven, N. C., dashed a panting mule dragging a farm wagon on which a farmer stood pointing and yelling, "Come quick, de Morven water tank done busted loose. It's floatin' in de sky."

It was a silvery Army blimp flying over the camp of the Twenty-ninth Division.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

New Civil Service Record Expected

Last year more than two million persons took Civil Service tests for Federal jobs, a record-breaking number. A new record probably will be set this year, as many more exams will be given. The tests—particularly the questions asked—have been damned more often than praised since the first exam was given more than half a century ago. The commission has answered this criticism by creating a test construction unit in its examining division. The sole function of the unit is to draft questions to be asked on Civil Service tests.

Chief of the unit is Dr. Marion W. Richardson, a pleasant and mild-mannered person who has an international reputation as a psychologist. Dr. Richardson, who has been with the commission only 18 months, denies emphatically that Civil Service tests are "nut" exams. He knocked two popular beliefs into a cocked hat when he said:

1. That he had never seen a "catch" question given on a Civil Service test since he has been in charge of the exams.

2. That the average amount of time allowed per question on Civil Service exams is from two to three times more than allowed students who are given high school tests.

A popular notion is that Civil Service tests are filled with trick questions which have nothing whatsoever to do with the job for which the candidates are being examined. Many persons who fail tests write their Congressmen to complain about the "catch" questions. All too frequently for the commission, a member of Congress denounces the exams. In the interest of better relations, the commission now shows the complaining Congressman a copy of the test in an effort to prove to him that the questions weren't tricky. This simple and effective procedure was followed when members complained about the promotion tests given District policemen. The members had to eat their words.

Few Complete Tests

Dr. Richardson believes the commission has been generous in its time limits on exams. Yet it's admitted that only a small percentage of those who take exams complete them. A loud howl was heard recently from those who took the Junior Clerk test. Only 45 minutes were allowed. Dr. Richardson has had a sample check made of the exam. Picked at random were the papers of 751 contestants. Two of that number had perfect grades which, the doctor says, is a good percentage. He argues that it would be unfair to those who can finish in 45 minutes to extend the time. He seems to have something there.

Dr. Richardson says he checks each question to determine: 1. Whether it's intent is clear, to prevent ambiguity; 2. Whether it's related to the duties of the position; 3. Whether it's practical, and 4. Whether it's free from technical faults, such as answering itself. He has a staff of 85. Most of his staff members, like himself, are former teachers. Technical experts are called in from the outside to assist with technical examinations. Departments also assist in drafting exams in which they are interested. For example, OEM has been hiring information specialists and OEM's information director, Bob Horton, helped to prepare the coming test.

Dr. Richardson is on leave from the University of Chicago, where he was an assistant professor of psychology and an examiner in the physical sciences. He assisted the university in setting up its unique examining system, which has proved to be successful. He formerly supervised selection and research for Procter & Gamble. Richardson lives with his job. In his spare time he helps edit two magazines, Psychometrika, which, the doctor explains, in the theory and logic back of examining, and Educational and Psychological Measurements, a similar publication.

It's no secret that the Nazis have made the fullest use of the psychologists who examine and select officers in the German army. Our Army is inquiring into the practice. Richardson is serving on a committee on military classifications which will advise the Army on the selection of soldiers and officers. Incidentally, Psychometrika is one of the few American magazines still allowed in Germany.

East Capitol Improvement Plan Indorsed

Bradbury Heights Citizens Association last night indorsed the proposal of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to beautify East Washington by tearing down buildings along East Capitol Street and replacing them as needed with Government buildings, as well as widening the street.

The association asked that the speed limit on Alabama Avenue Southeast, between Massachusetts avenue and Bowen road, be reduced from 30 to 25 miles per hour, and voted to request of Government authorities a regulation to keep naval and military planes here at a minimum height of 1000 feet.

Henry W. Austin was reelected president of the organization, and his wife was named corresponding secretary. Frank P. Randolph was chosen first vice president; Mrs. Charles S. Troutman, second vice president; Miss Helen Story, recording secretary.

Austin and Randolph will be the delegates to the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

Washington Highlands

dent; Miss Susan Frasier, second Association, laying plans for an active civic year, last night launched a drive to boost membership in the citizens unit and enhance interest in community affairs.

Letters will be circulated through the section, urging residents to join the association and calling attention to a special meeting October 23.

In a business session, members approved resolutions asking for street lights in the 4000 block of First and Second Streets Southwest and seeking installation of a postal letter box at First Street and Alabama Avenue Southwest.

The unit expressed opposition to any increase in local water rates.

Connecticut Avenue

Harry C. Grove, of 2706 Cathedral Avenue Northwest, was reelected president of the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' Association last night, at the organization's regular monthly meeting at the All Souls' Memorial Church. Other officers elected were:

Leon Pretzfelder, first vice president, Miss Susan Frasier, second vice president; Miss Elizabeth Frasier, secretary; Miss Elizabeth R. Groves, treasurer, and David Babp and Leon Pretzfelder, delegates to the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

The group also passed resolutions objecting to any rise in the District's water rates at this time, and asking for a new directional traffic light arrangement at Connecticut and Cathedral Avenues.

Lindsay Trial Put Off to Monday

Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday postponed the trial of Roland J. Lindsay, 19, Negro, in the District Court on a rape charge until Monday.

Roland's attorneys asked for the delay so they could complete an inquiry concerning Lindsay's sanity. Besides the rape of a 17-year-old girl, the man is accused of beating both her and her soldier sweetheart in the head with a rock.

Masonic Leaders to See Film in New Theater

Leaders in Washington Masonic circles will attend a private performance at 8:30 p. m. today in the new Pix Theater in the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth Street and New York Avenue. About 500 executives of the order were expected to attend the showing, signalizing opening of the new first-run house. Admittance tonight will be by card.

Defense Savings Rally Called Tonight

The Citizens Committee to Promote the Sale of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps will sponsor a rally tonight at 8:15 in the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 1217 R Street Northwest.

William Pickens, of the Treasury Department, will be principal speaker. Chairman of the evening will be Jesse H. Mitchell.

Margaret Speaks' Lyric Voice Pleases Large 'Pop' Audience

Rudolph Ganz conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in the fourth "Pop" concert on Thursday night in Riverside Stadium. Soloist: Margaret peaks. Program of instrumental music by Beethoven. ist: Margaret Speaks. Program of instrumental music by Beethoven, Chabrier, and songs by Puccini, Speaks and Klemm.

As a conductor versed in the ways of audiences and in the drawing power of a favorite soloist, Rudolph Gans would doubtless courteously concede the major extent to which Margaret Speaks was responsible for the large attendance in Riverside Stadium last evening at the fourth "Pop" concert of the National Symphony Orchestra. It would have been strange indeed if there had not been a multitudinous welcome for the young American soprano whose voice is a frequent visitant in the homes of radio listeners. One was not surprised to note that the tables on the main floor, enlarged by the removal of the south bleachers, were all preempted and that the crowd in the raised seats was greater than usual.

BROWN

A Pink Lady

Miss Speaks, a pink lady in chiffon, delighted her admirers with "Un bel di'" from "Madame Butterfly," the song, "Sylvia" by which her uncle, Oley Speaks, is most widely known, and "Sounds" by the Baltimorean, Gustav Klemm. Naturally, these offerings merely whetted the appetite of her fans, who insisted upon more. At her reappearance she complimented Mr. Ganz by singing his pleasantly plaintive lyric, "A Memory." In response to further recalls she used from her radio repertoire two songs, the last of which had to be repeated because the continued applause outran the numbers she had prepared with the orchestra.

Mr. Ganz began the concert with Beethoven's overture to Goethe's "Egmont," a drama which few people in these days read. His reading had dramatic forcefulness as well as touches of a poetic eloquence which he applied effectively to the first movement of Schubert's B minor symphony. His stirring performance of Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyrs" roused the audience to a demand for an extra number, which proved to be Schumann's "Traeumerel."

The solos of Miss Speaks were immediately preceded by two of Dvorak's Slavonic dances, the familiar one in A flat major and a less hackneyed one in C major.

The third part of the program opened with Percy's Grainger's harmonization of the Irish tune from County Derry and his own folk-like "Shepherd's Hey." Howard Mitchell, first violoncellist, gave a beautifully intoned reading of "The Swan," by Saint-Saens, and Concertmaster Millard Taylor rivalled him in the phrasing of the "Meditation Religieuse" intermezzo from Massenet's "Thais." The program closed with the colorful and vivacious "Espana" rhapsody of Chabrier.

150 Schools Lack Fire Safeguards

Only 30 Here Found To Have Proper Protection, Says Marshal's Report

Only 30 of the District's more than 180 public school buildings are safely protected from the hazards of fire, the annual report of the fire marshal to the Board of Education revealed yesterday.

The report was made by Charles Laschalt, inspector of the Fire Prevention Division of the fire department, and B. R. Holmes, inspector for the District of Columbia Building Maintenance unit. Covering 44 pages, it stated that in spite of the numerous emergency recommendation made in their report, conditions had "improved since last year, and many unsatisfactory conditions noted at the time of making the inspection have been corrected."

The most serious defects, the inspectors declared, were the lack of adequate fire exit facilities at seven schools and the lack of modern interior fire alarm systems in 40 buildings.

Only one out of 19 junior high schools, the Banneker Junior High School at Ninth and Euclid Streets Northwest, was listed as "condition satisfactory," while no senior high schools were considered completely safe.

134 Emergency Cases

The suggestions throughout the report were listed as emergency, necessary or desirable, to denote the seriousness of their nature. One hundred and thirty-four buildings now in use by the school system were given emergency recommendations.

In addition to the suggestions for fire alarm systems and more exits, predominant recommendations were for modern heating systems, the installation of city fire alarm boxes at each school, repair of faulty fire doors and panic bolts, and the discontinuance of class building projects using inflammable material.

The report pointed out that many teachers were guilty of negligence in not unfastening all classroom exits while classes are in session, and added that in many buildings fire doors were found to be secured with padlocks or chains to keep late leavers from using them or to protect against theft while panic bolts were out of order.

"The recommendations and suggestions are deemed essential," Laschalt and Holmes stated, "primarily from a safety-to-life standpoint of the occupants, and, secondarily, for the physical protection of the property against fire."

Three Defects at Benning

Benning School, considered to be the center of this fall's enrollment congestion, was found to have three "emergency" defects, including a lack of fire extinguishers in the wooden portable building being used there.

The seven buildings where additional egress facilities were urged are Armstrong High School, Calvin Coolidge High, Garnett Patterson Junior High, Bruce, Gates, Wallach and Oyster Schools.

A lack of funds for repair work was responsible for many of the uncorrected hazards, according to William Draper, superintendent of the repair shop. Many of the smaller items could be remedied, he said, but there was no money for major alterations, such as the installation of new fire alarm systems. Twenty thousand dollars was requested by Draper in his 1943 budget estimate for correcting the defects mentioned in the report.

The 30 schools found to be in satisfactory conditions are Banneker Junior High. Addison, Blair, Bunker Hill, Carbery, Cranch, Dent, Edmond, Hayes, Hubbard, Health, Jackson, Kenilworth, Francis Scott Key, Lincoln, Lenox, Logan (old), Logan (new), Ludlow, Military Road, Morse, Noyes, Randle Highland (portable), Ross, Rudolph, Seaton, Slater, Smallwood, Twining and Van Buren. The Ross Building is occupied by office workers.

Bids Due Tuesday For 8-Story Addition

Bids for construction of an eight-story addition to an existing three-story structure at 1015 Fourteenth Street Northwest are being called for by "The Horner Building, care of Porter & Lockie, architects," it was learned yesterday. Bids will be opened Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. in the office of that architectural firm.

Premiere Leaves Audience With Feeling That It's Had 'One Foot in Heaven'

By Robert Tate Allan

The Post Church Editor

Notables of the screen and pulpit brushed shoulders last night at the Earle Theater's premiere of "One Foot in Heaven"—a premiere that turned out to be unique.

True, there was the usual fanfare of a movie premiere, with crowds pressing against police lines for a glimpse of Martha Scott and other stars; with the newsreel cameras grinding away, and smartly attired "first nighters" stepping from sleek cars at the curb.

But there was an added something—a certain spirit best described by a woman who, leaving the theater, was overheard to tell her escort:

"The film and those inspiring talks afterward made you feel that it was a good thing to go to church, that such a thing is truly American."

Just after the film of the Midwestern Methodist minister's life had been given a great ovation by the audience, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the Christian Herald Advisory Committee for the film, stepped upon the stage to pay tribute to those responsible for its production. Dr. Poling sped from a special mission in London to attend the premiere.

Calling the film "very beautiful and glorious entertainment" and expressing the hope that millions of people would see it, he presented for bows Mrs. William Spence, widow of the minister portrayed in the film, and mother of Hartzell Spence, the book's author; Miss Scott; Harry Warner, head of Warner Brothers Co.; Miss Elizabeth Fraser, who took the part of the minister's daughter in the film; Irving Rappert, its director, and Dr. E. D. Jones, of Detroit, member of the Protestant clergymen's advisory committee for the picture.

Warner said he hoped the film would "help people to stay with Christianity, to fight and die for it, so that men can live as human beings together.

Miss Scott and Mrs. Spence came to the theater with Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, and Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, resident Methodist bishop, and Mrs. Leonard.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, who headed the Protestant Ministers' Advisory Committee for the film, last night was given a personal "preview" of the film at his home at Mount St. Alban's, where he is recovering from an operation.

Convocation Marks Formal G.U. Opening

The annual convocation marking the formal opening of Georgetown University was held yesterday morning on the campus, preceded by services at Trinity Church, attended by the entire student body and faculty members.

ROBT. B. NEU

The Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of the university, addressed the convocation and welcomed new students and old at the start of the academic year.

"Now more than ever," he said, "is there a need for leaders." Addressing the new students, he advised them "to fit themselves mentally and morally for assuming leadership to defend our democratic way of life."

Robert B. Neu, 5117 Macomb Street Northwest, was awarded the Garvan Oratorical Medal by Rev. John E. Grattan, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. He also received the Pulaski Medal for the best essay and the Hamilton Philodemic Medal for the best extemporaneous debate last term.

Other awards were the Kidwell Medal for high honors in physics, to Louis Principato, New Jersey; the Horace Medal for the best translation of 20 selected Odes of Horace, Edward J. Callahan, Minnesota; the Edward Douglas White Medal for debate, Charles W. Daly, jr., Connecticut; the Dahlgren Medal for high honors in Calculus, Malcolm Olophant, Alexandria; the Mallory Medal for the best essay on "The Protection Afforded to Freedom of Conscience and Speech by the Federal Constitution," John F. McArt, 1234 Thirty-fourth Street Northwest.

William C. Redman, 5528 Broad Branch Road Northwest, and Robert L. Regan, 4801 Forty-eighth Street Northwest, were honored for achieving excellent grades in each subject during their freshman year.

Burglar, Accosted By Girl, Leaps Through Window

Miss Margaret Moore, 22, a Federal Trade Commission employe who lives in a second-floor apartment at 1803 Biltmore Street Northwest, was entertaining two friends in her living room last night.

Suddenly she looked up to see a man emerge from an adjoining room carrying the purse belonging to one of the guests, Miss Connie Bethel, 21, of the Department of Commerce.

"Who are you? What are you doing here?" asked Miss Moore.

The frightened man turned and took a running leap through the bedroom window. He didn't even stop to open it. Despite the one-story fall, he fled in the darkness.

Camilli, Medwick Provide Timely Hits As Gordon Is Goat; Wyatt Tightens Up

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 2.—Bums, eh?

Aflame with the come-from-behind zest that had carried them to the National League pennant, Brooklyn's Dodgers today halted the ten-game World Series winning streak of the Yankees and evened the series count with a 3-2 victory in the second game.

Before a strongly partisan crowd of 66,248 that let out a final exultant roar as Dixie Walker gathered in Tom Henrich's fly for the last out, the Dodgers played ball for Brother Whitlow Wyatt, the winning pitcher.

The 33-year-old Wyatt, an American League cast-off who was discharged successively by the Tigers, Indians and White Sox, came back to Yankee Stadium today to take the role of a National League hero. He kept the Dodgers in the ball game by shutting out the Yankees in the last six innings.

The Dodgers had dash today. They cold-cocked the Yankees with the hit-and-run play. They cut Yankee base-runners down with throws to home plate and third. They zipped the ball to all bases to help Wyatt over the humps, and they spotted the Yanks a 2-0 lead and beat 'em.

Wipe Out Lead

They made their hits pay off. Held to six hits by Spurgeon Chandler and his successor, Johnny Murphy, the Dodgers packed four of their blows into a pair of innings—the fifth and sixth—when they wiped out the Yankee's lead and moved into the one-run margin that was sufficient for Wyatt.

The big Dodger right-hander gave up nine hits to the Yankees but he pitched two-hit ball after the first four rough innings when it appeared he might make an early exit. A single by Phil Rizzuto in the sixth and another by Pinch-Hitter George Selkirk in the ninth were the only Yankee blows yielded by Wyatt after the fourth.

Dolf Camilli and Ducky Medwick, the batting busts of the opening game when the Dodgers were licked by the same 3-2 score, brought a pair of blazing bats to bear for Wyatt this afternoon. Camilli, thrice a strikeout victim yesterday and hitless until the sixth inning today, slugged home the winning run with a single to right field that knocked Chandler from the box.

Medwick Doubles

Medwick was the force behind the Dodgers' two fifth-inning runs that wiped out the Yankees' 2-0 lead. He crashed a long two-bag-

Manhattan Host Tonight To Colonials

By a Staff Correspondent

New York, Oct. 2.—New York's busy sports fans, already ga-ga over the Louis-Nova fight and the subway World Series, tomorrow night will turn their attention to football at the Polo Grounds, where Manhattan College is host to a George Washington University eleven that is respected here because of its impressive victory over the Jaspers a year ago.

The game is rated a toss-up, although Manhattan probably will be slightly favored by game time. The Jaspers failed to impress observers in their game with St. Bonaventure last week. In the second half, however, their strong ground attack clicked off sizable chunks of yardage and they wound up with a 20-to-13 triumph. The Bonnies were not rated strongly, but they have always been a pesky opening game opponent for Manhattan.

Aim to Stop Fedora

Manhattan's defensive plans have been laid upon the basis of stopping Walter Fedora, the Colonials' ace ball carrier, who riped the Manhattan line to shreds last year in pacing George Washington to a 21-to-18 triumph over the Kopf-coached club. With this game still clearly in mind and with disturbing scout reports of the George Washington-Mount St. Mary's game at hand, Harb Kopf, Manhattan mentor, feels that his team can win if Fedora can be stopped.

In last year's engagement Fedora piled up 127 yards and scored two of the three G. W. touchdowns. Little wonder, then, at Kopf's respect for Fedora. And the pair of touchdowns Walt marked up against Mount St. Mary's last week were not calculated to make Herb feel any better.

Jimmy Graham and Don Pinnow, the pair of flashy sophomore backs who put on an impressive display for the Colonials last week, are expected to break into action again tomorrow night. Coach Bill Reinhart plans to start his more experienced combination of Scott Gudmundson at left halfback, Fedora at fullback, Stub Martinson at high halfback, and Paul Nugent at quarterback.

Gudmundson to Play

Gudmundson, a triple-threat tail back, whose punting and running are strong threats, will share the offensive burden with Fedora in the first half. Pinnow, Graham and Paul Weber may get a taste of competition after the contest is well under way.

Doubtful starters in the George Washington line are Johnny Picco, veteran end, and Dan Snyder, junior tackle. Both were out of the opening game and while their injuries have mended during the week, there is some question of their condition as yet. Dan Douglas and Walter Murphy, an end and tackle, respectively, will start if Picco and Snyder are not ready.

'Good Ball Game, Chandler Picks Up the Tab'—Baer

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer
Copyright, International News Service

With Wyatt getting more support than a five-legged table, the Brooklyn Bums tied it up today and the series starts all over again.

The Bums fielded like a farmer with two pitchforks with the exception of a double error by Reese that did no harm. The Bums' outfield was under everything all afternoon like the Scotchman that captured Hess.

It was a pretty good ball game, with Chandler getting the dinner check. He wasn't exactly knocked out of the box. It was more like a couple of nudges.

The feature of the series so far is Gordon, who has made first base every time up in eight tries. Also the great DiMaggio has to break into the hit stack. Well, it took Dolph Camilli two afternoons to get to first and then it was on a base on balls.

The screwiest play of the series was a perpendicular single by Chandler that scored Keller. Lavagetto waited for it to come down like a milkman at a dumbwaiter. It went for a single and Keller scored.

Wyatt pitched about three baseball games to win one. He didn't have a minute to himself all afternoon and was in more hot water than a washwoman's thumb. But he got better as he went along like the scenery on the Mohawk Trail. At the finish he was bearing down like the old lady who tried to put the pig in a market bag.

Dolph Camilli got his first hit of the series and also met the ball well. But it was DiMaggio who lined directly at the outfielders all day. DiMaggio is due to bust out soon like a fat boy's pantywaist.

The Yanks stayed ahead in this series for the first 15 innings. It was getting more monotonous than a quail a day. It was a relief to see the Bums finally get up there and do something. I know my Bums because I was a bum before the depression.

Reese's two errors consisted of a bobble and an overthrow to Camilli. It was the old college try with a postgraduate course and Reese should know better to throw it out the window when it should be poured down the sink.

Odds Are Cut As Dodgers Win

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—(U.P.).—Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll tonight cut the odds on the Brooklyn Dodgers to win the World Series to 9 to 5 after their victory over the Yankees today, yesterday he listed them at 4 to 1.

The Yankees were cut to 9 to 20 where previously they were 1 to 5.

For tomorrow's game Carroll made the Yanks a 13 to 20 favorite with Russo pitching against Higbe. The Dodgers were 13 to 10.

Chicago City Series Game Is Halted In 3d by Rain

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The Cubs and White Sox both fell victims to the elements today when a persistently cold drizzle interrupted the second game of the Chicago city feud after three innings without any score.

After starting the game a half-hour late due to a shower which came down shortly after 2 p. m., the crosstown rivals lined up on a damp field before a crowd of about 5000 with Thornton Lee opposing Paul Erickson.

Having gone only three innings, today's effort at a contest was not a legal game. Tomorrow night the White Sox and Cubs will move over to Comiskey Park. The Sox won yesterday's opener, 4 to 1.

Washingtonian First in Line At Brooklyn

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 2.—There were harsh words in Brooklyn today for one John Green, who was called a saboteur, a fifth columnist and—a bum.

While the faithful slept, Green stole in from Washington, D. C., and camped first in line at Ebbets Field, where a good part of Brooklyn will welcome home their warriors tomorrow for the third game of the World Series with the Yankees.

That stranger at the gates—that was hard to take.

"Throw the bum out!" came a cry when the line began forming.

It looked bad for Green, a 65-year-old retired Government employe, until a pacifist recommended: "Let's give him a chance to leave peacefully."

This and the presence of 10 stalwart policemen and a sergeant comforted Green who was still first on line tonight when hundreds of Kings County dwellers began crowding near the entrances—armed with chairs, warm coats and box lunches, prepared to spend the night.

Brooklyn had read early this morning about the audacious presence of this Mr. Green and there was danger throughout the day that the armistice might be punctured.

Later, it developed that this fellow wasn't so bad, after all.

"Twenty years, Mister, is a long time," Green said, referring to the 21-year lapse between Brooklyn pennant victories. "I'm a Brooklyn rooter and I'm going to see them win."

Along the growing line, some slept, some munched sandwiches, many just sat and waited and most argued on the merits of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The banner line in the Brooklyn Eagle's World Series Extra reflected the views of many.

"Only 3 More to Go," it read.

Yesterday, the Eagle had proclaimed:

"Yanks Win. So What?"

Columbus, Royals Little World Series Postponed by Rain

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 2 (AP).—Rain, falling in a steady downpour, forced postponement tonight of the sixth game of the Junior World Series between the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association and the Montreal Royals of the International League.

The Junior World Series Commission ordered the postponement an hour and a half before game time. The Redbirds are leading the Canadians three games to two by virtue of last night's rousing 13-3 victory.

Manager Clyde Sukeforth of the Royals was expected to call Kemp Wicker to the hill when play resumes, while Burt Shotton of the Birds likely will use Sam Nahem.

The first three games of the series were played in Montreal, and the remainder will be played here.

'Yanks Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet'—Lippy

Higbe Probable Dodger Starter; Marius Russo May Pitch for Yanks

By Charles Dunkley
Associated Press Staff Writer

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 2. Emotions suppressed and smouldering in the hearts of the Brooklyn Dodgers for 24 hours gave way with terrific force after they tramped over the Yankees, 3 to 2, today to even the World Series.

Leo (the Lip) Durocher, foreman of the Dodgers, took personal charge of the joyous celebration in the clubhouse. He was quickly joined by that fashion-plate, Larry MacPhail, the Brooklyn president and general manager.

The Dodgers had just handed the Yanks their first defeat in their last eleven World Series games and Durocher was elated over the achievement. Waving a fistful of telegrams and sucking on a bottle of soda-pop, Leo was as gabby as a parrot without complexes.

"We could just as well have had two right now as to have had this thing even, he began. "Good old Wyatt pitched a whale of a game. But those Yankees ain't seen nothin' until they see what Kirby Higbee throws at 'em. The Yanks have faced him only two or three innings during spring training, and he threw nothing but fast balls. He's got a curve now that'll kill 'em."

MacPhail Happy

McPhail cut in with the assurance that he felt pretty good. He threw his arms around Durocher and gave him a bear hug.

"Hell," MacPhail blurted out, "we've been doing nothing but bouncing back all year, and we'll keep right on bouncing. I feel pretty good about this series now."

Durocher was far more affable and agreeable after today's victory than he was yesterday, when he barred the dressing room doors to visitors for half an hour. He bellowed out that the reporters could come in at once, and he was at the door to greet them.

As the visitors stormed in, the triumphant Dodgers cut loose with a whistling, shrieking and yipping all over the place. They rushed over to congratulate the baldish-looking, 32-year-old Wyatt, who accepted their pats on the back graciously.

Durocher said that either Higbe or Freddy Fitzsimmons would be his pitching choice tomorrow, and that it all depended on how Fitz's arm felt in the morning. He explained:

"Fitz's arm sometimes tightens up in the morning, and if it's all right tomorrow he'll go. Otherwise it will be Higbe. Higbe will definitely start the next day if I don't use him tomorrow."

Durocher suddenly spied Wyatt standing in front of his locker and making no attempt to get into the showers. Then he yelled:

"Hey, you, Whitlow! Get going in that shower, baby. You get an easy, stinking game to pitch, and you want to rest all afternoon. Get to hell under that water."

Meanwhile, Manager Joe McCarthy said tomorrow's starting pitcher would be either Lefty Marius Russo or Atley Donald.

"Russo'll go if his ailing stomach is okay," Joe explained. "He said he was ready to start today, but since his only food for two days was a little toast this morning, I decided to hold him off another day."

Durocher had particular praise for the aggressiveness and hitting ability of Joe Gordon, the Yankees' sparkling second baseman. He declared emphatically that Gordon was the man to stop in the Yankee attack.

"Toughest in League"

"I still think he's the toughest in the outfit," Leo said. "If you make one mistake, you can go out in the seats to get it. He's really a tough hitter—and I mean tough."

Gordon's home run and single were decisive in yesterday's game, while today he walked three times and got one hit.

Over in the Yankee dressing room, Manager Joe McCarthy showed how "down-hearted" he was by kidding with baseball writers about the "long time it's been since you've had to come and see me about a loser in a series game."

"Hell, you can't win 'em all, can you?" he asked. "You haven't chased me over a loser since the fourth game of the 1937 series, and you haven't been in my office here since October 5, 1936. That's the last one we lost in the stadium. Check up and see if I'm not right."

Pirates Draft Kerr, Release Spud Davis

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 2.—Brooklyn tonight never had more reason to be proud of its Beloved Bums. They beat the Yankees the slick way, the first National League team to win a World Series game from the Yanks since Carl Hubbell turned in that feat in October, 1937. In the interim, the Yanks had marched to 10 straight World Series victories.

POVICH

The Dodgers reacted superbly to their beating in the opening series game. There was no sign of panic. That was evident from the first inning when with two Yankees on base, and only one out, the Brooks routed a fierce grounder off Joe DiMaggio's bat around the bases for a double play. The pressure was on the Dodgers in all of the first four innings when the Yanks were making it tough for Whitlow Wyatt, but the Bums battled their way through.

They cut down one Yankee at the plate, and they threw out another when he tried to take two bases on a single. And then they went out and got the winning runs for Wyatt, not by pure power, but with some smart hit-and-run stuff that delighted the students of the game. The Dodgers gambled but they weren't brash. And evidently they don't scare easily.

This was the big game for the Brooks. They were sending against the Yanks their best pitcher in Wyatt. If they blew one behind him, oblivion might rush in. The Yankees would be in a fair way toward mopping up in four straight. National League baseball would get another black eye. The Bums couldn't afford to lose this one. The answer is that they came from behind to win it.

Mickey Owen Sparkles for Dodgers

The Bums were a swell ball team today. The Yankees had to battle for the few bases they got, and three of them were out running. Brooklyn baseball sparkled particularly in the ninth inning when Wyatt was plunged into a predicament by Pinch Hitter George Selkirk's single that put the tying run on base with none out. Sturm laid down the conventional sacrifice bunt, but the Bums were conceding nothing today. Mickey Owen had his choice of plays, the safety-first throw to first base or the bold throw to second that might keep the run out of scoring position. The Bums' catcher didn't dally. He risked censure for any failure and made the long throw to second. It was a beaut, and Selkirk was forced. The innards went out of the Yankee threat.

As for the Yanks, they're not hitting. That is plain to any fan who saw them wreck the American League race. Without detracting from the cleverness of Brooklyn's pitching, the fact remains that the Yanks went into the series in a batting slump and are still in it. Any time Joe DiMaggio goes hitless in two straight games, the Yanks are in a slump. They weren't hitting in the last week of the season, you may remember. They barely beat Early Wynn, of the Nats, in a 1-0 game, and their last appearance of the season was a four-hit shutout dealt 'em by Sid Hudson of the Nats.

The Yankee paradox of today's beating is that the game was tossed away by Joe Gordon, finest defensive ball player in either infield. Three times during the game Gordon came up with spectacular plays that left the Dodger bench aghast at the ground-covering ability and sure-handness of the man, but thereafter he messed up two easy plays, each of which figured in an important Dodger run.

Gordon Still Batting a Thousand

The Dodgers haven't got Gordon out yet in the series, incidentally. He made two hits and walked twice yesterday, and today the Brooks walked him three times. He's batting 1.000 for his three hits in the series. Yet at the end of two days play, Gordon is one of the goats of the series.

The amazing character of the series thus far is Mickey Owen, the Brooklyn catcher whose pugnacity exceeds by far the .229 batting average he dragged into the series. Owen banged an important three-bagger for the Dodgers in the first game and today he made the perfect hit-and-run blow that tied the score. He directs the Brooklyn infield and pitching with an air of supreme confidence, which doesn't hurt.

With the series moving to Ebbets Field tomorrow, the Dodgers are in no fix whatsoever. An even break in the Yankee Stadium games ought to appease them inasmuch as the big Bronx Park is tough on visiting batters who are not familiar with the shadows. The closer fences of Brooklyn outfields will invite more home runs by both clubs but the Yankees have not been taking a fancy to Brooklyn pitching.

Wyatt's victory today ought to be especially heartening to the Dodgers. It means that at most any point after the fourth game, the Brooks can send back to the mound a pitcher who has stopped the Yanks. In the fifth game, if absolutely necessary, in the sixth game at least. No longer is there any evidence that the Yankees are going to make a rout of the series. The Dodgers still have the bounce that carried them through the National League pennant race.

More Parker Trouble Looms For Redskins Here Sunday

Dave Parker May Take Passes From Ace, League's Greatest Back; Teams Drill

The Redskins will be in for double trouble with the Parkers when the Brooklyn Dodgers invade Griffith's Stadium Sunday, not only the great Ace but namesake Dave, a 6-foot-3 end from Hardin-Simmons who is one of Jock Sutherland's 17 rookies.

Dave was working out with the Dodger first string yesterday in Brooklyn and was snagging passes from Ace Parker, the most valuable player of last year and one of the league's biggest drawing cards. If Dave starts he will replace Herman Hodges, a two-year veteran who is a crack defensive end but lacks Parker's pass-catching ability.

If End Dave is assigned to the receiving end of Ace Parker's passes he has about a 2 to 1 chance to make good on every pass, for the former Duke back completed 49 out of 111 last year, for nearly a thousand yards. In fact, it might be an all-Parker scoring duo for the Dodgers as Ace is naturally the principal scoring threat of the visitors, having banged home five touchdowns and 19 conversions last year.

The Redskins will be down to the late-week light practice sessions today and tomorrow. The Dodgers will not arrive until late tomorrow night, holding their final workout on their home Erasmus Field in Brooklyn.

The Redskins, unless they come back Sunday, may find themselves in the league cellar for the first time in the team's history here. Should the Pittsburgh Steelers upset the Giants and the Dodgers beat the Redskins, it will be last place for the 'Skins.

Feller's Home Towners Give Him Special 'Day'

Van Meter, Iowa, Oct. 2 (AP).—Rain marred Bob Feller Day but it didn't prevent hundreds of the star baseball pitcher's boyhood neighbors from tendering him a rousing welcome today.

He was scheduled to pitch two innings in an exhibition game between semipro teams but the rain eliminated that part of the festivities.

The home folk turned out to hear Gov. George A. Wilson and Senator Clyde L. Herring praise the Cleveland Baseball Club's twirler and swamped him with autograph requests which he obligingly filled.

Dooley Picks Duke, Fordham, U. S. C. in Top College Games

G. W. Picked To Lose, G. U. To Triumph

Virginia Is Choice Over Yale; Middies Seen Too Powerful For West Virginia

By Eddie Dooley

Famous Football Expert

Tomorrow's football program will be marked by several important games in which the championship hopes of at least three of the elevens will suffer severely. Foremost from the standpoint of national interest is the clash between Duke and Tennessee, leaders of the Southern and Southeastern Conferences, respectively, pressing them for the spotlight are Fordham and Southern Methodist, who meet in New York, and Ohio State and Southern California, who play at Los Angeles.

I think Duke will beat Tennessee by a shade, and that the Blue Devils will go on to capture the Southern Conference laurels. Tennessee, however, is plenty dangerous, judging by the talented players it has. While it lost many of last year's best men, it has in Johnny Butler and Bob Cifers a pair of backs that can raise havoc with any defense.

The Fordham outfit which will be unveiled at the Polo Grounds in New York tomorrow stands a good chance of making football history. No Ram eleven of recent years,—and that includes last year's team which won its way to the Cotton Bowl—has had as much striking power and scoring punch as this unit appears to possess. Its line is bigger and faster than the famout "Seven Blocks of Granite," and the backfield has more balance and elusiveness than any Maroon team foursome ever had.

Ohio State, which scraped by a strong Missouri team by the close margin of five points last week, may meet its Waterloo when it crashes into Sam Barry's rugged Trojan forward wall at Los Angeles tomorrow. Barry, like Barnhill, is a former assistant who has imbibed all the secrets of the master. He knows every trick used by Howard Jones in building a team, and Jones built some great ones.

If Southern California can trim the Buckeyes, Ohio State's morale will suffer, and the confidence of the new coach, Paul Brown, will be seriously impaired. Southern California, on the other hand, will take on the cloak of a real threat to Stanford and California in the Pacific Coast Conference race. Ohio State is a slight favorite in this game, but a Trojan win would not surprise those close to the situation.

The East has a wealth of attractive games on tap. Cornell, with scarcely a player from last year's fine outfit, takes the field against a promising Syracuse eleven at Ithaca. Ossie Solem, Syracuse coach, told me he expects a lot from his team this year, and admittedly it looks good, but I am counting on the meticulous Snavely touch to bring the Ithacans a close victory.

Penn has a slight edge over Harvard, due to the latter's recent loss in personnel. Coach Harlow's complicated system of attack takes several weeks to get clicking. Penn is not the team it was last fall, but it has power.

Navy should trim West Virginia, but not without a good deal of trouble. Bill Kern, coach of the Mountaineers, turns out bruising lines and hard running backfields. Army can be counted on to trim little Citadel in a warmup game, but Yale, with a pretty impressive collection of talented players, may get its ears pinned back by a hard running Virginia outfit that handed Layayette a trouncing last week.

Sophomores Start for Terps And Terrors

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 2.—University of Maryland and Western Maryland College, with probable starting lineups liberally primed with sparkling sophomores, tangle in Baltimore Stadium tomorrow night in the thirty-first battle betwen the two old State football rivals.

The Terrapin coaching board, headed by Jack Faber, plans to start the same crew that opened successfully against Hampden-Sydney last Saturday—seven lettermen and four sophomores, while Coach Charlie Havens indicated his Terror gang would list eight lettermen, two sophomores and a junior.

The Terrapins have won 18 of the 30 tilts played since the series started in 1893, and the Terrors 12, there never having been a tie game.

Maryland.	Position.	West Md.
James	L.E.	Suffern
Vincent	L.T.	Natalizi
Morton	L.G.	Walls
Jarmoska	Center	Phillips
Meyer	R.G.	Kittner
Burlin	R.T.	Bohn
Conrad	R.E.	Guszesky
Cordyack	Q.B.	Sorenson
Mont	L.H.	Blast
Barnes	R.H.	Bricker

Washington State-California—California. The Bears have too much power.

Central Eleven Faces Wilson In First Interhigh Contest

By Bill Burnett

Take your choice and there will be six good reasons why you're probably wrong on the outcome of the 1941 interhigh football series, opening today at Central High Stadium.

Central will take on the forces of Woodrow Wilson there at 3:30, launching what easily might prove the bitterest annual grid scramble the public high schools of Washington have undergone. The seven schools again have been divided into eastern and western divisions, the winner of each to clash for the title on November 20. In the first section there are Anacostia, Tech and Eastern, and in the second the contenders are Central, Wilson, Western and Roosevelt.

For the first time in the history of the series—it dates back to 1892—a tangible award will go to the titlist. That will be the huge bronze cup offered by the University of Illinois Alumni Association. Western High's Red Raiders now hold the championship, by virtue of their ruthless and wholly unexpected romp over Tech in last year's playoff.

No Standout Team

If there is a standout club in this year's race, it hasn't let anyone know about it. Eastern, Tech and Central might have a shade of advantage, but any one of the other four teams is conceded a definite chance. They'll all be fast, well-coached and capable of winning any one of their outings.

Today's Central-Wilson affair is a perfect indication of the state of things. The Vikings, as usual, are the favorites, but you won't find many willing to back them with anything solid. Wilson is too much of a dark-horse, and Central hasn't exactly had its baptism by fire yet.

Each eleven won its only start so far, but neither very impressively. Central "took" a Bullis Prep outfit which was considerably below its perennial strength, 7-0. Wilson clipped Randolph-Macon Academy, of Front Royal, 7-6, and Coach Carl Heintel still doesn't know whether that was bad or good.

Against Heintel's coaching, proven exceptionally good considering the material he gets, Central throws the first scholastic team ever coached by John Jankowski, former Catholic U. quarterback.

Lettermen Back

Eleven 1940 lettermen are on Jankowski's first squad, but only ten of them are ready to play today. Jim Kurz, wingman shifted to the backfield, has been ailing with an infected toe and may sit this one out. Three veterans are starting backs—Mike Denikos, Stan Valanos and Bobby Mess—and the others are Ends Jack Samperton and Bernie Grosbean, Center George Lavinder, Guards Hubert Tucker and Hank Lawler, Tackle Wilber Rock and Reserve Back Nick Chacos.

Further damage was done to Central's hopes recently when Bob Hill, 200-pound end, suffered a slight concussion and has been confined to bed.

On the Wilson side of the line today there will be six lettermen, two short of the Tiger limit. Phil Funk, whom Coach Heintel touts as "the best end in the city," is nursing a broken collar bone and is probably lost for the season. Charley Voigt must wait for the first scholastic marks before moving into the backfield.

Quarterback Richard George and Fullback Charley Saine are the seasoned Tiger ball carriers, while on the line are Lettermen Bill Simpich and Charley Hardison, ends; John Mudd, guard; John Keshishian, tackle, and Jim Crane, center.

Western vs. Gonzaga

The secondary feature on today's seven-game schedule finds Western entertaining Gonzaga. It will be the Red Raiders' season debut, against a Purple contingent which has dropped two of its three games to date.

In its second start, Eastern travels to Richmond to face the John Marshall High powerhouse which trampled Roosevelt, 39-0, last week. Anacostia plays host to Handley High, of Winchester, Va.; George Washington, of Alexandria, tangles with Lane High, of Charlottesville, in the only night game; what promises to be an excellent St. Alban's team opens its schedule in Baltimore, against St. Paul, and Landon likewise goes to Baltimore for its opener, with Baltimore Friends.

Probable line-ups:

Central.	Position.	Wilson.
Grosbean (15)	L.E.	Simpich (8)
McGrath (41)	L.T.	Humphries (24)
Lawler (31)	L.G.	Mudd (28)
Lavinder (33)	Center	Crane (5)
Tucker (19)	R.G.	Croarkin (16)
Rock (24)	R.T.	Keshishian (32)
Samperton (12)	R.E.	Hardison (13)
R. Mess (16)	G.B.	George (7)
Valanos (27)	L.H.	Schwab (7)
Denikos (18)	R.H.	Savin (33)
Troll (20)	F.B.	Saine (20)

Reserves—(Central) Heller (1), Horton (13), Faus (32), Thomsides (26), Ward (29), G. Dunn (32), Kurz (36), Chacos (37), Wright (43) and Mulligan (47), backs; J. Mess (22), Morris (39), Remson (40) and Chipouras (43), ends; Silverstone (14), Roberts (17), Richwine (30), Petrone (44) and Wallis (45), tackles; Purin (21), Mould (34), Gregory (38), Hilzenberg (46), Himmelfarb and Browne (48), guards; Goldberg (36), center. (Wilson) Tate (4), Ashford (34), Farnham (28), Rose (9), Lamb (27), Stout (6) and Owens (2), backs; W. Tanney (17), Davies (14) and Geier (12), ends; Hodson (19), Kerr (18) Thomman (10), tackles; Berzling (23), Smithers (25), Loomis (30), Miller (32) and K. Haack (31), guards; Schaeffer (29), center.

Larson Sees Fight for Navy Against W. Va.

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2.—Sending his Navy football squad into a dummy scrimmage today against the junior varsity, which employed West Virginia plays, Head Coach Swede Larson had this to say about Saturday's set-to with the Mountaineers:

"We've got to play football Saturday or we'll get knocked off. Bill Kern (West Virginia mentor) is out to make a record. He has a two-team system and his boys are coming up here rough, tough and rugged."

Larson added that the West Virginians considered Saturday's game one of their most important contests and that he expected a tough battle.

The Middies today also went through drills in pass defense and in punting. Heavy work was finished yesterday.

Larson said Alan Cameron and Wes Gebert, both backs, were hurt in recent practices. Cameron, a regular, is expected to start Saturday but the Tar mentor said he did not know whether Gebert, second-team halfback, would be ready.

The Mountaineers are scheduled to arrive here by bus tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. They will eat with the Midshipmen but will stay at a local hotel, returning to West Virginia Saturday night.

Navy will start its regular team of Capt. Bob Froude and Willis Maxson, ends; Bill Chewning and Gene Flathmann, tackles; Vito Vitucci and John Hill, guards; Jimmy Donaldson, center, and Bill Busik, Bill Chip, Sammy Boothe and Sameron, backs.

The Mountaineers' pobable line-up: Andy Clark and Neil Montone, ends; Charles Harris and Henry Goodman, tackles; Gene Corum and Vic Peelish, guards; Leo Benjamin, center, and Quentin Barnette, Dick McElwee, Don McCann and Charles Schrader, backs.

D. C. Recreation Dept. Organizes Touch Football

The District of Columbia Recreation City-wide Division will hold two meetings today to organize touch-football leagues. The first meeting will be held at 5 o'clock and the second at 8 o'clock tonight. Both will be at 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. The same information will be given at both meetings, the two sessions being held for the convenience of those whom it may not be convenient to attend one or the other.

Last year the District Recreation Department organized two touch-football leagues and they were highly successful. Census Bureau won the championship and will be back this year in an effort to repeat. With the aid of the local referees' association, the Recreation Department organized a touch-football referees' body which is now affiliated with the major officiating group. These officials will handle all of the league games. Play will start Sunday, October 12. One of the things to be decided today will be whether there will be a Saturday afternoon league also.

Susquehanna First Opponent For Eagles

There's no Massachusetts Avenue Hill-to-Rose Bowl movement at American University this season, but hopes will be at a new high tomorrow when Staff Cassell's eleven opens up its season with Susquehanna at Wilson High Stadium.

Never before in the history of American University have they had as many or as capable football players as now and the students' disappointment will run rampant if this isn't the year for the Eagles.

In Susquehanna the Eagles will be meeting a team that defeated them with a second-half rally last year and then went on to an undefeated season. There were bitter memories of that game for A. U., because of an unscheduled "pep" talk delivered the players by Susquehanna Coach Alonzo A. Stagg, jr., Popping in at the hotel where the A. U.'s were quartered at Selinsgrove, Pa., home of Susquehanna, Stagg lectured about 20 minutes on the weakness of his team. He told the Eagles how weak and immature were the Susquehannas and begged them to take it easy after they had amassed a comfortable lead, say 50 or 60 to nothing.

With this sad music ringing in their ears, the Eagles proceeded to take a licking from a bigger and more numerous Susquehanna squad. So, if they're out for blood tomorrow, then none can blame them.

OLD FAITHFUL GEYSER
At Yellowstone National Park
Although not the largest of the known geysers—Old Faithful for 70 years has continuously shot 120-foot cascades of silvery foam—like clockwork, every hour. This phenomenon stands out among the wonders of the world. And so, too, does Old Jordan stand out among the bourbons—the standard for men who know their bourbon best.

Among Bourbon Whiskies It's OLD JORDAN
Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey
Still made the Old-Fashioned "Slow" Way!

MEN who know bourbon know what it takes to achieve the delicious extra-smooth, extra-rich taste of Old Jordan Straight Bourbon Whiskey. We stick to the old methods that take more time, more care—the "slow" way we started 100 years ago. We still buy premium grains. Use more of them to a gallon. Simmer our mash slowly. That's how we get such extra smoothness, extra richness. Yes, Old Jordan costs more to make, but not to drink! So treat yourself to the extra pleasure of Old Jordan.

Ice Water Captures Salem Purse at Laurel, Pays $18.80

Victor Piloted To Victory By Canning

Bushwhacker, Choice Runs Second With Allessandro Third; 7,000 View Program

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Laurel, Md., Oct. 2.—The Christiana Stables' Ice Water threw cold water in the faces of the favorite players today as he stuck to his running guns long enough to trounce the Walmac Farm's Bushwhacker by a head margin. This was the finish of the Salem Purse, top offering of a program witnessed by 7000 fans. A length and a half farther back came the Circle M. Ranch's Allessandro to be third in a field of seven traveling a mile and 70 yards.

Ice Water was considered only a "chaser" but the majority of the bettors and those who had confidence in his ability collected at the rate of $18.80 for each $2 invested. Bushwhacker was the odds-on choice. The 3-year-old winner, a son of Stimulus and ridden by Apprentice W. Canning was clocked in 1:44 for the route.

Wise Timmie, a long shot, set the early pace with Gino Beau lapped outside of him. Ice Water was saving ground on the inside at this stage and Bushwhacker, closer than usual in the early going, was being steered wide. As the field approached the stretch, Wise Timmie bore out carrying Gino Beau with him and Ice Water slipped through on the rail. The ultimate winner then went into the lead as Bushwhacker rallied.

Put to Hard Drive

In the stretch, Bushwhacker ran as if he was going to run over the pacemaker. Jockey A. Craig put the favorite to a hard drive but Canning also urged Ice Water. The public choice got to within a head of the leader and hung for the remaining 70 yards.

Daily double players collected $41.50 for the $2 tickets. In the first race, Dare, a daughter of Bold Venture and Flashing, surprised by taking into camp Jezara and Bola Mowlee, a pair of well-played juveniles in the sprint of five and a half furlongs. Dare paid an individual muteul of $15.70. The second half of the double, the third race, resulted in a triumph for the favored Punchdrunk, another "gal" horse and owned by J. W. Y. Martin. This daughter of War Hero and Jolie Fille paid $5.70.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARE, $15.70, $7.00, $4.50; JEZARA, $4.10, $2.90; BOLA MOWLEE, $3.30.

DARE had keen speed from the start, shook off ONE FLAG, opened a lead gradually thereafter, but was under pressure at the close. JEZARA was in the first flight from the beginning and held on gamely, but was no match for the winner. BOLA MOWLEE moved up menacingly approaching the stretch and hung in the final drive. HANAFEL saved ground and showed a good effort.

SECOND RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $1000. Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won pulled up; place easily. Went to post at 2:01. Off at 2:02. Winner, D. C. Harrison's b. g. (4), by Man o' War—Caledonia. Trained by D. C. Harrison. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:59⅕ (13 jumps).

†Bolted.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTCH TAR, $4.60, $2.70, $2.20; GALA QUEST, $3.70, $2.70; CADDIE, $3.10.

SCOTCH TAR was steadied closest to the early pace of GALA QUEST, took command when asked, fenced well and won well in hand. GALA QUEST set a good pace, made frequent poor landings and was tiring at the end. CADDIE ran out at the turns, landed poorly and was beaten off third. SAXON PRINCESS lacked speed, landed poorly at the sixth and was weakening at the close. ROLL AND TOSS bolted off the course at the first fence.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:33. Off at 2:35. Winner, J. W. Y. Martin's b. f. (3), by War Hero—Jolie Fille. Trained by F. A. Bonsal, Jr. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PUNCH DRUNK, $5.70, $3.60, $2.70; DIVIDEND, $7.40, $4.10; BLABLAH, $3.80.

PUNCH DRUNK came to the outside while bettering her position leaving the backstretch, responded to a hard drive and was opening a gap at the end. DIVIDEND moved up on the inside to take command going to the turn, drew clear, but weakened gradually after being displaced. BLABLAH saved ground while well placed and closed gamely. BILL K. had good speed to the stretch and tired.

Daily Double—DARE and PUNCH DRUNK Paid $21.50.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:03. Off at 3:04. Winner, Circle M. Ranch's dk. br. g. (2), by Roman Soldier—Curiosity Shop. Trained by W. T. Anderson. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CURIOUS ROMAN, $4.30, $3.00, $2.40; CAPT. CAUTION, $6.30, $3.90; CANDLESTICK, $2.90.

CURIOUS ROMAN had keen speed from the start, disposed of INDIAN SUN and held on under pressure. CAPT. CAUTION improved his position gradually on the outside and closed willingly. CANDLESTICK saved ground to move up menacingly entering the stretch and weakened. INDIAN SUN was off sluggishly, was hard used to get to the pacemaker and tired.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 3:32. Off at 3:32½. Winner, Mrs. E. Trueman's blk. m. (6), by Bud Lerner—Grace Troxler. Trained by E. Trueman. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:44⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TODDLE ON, $12.00, $5.10, $4.40; BELLE D'AMOUR, $4.50, $3.60; SARAN, $5.90.

TODDLE ON came through on the inside when placed to a drive, disposed of MY ONE and drew out to win easily. BELLE D'AMOUR saved ground to hold a forward position and closed gamely, but was no match for the winner. SARAN was allowed to race on her own course early and was kept to pressure through the stretch. WOODVALE LASS failed to rally at any stage and showed very poor effort.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1500. The Salem. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:03. Winner, Christiana Stable's b. a. (3), by Stimulus—On Call. Trained by J. A. Healey. Value to winner, $1000; second, $300; third $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:44.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ICE WATER, $18.80, $4.20, $2.60; BUSHWACKER, $2.80, $2.20; ALLESSANDRO, $2.50.

ICE WATER was steadied early, came through on the inside entering the stretch to take command and held on with rare courage in the final test. BUSHWACKER was rated while within striking distance, came out for racing room and hung after getting to the winner. ALLESSANDRO was allowed to settle into his best stride and had to wave between horses to get position in the early stretch run. WIRE TAPPER moved up menacingly leaving the backstretch and then weakened.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:31½. Winner, G. Ring's b. m. (6), by Pharamond II—Family Frost. Trained by H. H. Battle. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $75 and $75. Time, 1:48⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PHARA FROST, $6.70, $4.90, $3.00; STINGING, $13.10, $5.90; THE SCOUNDREL (dead heat), $3.20; DOROTHY POMP (dead heat), $3.10.

PHARA FROST, outrun early, came around the leaders boldly to gain serious contention and drove into the lead and won going away. STINGING improved his position gradually on the backstretch, took command at the eighth pole and held on gamely, but was no match for the winner. DOROTHY POMP came with a rush in the stretch but THE SCOUNDREL was closest to KATE SMITH'S pace, took command approaching the stretch and weakened gradually thereafter.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1100; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:05½. Winner, Whitehall Plantation's b. g. (5), by Timemaker or Espino—Deena-Shee. Trained by L. P. Harlan. Value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:53⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME SHEET, $7.70, $4.20, $3.10; MIGHTILY, $11.50, $9.10; PANTHER CREEK, $11.10.

TIME SHEET was in the thick of contention from the start, responded when placed to a drive to get to MIGHTILY and outgamed the latter in the final stages. MIGHTILY went to the front at once, set a good pace and was under extreme pressure in the closing test. PANTHER CREEK hung after working his way to contention. SCROOGE was prominent for a half and weakened.

Selections at Laurel

Dear Al:

I understand that several of the boys who rode around the half-mile circuits last summer have been quietly informed that it will be useless for them to apply for jockey licenses in Maryland in the future. Which is as it should be. Speaking of half-milers, horsemen and others who made the swing moan each morning at the secretary's office as they see the prices paid by winners at new Pascoag track in Rhode Island. According to them, every winner is the "biggest overlay" of the meeting. Friend Donald Hay is in charge of the mutuels up there and Friend Frank Cronan is handling the public address system and Friend Freddie Burton is racing secretary. Apprentice E. Parsons made his major track debut yesterday. He rode two horses at Cumberland. Alfred G. Vanderbilt wired that he was looking forward to winning the Maryland Futurity here October 11 "with another good son of Discovery." However, this statement was not enlightening, as Vanderbilt has seven sons of Discovery eligible for the race. Vanderbilt is shipping several horses here tomorrow. If you believe that Art Brown is thinking about community singing down there at the Capitol Theater you're crazy. His heart isn't in the highlands. It's right out here at Laurel. He hopes to make it between shows a few days. If you see Sam Lacy tell him I want to see him. Trainer George Cook, who has been ill, was out at the track yesterday morning and is definitely on the mend. Dare, winner of yesterday's first race, is a cleverly named daughter of Bold Venture and Flashing. Roll and Toss, the steeplechaser which ran off the course at the first jump, didn't get out of any work by that maneuver. After the race, trainer Arthur White sent the 5-year-old out and made him go 2 miles over the jumps to teach him a lesson. Many of the race fans brought portable radios with them so they could listen to the World Series while playing the bangtails. Racing Secretary John P. Turner, sr., believes that a field of a dozen will go to the post in the Richard Johnston Stakes here on Saturday. Following a check of the 83 eligibles for this $5000 added, 6-furlong affair for 2-year-olds, Turner listed the following as "probables: T. D. Buhl's Tomluta, Christiana Stable's Rencourt and Elder, Circle M. Ranch's Sir War, R. Sterling Clark's Colchis, Joseph Dobbs' Chuckle, Foxcatcher Farms' Baby Dumpling, Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Seamanlike, Brecknridge Long's Equipet, Mrs. R. D. Patterson's Ben Shaba, Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Arthur C., S. S. Zell's Incoming. There also are one or two others which may be entered. Turner is inclined to think that E. R. Bradley will be represented by one of the seven horses he has nominated to the race, while Greymann Farm's Ramillies is another possibility. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—NOTE seems ready to graduate from the maiden ranks in a field of this sort. Needs only the right help from the saddle. MISS SARITA and FOOT SOLDIER probably will complete the money bracket.

Second race—KILLMALOCK gets the call in the day's steeplechase event. Appears to be the best of a cheap lot. COXSWAIN belongs close in company of this brand. FLEMAR probably will account for third money.

Third race—The Heighe entry of PONY BALLET and SAMPLER, with the accent on the first named, seems to hold a strong hand in this sprint for Maryland breds. SHE DAST has speed and will be a keen factor. GLATAUDER for the show end.

Fourth race—REHEARSAL, another Heighe horse and a winner last out, goes for all the onions in this field. I see no reason for mistakes. FOGOSO comes from the magic stable and is in light. IRISH MOON can better that last.

Fifth race—PORT WALES, a recent winner at Havre de Grace, should make every post a winning one here. CLINGENDAAL is formidable and will be in the

Pressure Will Be on Agnew as Hoyas Meet V.P.I. Tomorrow

Junior Back To Replace John Barrett

Need for Quarterback Prompts Hagerty to Gamble; G. U. Squad Leaves This Morning

By Jack Munhall

Merely a reserve halfback just a few hours before, tough, skinny-looking Eddie Agnew will be a highly respected member of the Georgetown football squad that entrains at 9 this morning for Blacksburg and tomorrow's engagement with Virginia Paly.

Probable choice to supplant John Barrett, star quarterback lost Wednesday by an appendectomy, this 173-pound junior who looks like a matured "Dead End Kid" will be squarely on the spot. Projected into the spotlight in a position entirely new to him, Agnew will be expected by Coach Jack Hagerty to show definite signs of developing quickly into an inspirational leader and a field general of ability.

What Agnew displays in answer to the difficult demands being made of him won't count so much against V. P. I.'s Gobblers, whom the Hoyas expect to beat handily, but his performance will nevertheless serve as a guide to what Georgetown will be able to do against Temple the following week.

Hagerty Looking Ahead

A couple of mistakes against the Gobblers probably won't cost the Hoyas that ball game, but a repetition of them against Temple the following week might well prove disastrous to the Hoyas' secret hopes for another undefeated season.

Agnew is expected to start in a Georgetown backfield that also will include Benny Bulvin and Jack Doolan at halves, and Lou Falcone at fullback. Should a quarterback replacement be needed for Agnew, Falcone would seem the best bet in view of his two years of varsity experience understudying the great Joe McFadden.

The starting Georgetown line will be the same as started and starred against Ole Miss last week, with Chris Pavich and Art Lemke, ends; Al Blozis and George Perpich, tackles; John McMahon and Angelo Paternoster, guards, and Ed Derringe, center. The backfield will average about 180 pounds, with Falcone boosting the total at 195, and the line, with Blozis at 240 and Perpich at 230, about 198.

The Hoyas are scheduled to arrive in Blacksburg around 3 p. m. and plan an afternoon workout at Miles Stadium, scene of the game. The stadium, a concrete, horseshoe-shaped affair, seats 12,000 and a capacity crowd is expected.

Ohio State Eleven Drills 3 Hours For Trojan Game

By the Associated Press

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 2.—The Buckeyes of Ohio State romped through a three-hour drill at the University of New Mexico's Stadium today in their final hard workout before meeting Southern California's Trojans in Los Angeles Saturday.

"Everyone is in fine shape and we are all enjoying the trip West," said coach Paul Brown.

The squad arrived by special train in mid-afternoon and went at once to the field where they worked until the sun had set, then boarded their train and resumed their trip westward.

Skinker, Only Par Shooter, Paces Congressional Club Golf

20-Year-Old Turns Back Shannon, Tomlinson; Meets Jennings Today; Bogart vs. Pittman

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Congressional Club Invitation Tournament passed into the semi-finals yesterday with Medalist Earle Skinker still the only par-shooter in the field as he led the advance through the first and second rounds.

Columbia's 20-year-old shotmaker first brushed aside Billy Shannon, from his home club, 6 and 4, and in the afternoon turned back Bill Tomlinson, the Richmond City champion, 7 and 6. Skinker was one under par in the morning and even in the afternoon, holding all putts. He was five up in both matches at the turn.

His opponent today will be Dick Jennings, the public links champion and tournament dark horse, while in the other semifinal Ralph Bogart, the District champion, will meet Gene Pittman, last of the host club representatives.

Jennings had a fairly easy day. He was three up at the turn on Bernie Hallock when the latter defaulted and then in the afternoon he was again three up at the ninth, this time on Ray Swearingen, and although he strayed from his subpar pace on the back nine he won on the sixteenth, 3 and 2. Jennings played the first nine in one-under par 36.

Bogart met his District championship finalist victim, M. Parker Nolan, in the afternoon and after ten holes Nolan boasted a two-hole lead and it looked like sweet revenge. The big home club champion faltered at this point, however, and Bogart won five of the next six holes, four with pars and one with a birdie.

Pittman, who completed the round of four, got by Paul Frizzell in the morning round, one up, after holding a four-hole lead at one time. Frizzell evened the match at the sixteenth, but Pittman won the seventeenth and halved the eighteenth for his victory margin. Against Bill Wenzel in the afternoon Pittman won, 5 and 4, with two-over par golf as Wenzel ran into a sour putting streak.

Skinker, who has won several qualifying tests and been to the semifinals of at least three tournaments this year, will be making a bid for his first invitation title. Jennings is unknown outside of the public links, but he gathered many backers over the last three days. Bogart, already winner of the city title and two other Invitation affairs is the logical choice. Pittman is making his third appearance in an Invitation tournament semifinal, having advanced at Richmond and Hot Springs.

Mrs. Stokes, Brandon Win Club Titles

Mrs. W. R. Stokes, at Manor, and Mrs. T. O. Brandon, at Columbia, were crowned women's club champions yesterday, the former with one of the finest rounds of golf of the tournament season at the Norbeck Club.

Mrs. Stokes, the District titlist, defeated Mrs. L. G. Pray, 5 and 4, and when the match ended on the fourteenth green the winner needed par in for a 71. She played the round out and took a 6 on the sixteenth hole, finishing with a 73.

Mrs. Brandon, medalist and favorite in the Columbia championship, also played fine golf as she defeated Mrs. A. S. Minnix, 4 and 3, in the finals, after the match was all even through the eighth hole.

Kenwood's finals will be played today with Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg, the defending titlist, against Mrs. Woodlief Thomas. Both won by 3 and 2 margins yesterday.

Mt. Rainier Duckpin Honors Go to Feifer

The Mount Rainier League found that Leon Feifer, Saur's Super Service, was top man for the night with a 171 game and 409 set, the latter the first 400 effort of the new season at Mount Ranier. The Plaza boys took team highs of 634 and 1809 mainly because of identical 395s by Billy LaBille and Hugh Crawley, also winning three straight from White Horse Inn. Northeast Electric whitewashed Pincus Grill.

Goldblatt and Eisen Lead Arlington Bowlers

The Arlington Commercial League found Eddie Goldblatt, Norton's Lunch, and Hy Eisen, Arlington Hardware, the best pin bangers with 142 and 364, respectively. The Arlington Hardware boys top the league with nine wins and three losses.

ger against the circular left-field wall to put both runs in scoring position with none out.

Twice the Dodgers pulled Rookie Shortstop Phil Rizzuto out of position with the hit-and-run play and drove vital blows through the spot vacated by the little Italian who raced to cover second base. Mickey Owen and Billy Herman pulled hits past Rizzuto in the fifth and sixth to set Dodger runs in motion.

Today it was the Yankees who were guilty of shoddy baseball despite the lone error charged against them in contrast to two Brooklyn misplays. The accusing finger tonight is pointed at Joe Gordon who butchered two plays around second base and thus inspired two important Brooklyn runs.

Chandler invited trouble for himself in the fifth when he walked Camilli, first up, and Medwick bore down on the Yankee pitcher with his long double to left that moved Camilli to third. Lavagetto walked to fill the bases and Rizzuto grabbed an apparent double play grounder off Pee Wee Reese's bat and flipped it to second to force Lavagetto at second, but Gordon bogged down on the play with a low throw to Sturm at first and Reese was safe. One run scored and Medwick moved to third with only one out.

Owen Gets Hit

From the bench, Durocher flashed the hit and run sign to Owen and Reese, and as Reese started for second on the pitch, Rizzuto raced to cover the bag. Owen cleverly pulled the ball through the vacant shortstop territory for a single and Medwick was home with the tying run.

The Yankees, who had botched one double-play during the inning, didn't mess up their second chance. Gordon grabbed Wyatt's grounder and flung it to Rizzuto, who completed the double out with a throw to Sturm, and the Dodgers had failed to take the lead, despite Reese's presence on third with one out.

In the next inning, the Dodgers found Gordon vulnerable again. Dixie Walker, leading off, slapped a routine grounder at Gordon and the Yankee second baseman, who had turned in three super plays in the earlier innings, made an incredibly bad job of it. First he juggled the ball, then recovering with time to throw Walker out, he chucked the ball wide to Sturm. The Yankee first baseman stretched far out, but his foot lacked being on the bag by inches and Umpire Grieve called Walker safe.

Presented with this opening, the Dodgers made good. Again the Yankees got a taste of smart National League baseball. The Dodgers put on the hit-and-run play with Billy Herman at bat, and Rizzuto, expecting some kind of an effort to hit to right field, moved over to second base with the pitch. Herman's ground ball skipped through empty territory at shortstop for a single and Walker sprinted to third.

Manager Joe McCarthy sent for Relief Pitcher Johnny Murphy in this crisis and Yankee supporters were heartened when Murphy fanned Pete Reiser, the National League batting champion, on four pitches for the first out. Then it was that Camilli struck. He banged his first hit of the series—a sharp single to right, and Walker was home with the big run of the ball game. The Yanks limited the damage at that point to one run when Herman was caught at the plate trying to score on Medwick's grounder to Rizzuto.

Wyatt made that one-run lead stand up magnificently in the last four innings. He stood between the Yankees and a second straight series victory that might have presaged another four-straight rout of another National League entry. Wyatt broke curve balls and fast balls over the plate to register five strikeouts and blithely pitched himself out of trouble in the last two innings.

Wyatt Bears Down

In both the eighth and ninth, the Yankees had the tying run on base but Wyatt was invincible. The Brooklyn righthander was placed in cruel jeopardy by Rookie Shortstop Peewee Reese with two out in the eighth. Reese first fumbled Dickey's slow grounder and then made a double error on the ball with a wild throw over Camilli's head into the first base boxes.

Thus the tying run was in scoring position, and the Dodgers gambled by purposely passing the dangerous Gordon and putting the potential winning run on base. Reese redeemed himself on the first pitch to Rizzuto, however, when he fielded the ball with no sign of panic and flipped it to Herman for an inning-ending force play.

The Dodgers gambled and won again in the ninth when the stubborn Yankees again got the tying run on base, this time with none out, on a single to right by Pinch-hitter George Selkirk, batting for Murphy. On a foul bunt by Sturm, Lavagetto barely failed to make a spectacular barehand catch, and Wyatt returned to his job. Sturm bunted in front of the plate and Catcher Mickey Owen came up with a great play.

Disdaining a safety first throw to Camilli for the out, Owen grabbed up the ball and rifled it to Herman at second in an attempt to keep the tying run off that base. It worked. Owen's throw beat Sturm to the bag by an eyelash and the attempted sacrifice was a washout.

First Series Victory

Wyatt saw the Dodgers home thereafter. He lured Red Rolfe into hitting into a force play at second, and he walked off the field, a winner in his first World Series appearance, when Henrich lofted a fly to Walker.

Henry Loses Bout to Singh At Turner's

Three losses, each related to the other, tell the story of the feature wrestling match between Nanjo Singh and Jim Henry at Turner's Arena last night.

Singh lost his temper, Henry lost the bout and Referee Casey Berger lost his trousers. All this happened before more than 1000 ecstatic fans who screamed with glee as Referee "Gipsy Rose" Berger sought to save some shreds of his dignity—and his "britches."

The horrific Hindu pinned Henry, alias the Green Hornet, in 23 minutes with his famous cobra clutch. Henry had to assisted from the ring following the bout. However, all this was anticlimax—the real show was the loss of the Berger britches. The referee had been trying to force Henry to relinquish a hold. Henry turned loose all right and grabbed a fistful of Casey's pants. And while Casey was still in 'em, too! The arbiter blushed all over the premises and tried to hide some of the hide—but to no avail. Scarcely had this happened when Henry put the snatch on the other leg, ripping it to shreds.

Berger staged a valiant fight against several ringside candid camera fiends, but they still managed to "shoot" his predicament. He attempted to change into some fresh trousers, but the wrestlers wouldn't stop their antics long enough to permit this.

In the semiwindup Pat Fraley triumphed after handsome Paul Boesch was forced to surrender on a leglock. This was a strictly scientific match all the way, and well received by the crowd.

Reliable Lou Plummer and Frank Judson toiled to a draw, and Emil Dusek downed fat Herbie Freeman after 12 minutes. In the curtain-raiser, Milo Steinborn and Freddy Grobmier deadlocked after 30 minutes.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

Steel to Exceed Defense Needs, Tower Says

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Walter S. Tower, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said today that an output rate of 85 million tons of steel a year was the best the United States could expect to achieve for the next 18 months but that during that time the industry "will make tens of millions of tons above the maximum of all defense or war needs."

In an address prepared for the annual convention of the Farm Equipment Institute, Tower said: "All the facts now at hand lead to the conclusion that the August rate of steel ingot production, a little more than seven million tons, is close to the maximum figure which can be expected as an average over the next 18 months.

"In other words, barring strikes and other interruptions of production, about the best that can be seen for steel supply is an annual rate of 85 million tons through all of 1942 and the other months of 1943. And that prospect is largely irrespective of any extent to which the capacity of steelmaking furnaces may be expanded in the interim."

The Steel Institute head said there was a general agreement that an actual physical shortage of scrap steel and iron was in sight. To assist in meeting this situation, he disclosed, a program has been worked out between steel men and the Office of Production Management to provide facilities capable of producing about 6,500,000 tons of pig iron annually, the production of 11 million tons of additional iron ore and the construction of at least 16 ore-carrying boats for Great Lakes service.

Tower told the farm equipment men "certain factors are at work which ought presently to help clarify and probably ease the situation in respect to steel supply.

"It is not unreasonable to look for a letdown from the excessive buying of consumers goods in various durable and semidurable lines, which has been going on this year. Tax prospects are likely to help in that direction.

"Still more important is the earnest effort of the steel branch of OPM actually to come to grips with the facts of the problem. A real, factual appraisal of defense requirements for steel has recently been ordered and now is under way.

"When it is finished, a dense fog of uncertainty, which has hung over defense requirements, will be dispelled."

Chicago Grain

Other grains also were lower, part of the weakness being due to a sharp break the first time in the last ten market of soybean prices, which finished 1¾ to 3½ cents below previous closing levels.

Wheat rose about ½ cent early in the day due largely to scattered mill buying, but, when this was absorbed, gains were erased quickly after holding fairly steady for a couple of hours, the market weakened late in the day and closed ⅜@⅞ lower than yesterday. December 122⅝@⅞ 122⅜, May 127¼@127½.

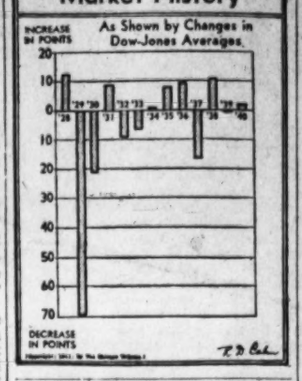
October in Stock Market History



A. T. & T. Reports Record Increase

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported today an increase of 142,400 telephones in service in the principal telephone subsidiaries included in the Bell System in September. It was the largest increase for any single month in the company's history.

The increase in August was 110,400 and for September, 1940, it was 109,200.

The net gain for the first nine months of 1940 was 1,007,900, a figure larger than the entire net increase for the full year 1940 and the largest for any comparable period in the company's history.

At the end of September the total number of telephones in use in the Bell System was 18,489,300.

General Electric Orders Reach Record Level

Schenectady, Oct. 2 (AP).—Orders received by General Electric Co. during the first nine months of 1941 soared to $831,390,000 to establish a record total and increase 109 per cent over the $397,810,000 recorded for the like 1940 period, Charles E. Wilson, president, announced today.

During the three months ended September 30, orders received were $310,251,000, a record volume for quarterly period, compared with $185,157,000 in the corresponding period last year, or an increase of 68 per cent.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Hedge pressure and profit-selling put cotton futures down sharply in the late trading today. The close was 12 to 16 points net lower. Earlier gains had run to as much as $1 a bale on continued talk of higher parity levels for farm products and belt-wide conditions considered unfavorable for picking.

The trade displayed keen interest in reports that 60,000 to 65,000 bales of American cotton had been shipped to Canada by U. S. exporters within the last few days under the subsidy plan.

Port receipts Wednesday, 11,243 bales; port stocks, 3,227,828.

Substitute For Aluminum Is Reported

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Oct. 2.—The United States Rubber Company announced today the development of a new nonmetallic material designed to replace sheet aluminum in many important uses.

In presenting the new substance, identified only as formula C-102, company officials said it was made of fibrous and rubber-like ingredients and that except for small amounts of rubber consisted entirely of nonstrategic materials unaffected by priorities.

The material was developed by company engineers seeking a container for self-sealing fuel tanks already in production by the United States Rubber Company. It already has been tested and approved for this use, company representatives said, by the United States Army.

Slightly thicker than one-eighth inch aluminum sheets as used in fuel tanks, it still is one-third lighter. It is claimed to have 60 per cent of the tensile strength of aluminum and under gunfire to resist ripping or shattering.

Among possible uses in normal industry suggested by company officials was as a substitute for aluminum panels now utilized in bus and truck body construction.

Emmet Shehan, general manager of the United States Rubber Company's tire division, said today that while considerable new equipment would be required to produce the new material in volume, limited manufacturing facilities already have been set up for what he termed "pilot" work in Detroit and Los Angeles. He said that if large scale operations were undertaken in connection with defense work they probably would be carried on at the company's Pacific Coast factory.

Very little of the company's tire-making machinery, he said, was adaptable to processing it.

Bonds Active; Gains Range To Over Point

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 2.—The bond market scored a general advance of fractions to more than a point today in the most active session in more than two months.

Contributing heavily to the large turnover as well as providing one of the firmest spots were several issues of the Nickel Plate Railroad which sprang to life with a rush upon announcement of plans to redeem the 4 per cent collateral trust notes of 1946. That issue was traded in the unusually large amount of $877,000, par value, and ended up 3⅞ points at 100⅞. The road's 3½s, 6s, 4½s and 5½ also were active and higher by major fractions to more than 2 points.

Another feature of the rail group was the appearance on the tape of one single block of $355,000, par value, New York, Westchester & Boston 4½s at 3⅝ shortly after several bonds had changed hands at that price, a gain of ⅛ point net. The total day's turnover in the issue was $363,000, par value.

In the general corporate group sharp advances were registered by Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s at 86½, Ann Arbor 4s at 65, International Mercantile Marine 6s at 88, Great Northern 4s at 98½, Commercial Mackay income 4s at 53¼, Missouri Pacific 5s at 27¼ and Wabash First 5s at 71¼.

U. S. Governments kept to the narrow range of the previous day but the trend remained steady on both the stock exchange and over the counter.

Gainers of 1 to 2 points in the foreign dollar group included Sao Paulo stamped 7s, Panama 3¼s, Denmark 6s and Colombia 3s. New South Wales 5s pushed up 3⅞ to 78⅞.

Total sales of $9,023,700, par value, were the best since July 22 and compared with $5,617,300 on Wednesday.

Virtually all the day's activity centered in oils and low-priced issues, the majority of which held to an extremely narrow range. Leaders generally were up fractions to a point or so in the forenoon. Advances then began to fade and volume dwindle. While modest gains were plentiful at the close, declines were widespread.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a net loss of .1 of a point at 43. Transfers of 464,927 shares compared with 368,195 the day before.

Business news was viewed as fairly constructive and war bulletins generally were without disturbing qualities. A little bearishness cropped up, however, as Treasury Secretary Morgenthau warned that this year's tax bill was only a starter.

Western Union and Postal Telegraph preferred extended yesterday's upturn in the forenoon but slipped when profit selling came in on the "good news" that a Senate committee had recommended legislation permitting merger of the telegraph systems. Previous strength of these stocks was apparently based on rumors such action would be taken.

International Harvester was off ⅞ of a point in the wake of announcement of further price boosts by this company. J. I. Case was up a shade but Deere, Oliver Farm and Caterpillar Tractors ended under water.

In the miners section were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Anaconda, du Pont, Johns - Manville, Owens - Illinois, Pathe, General Electric, Union Carbide and J. C. Penney. New lows for the year were posted for Westinghouse and Consolidated Edison.

Skelly Oil, Davidson Chemical and Snider Packing edged into new high ground for 1941. Modest improvement was retained by Crucible Steel, Public Service of New Jersey, Montgomery Ward, Crown Cork, Goodrich, Glenn Martin, Eeastman Kodak, U. S. Gypsum, Texas Corporation, Consolidated Oil, Pure Oil and Phillips Petroleum.

Last week's freight loadings increased less than seasonally but Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio clung to minor plus signs. "Nickel Plate" railway shares moved hgher as the company disclosed plans for calling 16 million dollars in collateral trust notes due Octobe r1, 1946. Dow Chemical lost all but ¼ of an early two-point jump as a three-month earnings statement revealed a drop under last year.

Up in the Curb were Aluminum of America, International Petroleum, Pennroad, Cities Service and American Gas. Small setbacks were suffered by Brewster Aero, Electric Bond & Share, Gulf Oil and Glen Alden Coal. Turnover here was around 86,000 shares versus 71,000 the day before.

Redemption Of Nickel Plate Notes Planned

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Oct. 2.—A plan looking to redemption at 101½ of the 16 million dollars of Nickel Plate Railroad 4 per cent collateral trust notes due October 1, 1946, was announced today by the parent Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

The C. & O. announced filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission application for authority to acquire from the Nickel Plate certificates of deposit for 95,193 shares of Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway Co., prior lien stock at a price "not exceeding $101 per share, the exact figure to be determined at an early date, and in any event before the holdings of a hearing" on the application.

The application states that the Nickel Plate also proposes to sell to others, at a price to be obtained "under conditions introducing competition," certificates of deposit for an additional 20,000 Wheeling & Lake Erie shares and will use the funds, together with additional money to be borrowed, for retirement of the 1946 notes. The Nickel Plate would retain certificates of deposit for 14,800 shares of 5½ per cent preferred and 168,000 shares of common of the Wheeling.

The transaction would not change voting control of the Wheeling, now held by a trustee, but would leave the C. & O. and the Nickel Plate holding together certificates representing slightly more than a majority of the Wheeling's total outstanding stock.

The C. & O. said it would benefit directly with "a sound investment" for part of its surplus funds and indirectly through strengthening the Nickel Plate. With respect to the latter road, "the transaction would lead to the anticipation in part and the refunding at a lower rate of interest of its next maturing obligation," and would give it about $15,000,000 of free collateral.

Purchasing Agents Elect Capital Transit Man

Atlantic City, Oct. 2.—K. M. Pardoe, assistant purchasing agent of the Capital Transit Co., was elected president of the American Transit Purchases and Stores Association at a meeting held in conjunction with the sixtieth annual convention of the American Transit Association. Mr. Pardoe, who served the association as vice president last year, succeeded James K. Hall, purchasing agent of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

John C. Gall To Leave N. A. M.

By the Associated Press

The resignation of John C. Gall as counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers was announced yesterday as effective November 1. Gall has held his present post four years and been a member of the N.A.M.'s law department for 20 years. He will establish a private practice in Washington.

Profit Taking Forces Down Cotton Futures

By the Associated Press

Price swings in commodity futures were narrower and markets were calmer, although cotton dropped sharply at the end under speculative realizing and hedge offerings. Down about $1.50 from earlier highs, the staple closed 60 to 90 cents a bale net lower.

Cottonseed oil finished .04 of a cent a pound higher to down .02 of a cent. The domestic sugar contract was nominally .1 of a cent a pound higher in some positions but there were no sales. World sugar futures closed .015 lower to .015 higher.

Chicago wheat closed ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel lower and corn dipped ⅛ to ¾ of a cent. Hogs were 10 to 20 cents under the previous finals. Sheep were steady and cattle gained as much as 15 cents.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples closed at 92.73 per cent of the 1926 average, against 92.72 per cent Wednesday.

N. Y. Banks Report Decline in Deposits

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Quarterly condition statements of leading New York banks, published today, indicated a general decline in deposits, reversing a long trend which had carried deposits of some of the larger institutions to record heights three months ago.

A number of the banks reported increases in loans and discounts, reflecting more active credit demands for business. Changes in holdings of United States Governments were generally unimportant.

Customs Collections Gain

The Treasury reports that customs collections amounted to more than 35 million dollars during September, which was an increase of around 12 million dollars over the same month last year. Since the start of the fiscal year on July 1, customs receipts have exceeded $106,000,000, compared with $71,482,000 collected in the corresponding 1941 fiscal year period.

WHEN I ASKED YOU IF THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S SEARCH FOR BILL RESULTED IN ANY NEWS OF HIM, YOU ANSWERED "YES AND NO"! WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?
IT MEANS THAT THE SEARCHING PARTY LOCATED THE CHARRED REMAINS OF THE PLANE, BUT FOUND NO TRACE OF BILL!

THE NEAREST LANDING THAT COULD BE MADE TO THE WRECKED PLANE IS 150 MILES AWAY!
COULDN'T THEY LAND AND WORK THEIR WAY TO THE WRECKED PLANE?

Listen! with Glynn

By Peggy Palmer Phelps, substituting for Paul Glynn, who is on vacation

Football games, the World Series, and the return of your favorite radio programs to the air herald the approach of fall as surely as the first frost and the crimson and yellow leaves that grace the trees these days. And tonight, two more big CBS shows return to WJSV.

America's sweetheart of the air, Kate Smith, begins her second decade in radio tonight at 8 with a star-studded cast on "The Kate Smith Variety Hour." The songbird of the South, whose entire radio career has flashed over CBS, again has Ted Collins as producer, announcer and manager. Her guests tonight will be Merle Oberon and Tommy Dorsey, and the program regulars, Nan Rae and Mrs. Waterfall, Johnny Burke, the "Original Draftee," and Ted Straeter and his chorus will be on hand. Miss Smith, a native of Washington, began her radio career May 1, 1931 as vocalist on a musical program. At present, in addition to the Variety Hour, she conducts a 15 minute program of news and commentaries over CBS and WJSV Monday through Fridays at 12 noon.

Al Pearce and his Gang make their fall debut tonight over WJSV at 7:30, and plan to initiate Andy Devine as a permanent member of the "gang."

Contract Bridge

Good play is as important as good bidding, experts agree; consider today's hand which requires imagination and foreplanning to bring it to a successful conclusion at four hearts. It is a deceptive deal in that the play looks simple, but here is a clew: When a contract cannot be made by playing straight from the declarer's hand, try "reversing," pretending dummy is declarer and vice-versa. West opens the king of clubs, follows with the ace and another.

Today's Hand
Neither Side Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

	♠ 108 ♡ K J 9 7 ◇ K Q 6 ♣ 9 5 4 2
♠ Q 7 2 ♡ 10 8 6 5 ◇ J 8 3 ♣ A K 7	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ K J 6 3 ♡ None ◇ 10 7 5 4 2 ♣ Q J 10 6
	♠ A 9 5 4 ♡ A Q 4 3 2 ◇ A 9 ♣ 8 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ♣.

Declarer trumps the third lead of clubs and planning to draw trumps, takes the ace of hearts; the bad distribution shows up. He realizes that his trumps will be so shortened by club ruffs in his hand and a ruff of spades in the dummy that West will make a trump trick. He leads a low heart to dummy's jack, trumps the club with the queen of hearts. Plays his last heart, finessing West for the ten; he draws West's last trump, and three diamond tricks plus the ace of spades make up the quota of tricks. He makes four spades, winning four hearts in dummy, two in his hand, three diamonds and one spade.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Durance Assurance — BY MILTON CANIFF

DUDE! TIRE MARKS IN THE DUST! JUDAS IS STILL HEADING WEST... AND IT STANDS TO REASON HE HAS RAVEN SHERMAN AND BURMA IN HIS TRUCK!
H'IST YOURSELF, TERRY! I'LL KICK MYSELF LATER FOR ALLOWING RAVEN TO GO PROWLING BY HER LONESOME!
IN CAPTAIN JUDAS' SPEEDING TRUCK....
I'M GETTING LOOSE, RAVEN! ANOTHER MINUTE AND WE'LL JUMP THIS JALLOPY!
WE'RE SLOWING DOWN!
AH, MY SWEET BURMA HAS BEEN BUSY! CAPTAIN JUDAS THOUGHT YOU MIGHT BE GETTING NOBLE AGAIN!... I WILL RIDE BACK HERE TO SEE THAT YOUR REGRETS ABOUT YOUR PAST DO NOT RUIN MY FUTURE!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

SO, CONNIE, YOU'VE BEEN KEEPING COMPANY WITH LEW KLEEK BECAUSE YOU RECOGNIZED HIM AS THE MAN WHO TRIED TO ORGANIZE A "BROWN SHIRT" GROUP AT YOUR COLLEGE?
THAT'S RIGHT, MRS. WORTH... AND I THOUGHT I'D GET A BIG STORY FOR THE PAPER!
BUT TODAY I TOOK HIM A BOOK--A PLANE GEOMETRY TEXT--AND IN HIS ROOM AT MRS. WAGNERS, I SAW A PIECE OF PAPER THAT MADE ME COME STRAIGHT TO YOU!
HE PUSHED IT INTO A DESK WHEN MRS. WAGNER BROUGHT ME IN--BUT I SAW ENOUGH OF IT--MRS. WORTH, IT WAS A PLAN OF THE POWDER MILL!
THAT SOUNDS VERY SERIOUS! BUT WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT IT?

Florence Greaney, Honor Student At Trinity, Dies

Miss Greaney

Miss Greaney, an attractive girl and accomplished pianist, was to have entered her junior year at Trinity this week. She was majoring in mathematics and had won scholastic honors during the past four semesters.

Born in Washington, Miss Greaney was graduated from St. Gabriel's parochial school and Holy Cross Academy, both of which chose her for May Queen.

She leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Greaney, of 6112 Western Avenue, Chevy Chase; a brother, Jack, 15, and a grandmother, Mrs. James Kennedy, of Newburgh, N. Y. Mr. Greaney is an attorney here.

The funeral will be held from the home, with mass to be said at the Blessed Sacrament Church, Chevy Chase Circle, at 11 a. m. tomorrow, with burial to follow at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Don C. Dyer Dies; Private Patent Investigator Here

Don C. Dyer, private patent investigator here for the past 12 years, died early yesterday morning at his home, 4817 Thirty-sixth Street Northwest, after a seven-month illness. Funeral services and interment are to be held tomorrow at Leicester, Mass.

A native of Groveport, Ohio, Mr. Dyer was a graduate of Chicago University and Heidelberg University in Germany. He was a research chemist with the Department of Agriculture here from 1907 until 1916, when he was placed in charge of the chemical department of the Delaware State Experimental Station. He was employed by private chemical concerns for several years, and had been in business for himself as a chemical and mechanical engineering patent investigator since 1925. He was a member of the American Chemical Society.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Lucy S. Dyer, and a daughter, Dorothy W. Dyer, both of Washington.

Hospital Car Under Study By Army

Special armored ambulances and mobile hospitals, both of which would operate in the heat of front-line combat are among medical innovations contemplated for the United States Army, Maj. Gen. James C. Magee, Surgeon General of the Army, disclosed yesterday.

The new devices are under development by the Medical Corps after a study of European blitzkrieg tactics and the need for stepped-up medical technique in panzer warfare, the officer said. His speech at the thirteenth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society at the Mayflower was read by Lieut. Col. Howard T. Wickert, of the Office of the Surgeon General.

Earlier, medical society officials revealed Washington will be one of 20 cities which will be the subject of a survey in conection with a Nation-wide program for the rehabilitaton of Selectve Service registrants failing Army inspection tests.

Officials of the medical society, the District chapter of the Red Cross, the District Dental Society and the Health Security Administration will meet Tuesday to plan the local program.

Dr. Warren F. Draper, Assistant Surgeon General of Public Health Service, said his organization believes "that the young men rejected by the Selective Service or by the Army for correctible physical defects should be given medical attention without cost.

He said when the 20-city survey is completed recommendations for the national rehabilitation program will be incorporated in a bill to be submitted to Congress.

Gen. Magee, describing the armored ambulance and the mobile hospital among principal Medical Corps projects now under development, said such devices were made necessary by the change in warfare since 1917.

With panzer forces crashing forward at the rate of 100 or more miles a day, hospitals can not be established near the front as in the World War of 1917, and hence the need for front-line medical service, he said.

The new ambulance would have light armor and would carry at least two or three litters to pick up injured men.

The mobile hospital unit would consist of seven special vehicles containing four operating rooms, an X-ray room and a sterilizing room and, like the ambulance, would operate close to combat.

The Medical Corps head also reported the Army is interested in the subject of quick transportation of casuals to hospital by airplane. All Army transport planes now have the equipment necessary for the installation of littters, the general said. Further development along this line may be accomplished through the use of autogiros, which have greater landing and take-off adaptability to broken terrain.

In connection with the selectee rehabilitation program, Col. Leonard G. Rowntree, Army Medical Corps, told the assemblage the rejection rate has now risen to almost 50 per cent of all men examined, with about 800,000 failing the examinations out of 1,800,000 registrants examined to date.

Referring to the rehabilitation program the officer said, "This can be made the day of destiny for medicine . . . medicine can find in this (rehabilitation effort) its greatest opportunity for service.

He added Washington had "the most golden opportunity" in the country in the program because of the centralization of the Army, Navy and Public Health Service here.

Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Surgeon General of the Navy, told the session his organization is currently conducting research into the three principal problems of service aviation. These were the difficulties of flying at great altitudes because of lack of oxygen, the "blackout" or loss of consciousness when dive bombing, and night blindness of some aviators.

'Chutist, Hoist on Own Stunt, Is Trapped on Devil's Tower

By Frank Hicks

United Press Staff Writer

Devil's Tower, Wyo., Oct. 2 (U.P.).—A threatening snowstorm and near-freezing weather tonight forced Charles Hopkins, Texas parachutist, to abandon his perilious descent of 865-foot Devil's Tower and return to the summit of the rock, where he has been marooned since early Wednesday.

Hopkins, who parachuted to the top of the granite pinnacle from an airplane, started down its slippery, rain-soaked side late today, working his way inch by inch toward the ground.

He had gone only 100 feet when he gave up. Fingers chilled, he began inching again to the summit where he had a thin blanket and enough food for tonight.

"It looks too tough," he shouted to the crowd waiting for him below. There was no shelter atop the barren pinnacle, and mist about its peak threatened momentarily to turn to snow.

Forest Ranger J. F. Joyner said there was no chance of his making it down tonight and sent for professional mountain climbers from Estes Park, Colo., to guide him down.

Victim of his own publicity stunt, Hopkins dropped to the top of devils Tower in the Wyoming badlands by parachute yesterday in an attempt to gain notoriety for another parachute adventure he planned in the future.

After more than a full day atop the bare summit and with more than 100 persons watching below, Hopkins late today decided to attempt the descent down the wind-swept face of the tower. The map to guide him was dropped by an airplane.

Hopkins, who recently returned from instructing British aviators how to use 'chutes and who participated in the evacuation of Dunkirk, had been pounded by wind and rain since he dropped on the peak.

Forest Ranger J. F. Joyner said the descent would take more than five hours "unless Hopkins slips."

Rain, which lashed the peak most of the day, stopped just before the 29-year-old daredevil began the descent, but the rock still was slippery and extremely dangerous.

"There's only one safe way down," said Forest Ranger J. J. Joyner, "and he'd better be able to read the map."

Hopkins, according to Earl Brockelsby, of Rapid City, S. Dak., who bet him he couldn't bail out onto the peak, is "undoubtedly the best parachute jumper in the United States." The plane from which Hopkins jumped circled afterward and dropped Hopkins a rope for descending the peak. The rope missed.
